Other presentations made last Saturday evening were pins presented by John Warner on behalf of the County of Beaver. Pins and a booklet by Mayor Freebury, on behalf of the Town of Tofield, and an exchange of banners between the Rotary Club of Camrose, by Rotary president Bill Lamb, and the French Rotary Club, by one of the French Scout Leaders. —Photo by Kroetsch

Break in investigated

RCMP are investigating the recent break-in of Ryley Farm and Industrial Supply Ltd. on the morning of July 15.

RCMP reported that the thieves got away with approximately $7,000 worth of power tools, jet sockets and other tools.

The thieves entered the premises by cutting the chain link fence and then jimmied the locks off the back door, entering the premises.

The crime is thought to have happened between the hours of 3 a.m. and 5 a.m.

Brian Strilchuk, owner-manager, said he was in the building working until approximately 3 a.m. before he left for home.

RCMP feel that the incident is related to other break-ins in the area.

Strilchuk is offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of the individual or individuals involved.

Date changed

The regular August Farmer's Market will be held on the first Friday — August 5 rather than the usual second Friday, because the annual Tofield Fair is to be held August 13.

Also there will be a special promotion opportunity for those interested in the Horticulture section of the Agricultural Fair as there will be four different classes to enter floral arrangements. They are Basket of Flowers, Rose Bowl, Miniature Arrangement and Dried Arrangement.

These will be judged with awards given to the best in each class. There will also be an display at the market.

There will be a second Market in August so that the small holders can sell their fresh garden produce. It will be held on August 19.

French scouts leave for home

by Ken Kroetsch

When the visiting French Boy Scouts left for home Tuesday there were both French and Canadian tears shed because of close relationships formed over the short time the French Scouts were visiting, said Don Kendrat, Scout Master.

"We could have kept them another week," said Kendrat.

As the French visitors pulled away in the bus, said Kendrat, they broke into the singing of Auld Lang Syne, in French.

"One thing about the Scouts was their hospitality, said Kendrat. They were always smiling, cheery and ready to sing. Tofield Scout, Pierre Courtenier, said it was just like losing one of the family.

This close relationship, which all involved will remember for some time to come, started last Saturday with the French Scouts and their leader arriving in Camrose after the World Jamboree in Kananaskis.

The Scouts were met in Camrose by the various families who had committed their homes and time to the Scouts.

After arriving in Tofield a pot luck dinner was prepared for the Scouts in the United Church basement.

Following dinner, Bill Lamb, President of the Rotary Club in Camrose, exchanged banners with the Scouts.

Following this, John Warner, County of Beaver councillor, made a presentation of county pins to the boys.

Lion's President, John Zintel, also made a presentation of pins to the Scouts.

Following these presentations, Mayor Freebury presented each of the Scouts with the Town of Tofield pins as well as a booklet about the town.

After the ceremonies the Scouts separated and went with the various families to their homes.

Sunday morning the Scouts attended mass at the Catholic Church.

In the afternoon the boys were taken on a tour of the Brown farm and other farms in the area.

They were shown Texas Longhorn cattle, buffalo and other cattle.

Sunday afternoon the French boys were taught to play baseball. They had never played the game, said Kendrat.

One of the French Scouts, Eric Le Grenier, told Kendrat that, "It's fun to be up to bat, but it's very boring to go out in field."

Several of the Boy Scouts purchased baseball bats to take home as souvenirs.

They were also able to go horseback riding, western style.

On Monday all of the Scouts and their adopted families went to Edmonton to the wave pool in Millwoods.

After spending time in the wave pool everyone went shopping and eat to eat, Canadian fast food style of hamburgers.

After returning to Tofield all the French Scouts were taken for a canoe ride. Kendrat said that although several of the Scouts had been in boats, none had ever been in a canoe.

Following the canoe trip everyone gathered at the Scout Camping Grounds for a wiener roast. After everyone had eaten they were entertained by the French Scouts singing French songs, accompanied by a flute and drum.

After all the singing was done and it was time to go home the French Scouts performed a friendship dance for their hosts, one that they had done at the World Jamboree.

Tuesday the Scouts spent time with the families they were visiting with, and visited the Alberta Wheat Pool in Tofield.

Yvonne Brown, one of the hosting families, said that her and her family were treated to pizza, chicken, stuffed potatoes, prepared by the three Scouts visiting her home.

"It was so good," she said.

Tuesday afternoon was spent by some of the Scouts downtown buying last minute items to take home as souvenirs, items such as maple syrup, post cards and other memoirs of their visit.

In parting, Kendrat made an agreement to meet one of the Scouts visiting his family, Benoit Courbraut, at the 1987 World Jamboree in Australia.

Sewage tender accepted by Holden village council

by Ken Kroetsch

The Village of Holden has accepted the tender of Francis Kaliel, of Fearet, to do the construction of the new sewage lagoon project, at its regular meeting last week.

Approval for the tender is subject to approval from the local authorities board.

In his tender bid to council by letter, Kaliel said that it would require 270 days to complete the project.

This would make the project completion date some time early next year.

In related business council passed a by-law giving the Mayor and administrator authority to enter into agreement to get a grant under the Alberta Municipal Water Supply and Sewage Treatment Grant Program.

In other council business the Village Council discussed the request of the Vegreville Health Unit for land in the village to put up a permanent structure within the village limits.

The Health Unit is looking for a lot in the downtown area to put a double wide trailer on.

The Council's decision was to look further into the matter and that there was a possibility that property could be available, but that the details would have to be worked out.

The Health Unit is presently located in the Holden Lodge.

"IN ORDER TO TAKE PART IN OUR ATHLETIC PROGRAM YOU HAVE TO MAINTAIN A DECENT AVERAGE... HOW WOULD A 'B-' SOUND?"

Taxes

Some people chew chewing gum when they're nervous. Others reach for a chocolate bar, or a bunch of peanuts. Raisins, maybe. Or they gobble down cookies. Some take a drink to steady their nerves. Some people reach for a pill of some kind or a cup of coffee. And still others reach for a cigarette.

Pretty basically, all are using, or over-using, one of these products for much the same reason . . . to relieve the tension of today's hectic pace.

Canadian Health Minister Mme. Begin is being lauded for her interest in cutting down the number of people smoking by making the price so high it will drive them away from the weed. She is being praised for being truly interested in the health of the nation's people . . . as well as being immensely practical in saving the country millions of dollars which would need to be spent in the medical treatment of smokers and non-smokers alike.

Now, we hold no brief for the weed. Far from it. We'd be delighted if there were far less smoking in the country, if it were cut back to its place before the Second World War, when there were times and places . . . Or even less than those days.

But we wonder if the proponents of banning tobacco have stopped to reflect on what would fill its place. Would, for instance, some of today's smokers become heavier drinkers? Drinking, after all, isn't good for us either. Would they switch instead to more peanuts, more candies, more cookies? Food takes its toll, too, and already many of us have to involve ourselves in major diet programs. Would they see us switch to more pills, possibly. Would the smokers all get hooked on, say, valium? It's not too far-fetched . . . a recent scientific study showed exactly half of several hundred houses surveyed had some form of barbiturate prescribed by doctors in the medicine cabinet.

The point is, large numbers of people feel they can go only so long without "reaching" for something, and if that something isn't on the lower end of the risk scale, speaking relatively, such as a smoke, it may turn out to have more serious overtones, such as liquor, or drugs. We can't help wonder if Mme. Begin and her supporters have given much thought to the potential for extra divorces, marital discord and even mental breakdown if people are denied the soothing and palliation they get from a smoke. Or if they've added up the costs of these alternatives.

Cost and effect completely aside, it scares us stiff that this is an area government thinks it should become involved in, and that some people want to see government involved in it. Already a wide variety of laws governs our everyday life, and it threatens to get worse. And worse. It's not always necessary to write laws to effect change. Sometimes you can introduce taxes to accomplish the same thing. Other times there can be permits or licenses. Reducing permits reduces the activity, even though no law has been passed.

Individuals have it in their own power to do something about the health hazard of smoking. They don't have it in their power to do anything about the amount of sulphur in the air, and if it causes a deficiency of selenium in cattle, (attested to by a veterinarian and proved in practice) it probably has a similar effect on people. They don't have it in their power to do anything about the amount of acid rain. Nor the mercury in lakes which makes the fish poisonous to eat. Nor the amount of lead from auto exhausts floating around in the air. These are places where the government can, and should, act on behalf of all the people.

As we said, it scares us to see them moving in where they should not. Today the action is against somebody else. Tomorrow it may be against you. Or me.

Patricia Young Says . . . . . .

While many sports fans can quote a lifetime scoring record of their favorite stars, few people know anything about the origins of various sports and games — often presuming them to have sprung full grown in North America. And while we may know baseball to have been first played at Cooperstown in [illegible] or that basketball was devised in [illegible] by Dr. James Naismith of Springfield, Mass., most sports date back to ancient times.

For instance, the Egyptians are said to have bowled as far back as [illegible] B.C. The game was introduced into North America by the Dutch settlers in 1623 when they set aside an area in Battery Park, New York for that purpose. Boxing was a feature of the 23rd Olympiad Games in [illegible] B.C. Chess is generally believed to [illegible] 500 B.C. in the area [illegible] Persia and Arabia, not being introduced to Western Europe until the seventh century.

The game of polo is depicted in the ancient art of Tibet, China, Persia and India, the [illegible] remaining largely in the [illegible] East until it was taken back to England by cavalry officers in 1863 when they played the first game at Hurlington, outside London, not reaching North America until 1875. Soccer dates back to the ancient Greeks. It was mentioned by England's Chaucer and the game was forbidden frequently by English kings. The game was originally played with the inflated bladder of a pig — hence the term pigskin. Similarly, golf, said to have been invented by the Scottish in the fifteenth century, was forbidden as a game in 1457 by King James II and the Scottish Parliament — because it detracted men from the "manly" sport of archery!

Thoroughbred [illegible] in England in 1683 while the first steeplechase was run in England in 1750. Canada is said to have contributed ice hockey and lacrosse, while the French, Irish and English all claim to have invented billiards although it was played in Florida as far back as the seventeenth century. Rummy comes from Britain, where the word "rum" meant anything old or queer!

Then we have poker, often called the great American game. It was probably adapted from a similar game found in Italian literature of the fifteenth century although Rabelais also describes a type of poker as having been played in France. Sports participation and entertainment then, is about as old as man himself. If nothing else, it indicates a difference and [illegible] over the [illegible] approach that sports call for challenge and competition, [illegible] and the individual desire to excel.

It sets man aside as the inventor and builder — the species that will invent the wheel and [illegible] a man to the moon.

Taxes are killing the golden egg

By W. Roger Worth

Slowly but surely, governments in Canada are effectively killing the Canadian small business geese that lay those valuable golden eggs called [illegible].

Naturally, there's no official "let's get the entrepreneur" policy, but the effect of some government moves is devastating for business, and particularly for hard-pressed smaller firms that are having trouble breaking even, let alone earning big profits.

The issue, of course, is the ubiquitous payroll tax which employers (and sometimes employees) are forced to collect and pay, no matter whether the business is profitable or not. By driving up such taxes, governments are making it more difficult for new businesses to start; firms have less cash to expand and create jobs, and in some cases the levies result in bankruptcy.

Here's a glimpse at the kind of payroll taxes employers have to contend with:

• Unemployment Insurance - At year's end, Ottawa increased employee contributions a whopping 39 percent, raising the maximum amount payable by each worker to $8.85 per week. But the companies that hire these workers pay even more.

Their maximum rates soared to $12.40 per employee per week from $8.09, a staggering 53 percent increase. That means a small business with, say, 10 employees earning $385 per week is now paying an extra $43.10 per week, or $2,241 per year.

• Workers' Compensation - Most Canadians don't fully understand that employers pay a heavy price for this government sponsored, on-the-job [illegible]. A manufacturer of corrugated paper boxes in Ontario, for example, pays $2.07 for every $100 an employee earns. A firm hiring workers to cut lumber, on the other hand, pays $10.04 per $100 of earnings, while a cartage firm employing people to [illegible] a whopping $18.40 for every $100 it pays in wages. Needless to say, these rates are also rising.

• Canada Pension Plan - Employers match their workers' contribution to a maximum of $268 per employee per year. The costs keep rising.

• Education payroll taxes - This is a newcomer to the payroll tax scene. Manitoba recently followed Quebec's lead, incorporating a 1.5 percent tax on all payrolls in the province. The effect? A business employing 10 people earning, say, $385 per week, is forced to pay an extra $57.50 per week or a nice, round $3,000 per year.

Administering all these tax schemes, of course, is time consuming and costly, to say nothing of having to deal with the government inspectors that oversee the various plans.

As a result of the continuing concern about the rapid expansion and effect of payroll taxes, the Canadian Federation of Independent Business is funding a $20,000 project to accurately assess the damage that is being done to small business.

"Simply put, these taxes are unfair, and they are costing Canada a great many jobs," CFIB President John Bulloch recently told members of a Winnipeg service club. "Rest assured, the pernicious payroll tax will be one of our major political targets during the next two years."

The income tax became the major source of Federal revenues around the time of World War I, according to a Conference Board analysis. Previously, the Federal Government depended on tariffs, excise taxes and customs duties for its income.

The United States first committed itself to the metric system at an international convention in 1875. Although American fundamental weights and measures standards have been metric since 1893, this country is the only major industrial nation that still has not brought the metric system into its everyday life.

Ninety-five percent of this world's gem emeralds are produced by Colombia. The Muzo emerald mines, 75 miles from the capital of Bogota, have been in operation for four centuries. The mineral-rich South American nation also produces such precious metals as gold, silver, copper and platinum as well as lead, mercury, manganese, iron, nickel and coal.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

On the new book table this week, you will find a number of new mystery stories, six in all, ranging from The Spy Game by Marc Lovell to A Question of Quarry, by George Baglay.

An interesting new non-fiction book is Through the Time Barrier, by Danah Zohar. This is a study of precognition, the ability to see into the future. Personal experiences and a study of the relation of precognition to physics are both included.

For younger people, there are a number of new books. The Night Walkers by Otto Coontz is a horror story; The Case of the Fido's Fiddle by E.W. Hildick is a mystery. The Day They Came to Arrest the Book, by Nat Hentoff is a high-school novel on the theme of book censorship.

A series of excellent books for young teens are written by Brian Doyle, a Canadian author. Hey Dad!, You Can Pick Me Up At Peggy's Cove, and Up to Low, are all very good reading for the junior high group.

Also watch for more of the Series Canada paperbacks by Paul Kropp, and further Choose-Your-Own Adventure titles.

The children's films this week include Where the Wild Things Are; Little Red Riding Hood; and The Fur Coat Club. Admission is free, no food please, and preschoolers should not come alone. The films are shown twice, Friday at 2:30 sharp, and Saturday at 11 a.m.

Beginning in August, the Library will have a camera for loan to patrons. It is a Polaroid 600, the type that includes flash, battery and film all in one pack. The camera and case may be borrowed by any adult member in good standing, but not on the first loan. Film for this model must be provided by the patron, and is available in Tofield, but there is no charge for use of the camera. Ask the library staff for more details on this new program, and plan to book the camera for any special occasions you may have planned.

The craft committee requires short golf pencils and/or used pencil crayons for another new project. The odds and ends which land in the drop box at Owl Value Drug Mart may go into the making of monthly tray favours; surgery surprises and the likes.

A second spice sale has been planned for early fall in time for Christmas baking.

A special thanks goes to the Hesting's Lake Ladies for their donations of the following items, eight pyjama sets; four infant sleepers; five pairs slippers; five stuffed toys. These items were passed onto the children's ward at the Tofield Hospital.

Remember there are no THA meetings scheduled for the months of July and August. Our first meeting this fall will be September 19 at 7:30 p.m.

Only two more weeks and Heritage Days (Aug. 1) will be here. Susan Nelson has nearly completed her project of flags which will be featured on the walls of the arena. The many others who are involved with display booths and entertainment are busily working out the last details. It is amazing what a variety of ethnic groups make up the Canadian culture.

The THA's stick pins and memorial spoons featuring a print of the Tofield Hospital have arrived and are now available for sale. Contact Dolores Reth or any Auxiliary member for further information.

Rain causes problems

by Ian Linwood

Several rain related problems were discussed at the County of Beaver's regular council meeting last week.

Several councillors reported problems of flooded lands in areas adjacent to Ducks Unlimited Dams.

The dams, built jointly by the Department of Environment, Ducks Unlimited and the County of Beaver, have restricted the heavy flow of rain causing flooding to surrounding areas.

Discussing the problem councillors felt some of the problem stemmed from the design of the dams.

The spillway of the dam, said one councillor, is small restricting the water from heavy rains to pass freely through the opening.

The water is then backed up on to farmer's lands, flooding the area.

Council will be sending a letter to the Department of Environment requesting an investigation into the types of dams built by Ducks Unlimited.

In other council business, delegate Bruce Porter, asked council why his taxes had increased 38 per cent in two years.

County of Beaver Secretary-treasurer, Garth Bancroft, told Porter that the assessment guidelines on his property were made by the provincial government and the formulas used by the County were also set by the provincial government.

Council said the only thing they could do would be to send the C of B assessor to reassess Porter's property to check for any errors in assessment.

Porter then brought up the poor condition of the Splitstead road, south of Highway 14.

He said the road was in poor repair, causing damage to his car from the holes in the road.

He asked council why anything has not been done to remedy this situation.

Council said that the road conditions have been a problem throughout the county because of heavy rains.

Porter questioned council as to why the road hadn't been worked on during the months of April and May, while the weather was good.

Council said they had waited on that particular road for rain to compensate for the overly dry condition of the road. Council said it had not foresaw the rain staying for several weeks.

Porter was informed by council that as soon as weather permits that work is planned for the Splitstead road.

It was also reported to council that a lot of muddy water had emptied into a farmer's dugout from the construction work being done on secondary road 834.

The dugout, the only source of water for the farmer's hogs, filling with muddy water has clogged the pump and filters used to take water from the dugout.

The county said that it will be using the county pump to spray alum into the dugout to settle the mud.

It was also suggested by council that bales be placed along the ditch to sift mud and silt from the water.

In other council business, council accepted the tender of Kalial Motors for a 1986 GMC van to be used by the assessor.

In last week's edition of the Mercury a headline was written implying that the Town of Tofield was looking for someone to hire, to do work at the cemetery. The intent of the article is to find someone or a group to take the project on themselves on a volunteer basis.

In another story Marvyn Machura's name was mispelled in the article.

The Mercury apologizes for any problems caused by these mistakes.

75th birthday celebrants at the Spilstead Community Hall on July 9 and 10 were Mrs. Louise Winder, Mrs. Geo Hoflin and Mrs. Helen Creek. Family members wished them birthday greetings during the get together.

New library service

There are plenty of reasons for going to the Tofield Library: great novels, popular magazines, valuable reference books and a [illegible] that can be borrowed free of charge.

What is a camera doing in the public library?

"As of August 2, it's a part of our circulating collection," [illegible] bard. "Like our books, magazines and records; it is here for the public to use and enjoy."

The local library is participating in "Check This Out", a program that provides free instant cameras to public libraries throughout Canada.

[illegible] in electronic flash and use high-speed color film. Sponsored by the Public Relations Department of Polaroid Canada Inc., the program is being offered in cooperation with the Canadian Library Association.

According to Public Relations Manager Anna Dowbiggin, the idea of borrowing a camera from the library isn't as unusual as it may seem. "Libraries offer a wide variety of services and materials to their patrons," she said. "Instant cameras are a natural for an information-oriented facility like the public library."

A representative of the Canadian Library Association said, "This is the first time in recent memory that a corporation has made a commitment on this scale to the nation's libraries. When times are tough and library budgets tight, we hope other companies will follow Polaroid's example."

At the Tofield Library, anyone 18 years or older who holds a valid library card may borrow a camera for up to one week. Patrons must supply their own film.

A STRONG LIVESTOCK AND GRAIN COMBINATION

Prospects are for increased grain freight rates though the rate and magnitude of the increase is unpredictable. Higher costs in grain production always result in a search for alternatives by Alberta farmers.

THE SCENARIO

1. Higher freight rates on all grains could make barley exports impractical over long distances from our seaports.
2. Surplus barley on the prairies would make hog and cattle feeding seem like an opportunity to many farmers.
3. Prairie fed hogs and cattle need a market and none is in sight just now for increased pork and beef production.
4. The days of the cyclic boom and bust in prairie agriculture might return.

THE BEST ANSWER

A strong and healthy export market for Canadian grain must be retained. At the same time, Alberta's livestock industry must be strengthened and permitted to thrive. Neither of agriculture's important functions should be further injured as a result of policies now being determined.

It is plain that transportation costs of grain will rise. It is also clear that Western Canada needs both grain exports and livestock feeding, that is Alberta Wheat Pool's position.

Alberta Wheat Pool believes that the marketing system must establish a technique for pricing feed grains, which will provide incentive to ensure sufficient feed grain production to meet both Canada's domestic and export marketing opportunities. Insofar as is possible, it should maintain a price relationship for feed grains among the various areas of Canada which would reflect costs of transportation, handling, marketing, carrying costs and would not distort the normal competitive position of grain and livestock producers throughout Canada.

This policy, to be effective, must be clearly understood by both producers and users of grain and requires that pricing information be readily available to all interested parties. It should, while contributing to the growth of the Canadian livestock and grain industries, also insure that an adequate floor price be provided to feed grain producers.

by Ken Lovstrom

For a small fee visitors to the Heritage Days, Aug. 1, will be able to taste foods from nine different areas of the world, said Rose Charters, committee member.

From the Japanese food display a visitor will be able to sample sushi, manju and kasutan. The world reknowned French pork pie will be available for the taste test at the French food display.

From Scottish descent will be oat cakes and short breads to tease the pallet, while from England there will be the traditional crumpet, said Charters.

Other food displays include a German display, a Ukrainian display, a Scandinavian display, a Welsh display and a Hungarian display.

Also as part of Heritage days there will be displays of Histories of the Lakeshore-McKenzie District, the Spirited District and the Kat-channel District.

There will also be a pictorial display by the Bethel Mennonite Church, a history of the 4-H in this area, a hospital display, a library display and an Australian display by the Boy Scouts.

There will also be an old-time school room and old-time kitchen display set up.

Some of the demonstrations booked for the day are a demonstration of Ukrainian easter egg painting, Norwegian hardinger, spinning of wool, willow weaving, harnessbeing, tatting and harness making.

Also as part of the Heritage Day festivities will be a Heritage Parade of Fashions, followed by a program of singing, dancing and musical performances.

The Heritage Day program at the Arena, is being organized by the Hospital Auxiliary, with other organizations in the community taking part.

County fire report

The following fires have been reported to County Fire Chief Laurie Weatherill.

On June 4, a fire on the road allowance between sections 4 and 5 -48-17-W4 was attended to by the Ryley Fire Department. This fire caused no damage and because it occurred from unknown causes on County property, no bill for services will be sent.

On June 8, a tanker truck carrying hot asphalt caught fire north of Viking on Highway No. 26.

The fire caused extensive damage to the rear of the trailer unit, however, the fire was extinguished by the Viking Fire Department before the oil carrying compartment was damaged. Value of damage is not available yet

On June 16, a fire on the N.E. 33-48-17-W4 destroyed three buildings and involved surrounding grass and timberbelt.

This fire was responded to by the Ryley Fire Department, with assistance from the Holden (for fire fighting) and Tofield (for water) Fire Departments.

Damage to the buildings was estimated at $25,000. The fire is being blamed on flying brands from a fire in a nearby rubbish disposal pit.

Fire department receives one call

The Tofield Fire Department had only one call this week. The fire department responded to a call that a fire alarm was ringing in the Tofield School.

The problem turned out to be a faulty smoke detector which was reported to the County for repair

The Tofield Fire Department wishes to bring to the attention of the public that Honeywell will be recalling all its battery operated fire detectors, model TC88C, sold in Canada between January, 1976 and May, 1978.

The recall also affects the battery operated model TC88B detectors.

Some of these models, because of the way the circuit board is mounted, may malfunction when smoke is present, though the unit would still alarm when the test button is pressed.

The affected models will be replaced with a comparable model at no charge by returning it to Honeywell.

The model numbers and date codes can be found under the smoke detector cover, inside the detector on a piece of gray cardboard. Honeywell recommends consumers check the operation of their smoke detector by extinguishing a candle to create smoke near the alarm. If the detector does not alarm with the presence of smoke, consumers should call the company's appropriate toll free number.

The company withdrew from the smoke detector market in Canada in December 1980.

Any problems regarding smoke detectors can be discussed with any member of the Tofield Fire Department or by phoning 662-3266 or 663-3307.

Two things are becoming progressively more common. Mostly, the amount of welding being done on the farm is increasing rapidly and secondly, the numbers of people wearing contact lenses is growing. A combination of these two occurances can be extremely dangerous, if extreme care is not taken. The following article was obtained from June 1983 issue of the Grain Grower, a U.G.G. publication and it emphasizes the need for extreme caution when contact lense wearing people are welding or watching welding work.

Wearing Contacts While Welding Is Extremely Dangerous

An incident recently reported shows there is extreme danger in wearing contact lenses when arc welding.

An arc welder flipped up his welding helmet to better position the welding rod. He accidently struck the metal to be welded, producing an arc. Removing the contacts for the night, the corneas from both eyes were removed along with the lenses.

There was permanent blindness. Here's what happened. The electric arc generates microwaves that instantly dry up the fluid between the eye and the lens. This trauma is painless and you don't know an injury has occurred until the contact is removed.

This phenomenon was unknown until now. Consequently, there are no safety standards covering the use of contacts when welding. But there are two options First, don't weld while wearing contacts and prohibit all contact-wearing people from the area where welding is done. Second, always wear the welding helmet and keep it in place until welding is complete and the welder is turned off.

New Legislation

Recent amendments to the Motor Vehicle Safety Act allows Canadian children to use automobile booster cushions. The cushions can be secured with the car's lap belt or lap-shoulder belt and cannot have an additional harness. Although these booster seats can be used legally in either the front or back seat of a car, the Quebec Safety League recommends strongly that they be used only in the back. The seats sell for between $30 and $36. Federal officials warn parents that Kitchen booster seats should never be used as auto booster seats they "fold like accordians" when exposed to collision forces. These seats allows children to see out the windows and be safely strapped in at the same time.

LEATHER CLEANER

I have had several inquiries lately about cleaning leather. As an option to drycleaning, there are a number of very good commercial preparations on the market. Also any pure, natural soap such as Ivory Snow can be used to clean leather if you're careful not to let it get too wet. Use a clean cloth, just dampened with the soap solution. Commercial "saddle soap" is better however, because it contains oils and waxes to preserve the leather. Here is a formula for one you can make yourself

2 oz. soap powder
½ oz. neatsfoot oil or castor oil
½ oz. beeswax
8 oz. water

Dissolve the soap in the hot water. Heat the neatsfoot oil and wax together, in a double boiler (set over a open flame) until the wax melts, then mix and pour into the hot soap solution. Stir until the mixture begins to thicken, then pour into cold cream jars or other containers. Apply with a damp cloth, then buff with a dry one.

This mixture should only be used on smooth leather, NOT a suede. Also, remember cleaning the surface of a leather coat is no substitute for a yearly drycleaning which also removes dirt, oil and perspiration from the lining.

Farmers need financing stresses Mazankowski

Hon. Don Mazankowski
P.C., M.P.
Pembina Financial Difficulties Conference

Dan Mazankowski, M.P. (Vegreville) has called on the federal government to act on behalf of the many Canadian farmers facing continuing financial difficulties.

"According to a survey conducted by Agriculture Canada 5 per cent of our farmers are in serious financial trouble" said Mr. Mazankowski, "and another 10 per cent are in some difficulty". These figures were confirmed at a CFA credit conference this spring and mean that over 40,000 farmers have financial problems. Mr. Mazankowski also noted that farm bankruptcies were running slightly ahead of last year's record pace overall and were up 94 per cent in western Canada.

Farmers financial woes, resulting from low commodity prices, rising input costs and high interest rates are being compounded this year by the Farm Credit Corporation's lack of funds. The FCC, which acts as a major source of credit and refinancing for farmers, ran out of money in June and has been unable to make loans since then.

The Minister of Agriculture has indicated that he has asked Cabinet to allow the FCC to borrow new funds from the private markets, but no decision has been reached yet. Press reports claim that while the Corporation has asked for $900 million it will only be allowed to borrow $250 million. If so, this will be of little use to farmers as most of the $250 million is already committed.

The Progressive Conservative Party has repeatedly urged the government to authorize the $900 million request and to provide a $200 million direct contribution to ensure an immediate supply of funds. "Without assistance from the FCC, many farmers will have trouble surviving" said Mr. Mazankowski in a letter to the Minister of Agriculture. "Already personal cases have been brought to my attention and it is important that new funds be approved as soon as possible."

Mr. Mazankowski also reiterated that the government should implement the 10-point agricultural policy proposed by his Party this spring which included $100 million for an interest rate relief program and the creation of an agrifund program to provide low cost farm credit.

RETURNS FROM TRIP TO ENGLAND

Mrs. Rose Nelson and her mother arrived home July 7 after a holiday in England. In the 14 days there they only had one rainy day. In April and May they had 53 days of rain.

Rhododendrons, roses, daisies, fushias and poppies grow wild there. Most of the barley was headed and winter wheat was turning color.

Robert and Martha Johnson, Dagny Jones and Pearl Kusiatz were Sunday callers at the Lawrence Pearse home for their 60th wedding anniversary.

HERE FROM SPAIN

Russell and Diane Olson and Michael of Spain arrived July 17 to spend a month in Camrose with his mother Alma Olson and other relatives.

The Lyle Bratrud family spent the week holidaying at the park near Meadow Lake, Sask.

Carl and Arlene Staal, accompanied by their folks, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Staal and relatives from Denmark, Mrs. Jette Iversen and Mrs. Vibeke Jacobsen, motored to Winfield, B.C. for a family reunion there.

Rev. and Mrs. Les Weakery, Heather, Shauna and Jodi motored to see her mother at Wisconsin and points on their holiday.

OSLUND RE-UNION AT RYLEY

On June 26 an Oslund family reunion was held in the Ryley Community Hall, when about 150 relatives attended. It was the 81st anniversary since their grandparents — the P. Oslund's — settled in Ryley. The only one living of this family is Mrs. Minnie Oslund Hutchinson who is in a nursing home and was able to attend.

For this special occasion an anniversary cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Albert (Vicky) Nersasen and dinner was buffet style. Begonia plants and mixed bouquets were placed there by Brian and Marie Westmancourt.

Relatives were present from Edmonton, Vancouver, Ontario, Sherwood Park, Drayton Valley, College Heights, Camrose, Bruderheim, Tofield, Viking, Kamsa, Ryley, and area. In charge of guest book was Kenny Nersasen.

Mrs. Sharon Olsen has returned from a world ecology workshop — University of Calgary, Environmental Centre, near Kananaskis.

Around the town

Deanna Mabee, of Edmonton, was the winner of the Lindbrook Community League Draw. Mabee was the winner of patio furniture.

Spilstead district news items

Laughter and happy chatter filled the air at Spilstead Community Hall on July 9 and 10 as almost 200 people gathered at a family reunion.

They were celebrating the 78th birthdays of Mrs. Louise Winder (June 23rd), Mrs. Gea Heflin (Dec. 18th) both old-timers of Tofield, and Mrs. Helen Creek (Nov. 28th) of Delta, B.C., and the 58th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Williams, Calgary (formerly of Tofield). Also included in the celebration was the 35th wedding anniversary of Mr and Mrs. Willie Bjorgum, Kingman and the 28th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Art Hanson, Edmonton.

The celebration began with a bonfire and wiener roast on Saturday night. Then Sunday morning they worshipped together in a service led by Mr. and Mrs Lloyd Raine, missionaries in India, and Mr and Mrs. David Anderson, missionaries in northern Alberta.

Beautifully decorated cakes were prepared for the occasion by Mrs. Dorothy Ferguson, Miss Linda Switzer, and Mrs. Muriel Anderson. Following the pot luck dinner, members of the families took part in a variety program, emceed by Conrad Winder. The highlight of the program was a narration in song especially composed for the occasion by the Hoflin daughters and sung by the Hoflin family.

Mrs. Winder's children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren overflowed the platform as they joined together to sing. Muriel Anderson and Grant Williams paid tribute to their parents and Grant's anecdotes brought gales of laughter as memories flooded the minds of the people involved.

Among other enjoyable items was music by the Albin Winders and Ivan Broens and a delightful duet by young Brede and Jody Winder.

Besides many relatives and friends from the surrounding areas, more distant visitors included: (Alberta): Ethel Switzer, Judy and Linda (Sundre), Dale and Sheila Switzer (Beiseker), Brian and Caludette Winder, Roxanne, Joanne and Leanne (Drayton Valley) Sandra Winder (High Prairie), Norma and Ken Winder, Terry and Dwayne (Morecambe), David and Muriel Anderson (Lac La Biche), Grant Williams (Calgary), Albin and Althea Winder (New Norway), Shirley Widlake and boys, (St. Albert), David and Fern Lindholm and family (Leduc), [illegible] Clyde), Harold Johnson, (Alder Flats), Laura Dahl (Donalda), Shirley and Bob McGraw (Suffield), Barton and Alice Lymburner (Forestburg), Reuben and Alice Halwa (Thorsby).

(B.C.) Bob and Elsie Swirhun (Kelowna), Lorene Goodwin, Ross and Jay Mcgarva and Justin, Debbie Switzer (Surrey), Des and Laurie Brown and Jackie (Deroche), Alfred and Anne Winder, Tina and Vernon (Prince George), Larry and Donna Williams, Shauna and Robert (Abbotsford), Betty Anne Winder and Verne (Aldergrove), Oscar and Signe Broen and Shonna Martens (Clearwater), Millie Reddemann, John Lowe (Burnaby), Lorena Sware (Whiterock), Arline Morrow (New Westminister), Mel and Lorna Henderson, Kim and Allan (Fort St. James), Marvina and Joan Henderson, Vicki, Esther and Lorne (Ashcroft), Ben and Diane Siemens, Brant, Murray and Clinton (Topley), Brenda Raine (Moose Jaw, Sask.), Brenda and Chris Fountain (Toronto), Lloyd and Hazel Raine (Calcutta).

The community picnic originally planned for July 17 was cancelled due to rainy weather. It will be rescheduled in August. Also watch for news of the date of the clinic that will be run for children on horse care, do's, don'ts, grooming, etc.

The Miquelon Lake Saddle Club will hold their monthly general meeting at the hall at 8 p.m. on August 1.

Remember to watch for Spilstead History displayed at Heritage Day, Aug. 1, in Tofield.

A member of our community is hosting the Japanese food display at Heritage Days, too. So watch for it. There is no admission charge for Heritage Days, which is being sponsored by the Tofield Hospital Auxiliary so be sure to take it in.

Hospital on schedule

by Ken Kroetsch

Tender documents for the new Tofield Hospital should be completed by the end of this week and submitted to the Department of Hospital and Medical Care, said Donald Roth, hospital administrator.

Roth said that if everything goes well that the new hospital will go to tender by the tentative date of August 15 with construction starting as early as the middle or end of September.

Just prior to the start of construction there will be a sod turning ceremony, he said.

The new hospital, to be called The Tofield Health Centre, has been three years in the planning stages. The reason for the delay, said Roth, is that they took an innovative approach to the building to make it more functional and less institutionalized, said Roth.

Roth said at present there are 13 people working on the drawing for the new facility.

The new hospital is scheduled to be completed in May of 1985.

Roth said that the new facility is within budget and right on schedule.

The new hospital will be built in the Belvedere area and is estimated to cost $10,000,000.

The new hospital will house 90 beds; 40 for acute care; 30 for nursing home patients; and twenty beds for auxiliary patients.

Heritage day on Monday

by Ken Kroetsch

The second annual Heritage Day, Aug. 1, will be a treat to the eye, the ear and to the taste.

The Heritage Day will start at 4 p.m. with food and visual displays. The food displays will feature food from nine different countries.

From Japan there will be sushi, manju and kanten. From France there will be pork pie.

From Scottish descent there will be oat cakes and short breads, while from England there will be the traditional crumpet.

Other foods included on displays will include a German display, a Ukrainian display, a Scandinavian display, a Welsh display and a Hungarian display.

Visual displays planned are histories of the Lakeshore-McKenzie District, the Spilstead District and the Ketchamut District.

There will also be a pictorial display by the Salem Mennonite Church, a history of the 4-H in the area, a display by the hospital, a display by the library and an Australian display by the Boy Scouts.

At 5 p.m. there will be various demonstrations of heritage skills such as Ukrainian easter egg painting, the spinning of wool, hardanger (needle work), tatting, homemade ice cream and horseshoeing and harness making.

At 6 p.m. there will be the Heritage Parade of Fashions followed by a program of singing, dancing and musical performances.

Fashions in the Parade of Fashions goes back to the 1900s and up to the late 50s.

There will be several wedding dresses modelled with the oldest one made in 1925. Another feature of the fashion show will be a brides wedding night outfit, complete with cap and gown.

From the male section of the wedding fashions will be an early groom's outfit from the early 1900s, a frock with tails.

For the sports fans there will be baseball uniforms from the early part of this century.

Some of the entertainment features for the day are a German Bavarian Band, The Happy Wanderers, entertainment from Scandinavia, Aino Jensen and Edwin Erickson, and numerous other acts, such as Scottish and Ukrainian dancing.

Lakeshore-McKenzie reunion to be held this weekend

This weekend, July 30 and 31st, there will be trailers, motorhomes and campers gathering at the Tofield fairgrounds for a Lakeshore-McKenzie school reunion.

Registration will begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday.

The concession in the arena will be operated by the Figure Skating Club and will be open throughout the day.

The afternoon will be spent renewing old acquaintances and visiting.

An old country school display will be set up for the enjoyment of all and a large number of old photographs will also be exhibited.

A buffet dinner will be served at 5 p.m. followed by a short program and entertainment.

A dance and social visiting is planned for the evening, with a midnight lunch to be served.

Sunday morning will begin with a pancake breakfast from 8 to 10 a.m. followed by an 11 a.m. inter-denominational church service conducted by Rev. Peter Warkentin (a former student at McKenzie School). There will also be a choir made up of former students.

At noon a pot-luck lunch will be served, and at 1:30 p.m. the Beaverhill Light Horse Club will hold a gymkhana and a musical ride.

It is hoped that all former students, teachers and their families and any other friends or interested persons attend this reunion.

Everyone attending is also encouraged to remain in Tofield for Heritage Day on August 1.

User's fee

"Personally, I think a lot of hue and cry over a charge they don't even know about . . . what do you think?" wrote a senior citizen recently, as they turned over to us part of the most recent issue of the Alberta Council on Aging News.

The article refers to the stand taken by the Council, diametrically opposed to the user fee basis advanced by Health Minister Dave Russell, and re-iterating the Council's firm belief that "all services should be considered essential and must be universally available. It is the belief of the Council that services must be provided on a non-profit basis."

So many aspects leap out of the survey it's almost hard to know where to begin. To begin with, it's amazing that so many of the seniors, who prided themselves on 'building this country', of standing on their own feet, and so on, have become so socialistic as to think that all possible medical service is now 'essential' on a universal basis. These people used to think that only those who worked for them should enjoy such services. And insofar as non-profit is concerned, many of them have, over many years, and still are, among the best wheeler dealers we know of . . . they're willing to strike a profit anytime they can.

The article points out charges are optional in the individual hospital. Some have said they will not levy charges, which may indicate that Health Minister Russell is right in thinking there are ways of shaving costs. And when it is realized hospital costs have DOUBLED in only three years, it isn't hard to support Russell's concern.

It also points out the ceiling charges aren't mandatory. The hospital can charge 'up to' that amount. More than that, it exempts ALL children under six, and ALL seniors. That's more than one third of all Albertans. Even for those who aren't exempt, there's a maximum yearly charge of $150 per individual or $300 per family. That may impose a hardship on some, but it's far from the ruination costs of many American centres.

Personally, we think Russell is shouldering the blame for a situation he isn't responsible for. Right now, health is costing us one dollar out of every four the provincial government spends. Do we really believe it should be higher? Do we believe that taxes should go up? Or that we should rob the money from other services, so health can have more?

In ten years, from 1972 to 1982, hospital care went up three and a half times: from $66 per bed per day to $230 in 1982. They doubled in three years. Does anyone honestly believe that Mr. Russell can responsibly sit still and just watch them double again in about two years? Or that ALL services must be UNIVERSALLY available on a non-profit basis? Can people who built this country conscientiously demand this as hospital day costs rise to $460 per day in a couple of years? Surely they have all known friends or family members who spent themselves into poverty. Do they now, or does anyone else, really believe that's the direction society should be taking? Does even Madame Begin?

Patricia Young Says . . . . .

If any one thing tends to turn citizens off their government, it is the arrogant bureaucracy that it allows to grow up around it like fungus, and which is passed along to the next government with little or no hope of its reduction, no matter how well intentioned the new regime.

Needless to say, it is the hallmark of any socialist government, in its drive to manage our lives for us, to mange us by way of costly boards, bureaus, commissions and departments. In Canada, for instance, the Federal Civil Service increased from 380,000 in 1968-1970 to 383,826 in 1976-1977 an increase of 31 percent in eight years! An indication of this Big Brother mentality is made obvious in a 34 page booklet of instructions issued to Civil Servants of the Federal Transportation Department.

Would you believe that Big Brother finds it necessary to teach its children how to use an elevator — pointing out that only one button should be pressed! While Big Brother gravely points out that travelers should ride an elevator facing the door, it points out that males no longer need remove their hats in the presence of lady riders, nor permit them on or off first! Elsewhere we find Civil servants being instructed on how to care for the office potted plants, how to close the vacation blind and why they should refrain from depositing foreign objects in the toilet!

All of which tends to make one suggest their own additions to the expansive pieces of "literature." Like advising employees that the no-nose dispenser will be in operation on the 10th and 26th of the month in order to speed up distribution of pay cheques. Section E on government hair lightening will point out that the name of friendly clerk in order to assist employees when they need coffee breaks was due. It could well add the fact that a three hour commission on efficiency had resulted that clockwise sugar stirring saved one hundredth of a minute over counter clockwise stirring! As for the Post Offices Dept., they deserve a book of their own, perhaps starting with the advice to clear our overflow mail rooms at least once every three years! Incredible? Not on your life. They've already done a time study on our bathroom habits. So what comes next? Perhaps a new department of procreation with an appropriate staff to oversee and govern the what, when, who and how of population control and the breeding of a master race!

Past Time Pastimes

by Harvey Hawk

July 21, 1882— The first Commonwealth Conference held outside London, England was convened in Ottawa. The various Commonwealth leaders were trying to reach agreements that would increase trade between members, alleviating the many economic hardships caused by the worldwide Depression in typical political fashion, Canadian Prime Minister R. B. Bennett successfully elevated Canada to a new position of importance in the Commonwealth and increased the international prestige of Canada.

July 28, 1919— The International Nickel Company of Canada, known as INCO, was formed on this date. INCO was formed to exploit the extensive nickel deposits around Sudbury, Ontario. A CPR blacksmith, Thomas Flanagan, discovered copper and nickel in this area in 1883. His smelting techniques had been perfected to separate the copper from the nickel. Nickel had limited commercial value. However, World War One created the need for military vehicles and ships to be protected with armour, in which nickel was a vital ingredient. Also, new smelting methods allowed for economical extraction of the nickel.

July 28, 1891— The CPR announced return train fares from anywhere in Ontario to Western Canada for only $15.00. These fares were to attract men to the prairie to aid grain farmers in the annual harvest. Until combines became common farm machinery, around 1929, a large number of men were required to harvest the crop. In a short period of time, the grain fields had to be cut, stooked, threshed, and hauled to railway shipping points, before fall rains or frosts could damage the crops. In 1891, roughly 3,000 men made the harvest excursion. By 1928, over 75,000 men made the journey.

July 28, 1940— a document referred to as the Annexation Manifesto was signed by 226 of Canada's leading citizens. This document proposed that Canada should not only adopt the American system of government, but should seek political and economic union with the States. Ironically, J. J. Abbott, who signed the document, went on to become Canada's fourth Prime Minister.

Why pension reform concerns YOU

By W. Roger Worth

For the academics, economists, actuaries and government pronouncements, the catchall phrase "pension reform" has become a license to print money. The deep thinkers are the respected experts who get paid handsomely to solely manage statistics, telling us (in economic terms) how well off pensioners are, or conversely, that the elderly deserve a greater piece of the national economic pie.

The contradictions, of course, are veiled in the technical jargon used by the experts in the field, as well as the philosophical bent of the business, government or union group that is paying for the session.

Nevertheless, amid all the economic soul searching, we are now involved in a relatively unsophisticated process that will affect each and every Canadian workers and businesses will either pay more (or less) in pension premiums, while some of the elderly may get more (or less) as benefits.

So far, discussions about the government-pushed pension changes have mainly concerned the experts. Like a jury hearing conflicting interviews, "expert" psychiatrists giving evidence for opposing sides in an insanity trial, the government will eventually be forced to make a decision on the strength of opposing arguments. does the nation's pension system require fundamental changes, minor changes or should it be left as it is?

Clearly, Ottawa is seeking reform, and the business community has been forced to spend millions to prepare a response and participate in the debate. Here are some general questions that arise:

Should people be forced to prepare for retirement, or should they be allowed to do it voluntarily? Should there be an economic "means" test to decide whether individuals need more retirement money?

Is it the government's or the worker's responsibility to save for old age? If one person is frugal, and another a spendthrift, through their working years, should governments maintain the spendthrift's standard of living in old age? The endless list of questions goes to the very heart of our economic system, and the impact on both business and the general public will be far reaching

In fact, the outcome of the debate will affect the pocketbooks of virtually everyone in the country

Consider just one tiny example submitted to the Parliamentary Task Force on Pension Reform by the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, which represents 64,000 smaller firms across the country

The Federation quite rightly points out that doubling Canada Pension Plan Quebec Pension Plan contributions (an option considered as a government discussion paper) would crease great hardship for Canadian firms.

The problem: fully one-half of Canadian corporations earn no profit in a typical year, let alone in a deep recession.

So, if pension contributions doubled, and losses soared, it is perhaps fair to suggest that a goodly proportion of those firms would simply close up shop. Even those that are making money would have profits slashed, leaving even less cash for expansion

Jobs, of course, are the real issue, and the business community has been forced to spend millions to prepare a response and participate in the debate. Here are some general questions that arise:

Should people be forced to prepare for retirement, or should they be allowed to do it voluntarily? Should there be an economic "means" test to decide whether individuals need more retirement money?

Report from Parliament Hill

[illegible]
P.C., M.P.

Don Mazankowski, M.P. (Vegreville) has called on the federal government to act on behalf of the many Canadian farmers facing continuing financial difficulties.

"According to a survey conducted by Agriculture Canada 5 per cent of our farmers are [illegible]" said Mr. Mazankowski, "and another 10 per cent are in some difficulty". These figures were confirmed at a CFA credit conference this spring and mean that over 45,000 farmers have financial problems. Mr. Mazankowski also noted that farm bankruptcies were running slightly ahead of last year's record pace overall and were up 84 per cent in western Canada.

Farmers financial woes, resulting from low commodity prices, rising input costs and high interest rates are being compounded this year by the Farm Credit Corporation's lack of funds. The FCC, which acts as a major source of credit and refinancing for farmers, ran out of money in June and has been unable to make loans since then.

The Minister of Agriculture [illegible] ed Cabinet to allow the FCC to [illegible] private markets, but no decision has been reached yet. Press reports claim that while the Corporation has asked for $800 million it will only be allowed to borrow $250 million. If so, this will be of lit[illegible] that $250 million is already [illegible].

The Progressive Conservative Party has repeatedly urged the government to authorize the $800 million request and to provide a $100 [illegible] ensure an immediate supply of funds. "Without assistance from the FCC, many farmers will have trouble surviving" said Mr. Mazankowski in a letter to the Minister of Agriculture. "Already several cases have been brought to my attention and it is important that new funds be approved as soon as possible."

Mr. Mazankowski also reiterated that the government should implement the 10-point agricultural policy proposed by his Party this spring which included $100 [illegible] relief program and the creation of an agribond program to provide low cost farm credit.

New Lions' executive

by Ken Kroetsch

The new executive for the Lions Club in Tofield has been formed and have commenced duties, said new Lions President, John Zistel.

Bob Young has been elected first vice-president, Bill Flynn second vice-president and Jim Scesler as third vice-president.

Barry Harper has been elected secretary with Dan Sherek as treasurer.

The executive are elected to office for a one year term. Every year at the end of June new officers are elected.

The former president was Ed Laemmerts.

The Lions Club support and organize a lot of community events throughout the year, said Zistel.

The Lions, said Zistel, will be holding a skating queen contest over the next year, will be sponsoring the midget hockey team and will be holding two [illegible] the next year; one dance is to be held in the fall and one in the spring.

One project the Lions have to complete this fall is the raffling of the $20,000 sports car in October. The money for this project is earmarked right now for the senior citizens and the youth of the community.

Other events planned for the next year are a pancake breakfast on Mother's Day and on Father's Day.

The Lions will also be holding blood donor clinics throughout the next year.

Zistel said that the Lions will also be looking for a location to set up an outdoor skating rink for the children of the community.

The Town would be asked to [illegible] the rink, while [illegible] ongoing maintenance of [illegible] rink would be done by [illegible] Lions Club.

Medically Speaking

by Dr Bob Young

"When I stand up, Doctor, I fall down". A common complaint among older patients. The story is usually the same, after watching TV for an hour or so, or on rising from a bed, the patient staggers for a step or two and then blacks [illegible] briefly. A fall is frequently the result, either back into the bed or chair, or to the floor.

Usually the cause is orthostatic hypotension, from "ortho" meaning straight and "status" meaning standing. In crude translation, we have "standing straight low blood pressure".

Orthostatic hypotension is not a disease in itself, but a reflection of problems that result in difficulties in maintaining a normal blood pressure.

Although we tend to think of a knee-jerk or an eyelid blink when we think of reflexes, the body has a myraid of internal reflexes that serve to maintain a stable condition. It is the job of some of these to keep blood pressure normal or constant. Several things may interfere.

In our example, the person moved from a quiet state to an active one. Age has slowed his internal reflexes and his heart does not immediately speed up, nor does the blood in his leg veins quickly return to the heart.

The pressure and amount of blood going through the brain diminishes quickly and a fainting spell results. These episodes can usually be avoided by moving about in the bed or chair before rising signalling the heart to get ready to work harder.

The reflex may be disrupted for reasons other than age. Many drugs, particularly those designed to lower blood pressure, but also diuretics and drugs used in psychiatry are frequent culprits.

Loss of blood due to hemorrhage, or due to pooling in the legs, is another cause. The "parade ground faint" is at least partially caused by this.

Reflexes usually require an intact nervous system and diseases that injure nerve pathways may cause orthostatic hypotension. Diabetes, pernicious anemia and Parkinson's disease are examples.

Any tendency to fall when standing warrants investigation. If it is due to a simple cause, it can be helped. If it is due to a more serious underlying disease, early diagnosis is beneficial.

Medically Speaking is published with the cooperation of this newspaper and the Alberta Medical Association.

PRIMARY TEETH

Primary teeth are the key to your child's dental future.

Far from being useless because they fall out, baby's first teeth can be the most important teeth of all.

The main function of the primary teeth is to maintain the space for permanent teeth. In addition, they help the child speak properly, help permanent teeth find their proper positions and promote the proper growth of both jaws.

Baby teeth that are neglected could mean they are lost prematurely to tooth decay. The loss or premature extraction of primary teeth, particularly the molars, can cause a loss of space in the dental arch for permanent teeth creating what dentists call "malocclusion". This could result in the need for orthodontic work later.

One of the primary causes of tooth decay is the night-time bottle. Any liquid given in the bottle overnight that stays in the mouth, lying against the teeth, will cause decay. Juice or even milk can combine with the bacteria in the saliva in a child's mouth to form an acid which will stick to the teeth and cause decay.

If milk or juice are harmful, sweetened fruit drink mixes or pop are a dental disaster.

Another culprit in early decay is the pacifier. Never dip a pacifier in honey, jam or any sweet substance — it too can cause primary tooth decay.

In addition, the suction in the use of pacifiers can cause malocclusion as well. This suction causes the forward movement of the front teeth and bone. While dentists don't generally recommend the use of a pacifier, if you must use one, try an orthodontic pacifier.

Cleaning should begin once the primary teeth are in. The first few teeth can be cleaned with a soft cloth or gauze pad by just rubbing the teeth. In the first year the parents should brush the child's teeth daily to ensure that decay causing plaque is removed. The child should also be allowed to play in the mouth with his toothbrush. This play will get the child used to the action of cleaning the teeth.

Proper early dental hygiene will accustom the baby to a clean mouth and help motivate the child to develop good oral hygiene habits that should last for life.

The group of 26 Boy Scouts and leaders from [illegible] departed from Hay Lakes at 5:30 a.m. on July 22 amid many fond farewells. A close bond had been formed between the boys and their host families.

A short visit was also made to the Miquelon Funland. Shopping trips were made to Camrose and Edmonton. An evening at Miquelon Lake with sport activities, films and a wiener roast was enjoyed by all.

The host families agreed the visit had been a very rewarding experience. Although many of the Swiss Scouts knew [illegible] little [illegible] they were soon able to communicate with their host [illegible]

A number of Hay Lakes residents attended the supper and social [illegible] at the home of [illegible] Kiel in Edmonton on July 23. The occasion was Mr. and Mrs. Kiel's 25th wedding anniversary. Walter Bussenius had been a best man at their wedding while Conny Nordin had been the flower girl. During the evening films were shown of the wedding activities 25 years ago.

Conny Nordin Kimball of Vancouver is spending 12 days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nordin. Joanne Hawkins of Vancouver also spent one week at the Nordin home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Melvie and two sons of Kitimat, B.C. were visitors to Hay Lakes on July 25. John enjoyed reminiscing with former neighbours.

The Kingman Lakers Midget team participated in a men's fastball tournament at Round Hill during the weekend. Teams entered were from Killam, Round Hill, Kingman Seniors, two teams from Bon Accord and the Kingman Lakers. With superb pitching by Kevin Ekdahl the Kingman Lakers defeated Bon Accord and Round Hill to advance to the finals against Killam. '82 census adopted

by Ken Kroetsch

Tofield Town Council has decided to adopt the 1982 census rather than accept the 1983 census, in their regular meeting of council this week.

The new census had been down this year, said Neil Brodie, Tofield town administrator, the reason for adopting the old census.

Brodie said the town had the option of accepting the new census or adopting the old one. Because grants are given on a population figure it was decided to adopt the higher census, said Brodie.

Alberta Municipal Affairs require a confirmation of population for grants prior to September 1 of each year.

The 1982 census gives the population of Tofield as 1500.

In other council business, council reviewed the Northwestern Utilities Franchise Agreement with delegates from Northwestern.

Council asked the representatives that there be written in a clause that compaction be done on every trench or hole dug on a street in Tofield.

Council was concerned that this had not been done in the past.

Northwestern representatives said that if this had not been done then the Town only had to ask and it would be done.

Council felt that the present clause was ambiguous. One councillor said that they didn't want to have to hire a lawyer to interpret the clause if the situation arises.

Northwestern representatives said that the clause was put in place to protect both the interest of the community as well as the interests of the gas company.

The gas company asked the Town to submit wording for changes to the clause and if it were agreeable then it would be inserted in the present clause.

The Franchise Agreement between the Town of Tofield and Northwestern Utilities has been renewed every ten years since 1953.

In other council business a delegation from the Tofield Library Board were in to discuss a conflict in present library policy.

With 45 per cent of the Library users from the County the Library Board did not feel that it was fair for town people to carry the majority of funding for the library through taxation, while county residents were not contributing anything for the service, other than a fee.

A letter had been sent from the Library Board to the County of Beaver requesting funding, but to date there has been no response, council was told.

Possibilities were discussed by council and the delegation into a possible County of Beaver Library Board being set up that would benefit library services throughout the county.

Another alternative discussed would be higher fees for county users to make their share more on par.

One councillor said that it only made sense that if county residents were not supporting the library through taxes then they should through higher library fees.

The Library Board will be in the near future sending out letters to Library users in the county explaining the situation.

In other council business Town Foreman, Ernie Duchesne, reported that 26 block of tarring had been done and that there were 27 blocks in the old part of town left to be done, and the Belvedere section of Town.

He said if good weather persisted that tarring could be completed in approximately two weeks.

District news from Ryley

by Lena Reil

Sorry — I left out of last weeks news, that Magnus and Agnes Helgeland of Sandnes, Norway were visiting with Siguart Helgeland and brother of Magnus and other relatives. They enjoyed visiting Kathleen, a cousin, who played a Norwegian number on mouth organ and accordian.

Siguart drove them around Dodds area, to Tofield Hospital to visit Sylvia Zawitkoski and then he picked up his cousin Lena and drove out to Aunt Margaret Helgeland for supper and visited there with Signar and Martin as well, son's of Aunt Margaret's and a lovely visit with Magnus and wife and there was picture taking.

Emma Reil of Whonnock, B.C. spent a couple days in Ryley last week, visiting with Dagny Joines and was a lunch guests with her brother-in-law Ezra and wife. Elvera who was at Ezra's for dinner was happy to have Emma return home with her for a few days.

Congratulations are going out to Doug and Brenda Stefera who are the parents of a baby boy, Ryan Douglas born July 22. Grandparents are Louis and [illegible] and John and Patsy Jeffery.

The class of 1973 held their tenth reunion at Shaw Community Centre July 23. After a pot-luck dinner, there was a scrub ball game and lots of visiting. Then in the evening they held a wiener roast. Some reunioners came from Edmonton, Camrose, Westlock, St. Albert and the Ryley area. They all attended school in Ryley.

Mrs. Eldora "Zook" Hartzler of Kansas City, wife of Marion Hartzler, attended school too at Solberg and she enjoyed meeting some of the school mates.

James and Sharon Reil of Victoria, B.C. left for home last week. The mosquitoes certainly did not appeal to them but they did enjoy meeting so many relatives.

Ryley buildings, power poles, etc. were really a spotted mess with all the moths that came in during Tuesday night.

The men are busy putting on an addition to the Senior Citizens Centre.

Ruby and Pete Humka of Tofield, Stan and Ida Humka of Ryley south were guests with Edward and Mary Vergatta in Edmonton on Sunday.

Vegreville holds crops day Aug. 4

A tour of weed science, plant pathology and entomology research plots will be the highlight of a crops field day that is scheduled to take place at the Alberta Environmental Centre in Vegreville starting at one p.m. on August 4.

In the plant sciences wing of the centre, the scientists are conducting in-house and field experiments to obtain information on the cultural and biological control of weeds, diseases and insects. This wing also provides a diagnostic and advisory service to the public in the areas of weeds and their control, suspected chemical damage, plant diseases and insect damage.

This year Drs. Fayaz Quershi, Paul Sharma and John O'Donovan have established about 3,000 field plots where they are studying such newly registered and experimental herbicides as Glean, Lontrel, Hoegrass II, Poast, etc. They are also studying the tolerance levels of new cereal crop varieties to registered herbicides; the tolerance levels of rotational crops to herbicide carryovers; the biology and control of economically serious weeds like scentless chamomile, hempnettle and smart weed; and the competition in field crops provided by wild coast tartary buckwehat, smartweed, stinkweed, green foxtail, volunteer cereals and volunteer canola.

Plant patholgist, Drs. Prem Kharbanda and Gil Flores, are now studying the control of seedling blight in canola crops and the control of root rot in lentils, wheat and barley. The scientists in this section are also investigating the resistance of alfalfa varieties to alfalfa sickness and the spread of alfalfa sickness. And entomologist, Dr. Helen Liu, is assessing the impact of flea beatle damage and root maggot feeding in canola crops.

In addition to the research plot tour, the crops field day will feature an excellent collection of 80 species of weeds. They will be displayed in a "weed garden" and will include the more common and some of the new weeds that are found in Alberta. There will also be a display of research plot equipment and a demonstration by Marilyn Steiner on the bioloical control of insects on plants grown in green houses and indoors.

In the event of bad weather, the scientists will be making their presentations in the Alberta Environmental Centre.

Leduc becomes city

On Sept. 1, 1983 the Town of Leduc will become Alberta's 13th city, Julian Koziak, Alberta Municipal Affairs minister has announced.

"This change in status is an important step in history for the Town of Leduc. It reflects the municipality's continuing growth as a stable and mature community," Mr. Koziak noted.

To qualify for city status, a municipality must contain at least 10,000 residents. Leduc, approximately 18 km south of Edmonton, has 12,471 people according to the most recent census.

With its incorporation as a city Leduc will be responsible for establishing its own school authority. It will receive title to and manage all roads within its jurisdiction, excluding Highway 2, which Alberta Transportation will continue to administer. And finally, the municipality will now become eligible for the urban transportation assistance program package.

After the city's first election this fall Leduc will be able to establish its own wards and its own council members.

PRE-HARVEST UPDATE

We thought it would be of interest this year to organize a few sessions related to harvesting. Hopefully August 9th is early enough to avoid harvest work, and a day from 10 a.m. to about 3:30 p.m. will get farmers home in time for chores. The Update will be held at the Holden Community Hall.

Harvesting — When do I cut my rapeseed? Ellis Treffrey of Alberta Agriculture will speak on "The proper swathing times for rapeseed under normal and abnormal conditions." He will also discuss fall control of perennial weeds.

The Conventional Combine versus the Axial. — Warren Tolley, of the Machinery Institute (better known as PAMI), will introduce the PAMI program and discuss the present evaluations being done on combines. Both the conventional and axial machines will be analyzed with respect to capacities and principles of threshing.

Taking off wet again? — Come and listen to Brian Kennedy of Alberta Agriculture as he speaks about drying and aerating grain. Brian has researched the pro's and con's of both natural and heated air drying. Questions will be welcome.

Farmers have rights and responsibilities when purchasing machinery. Some of these are not known by many of us. The implications of the Agricultural Implements Act will be explained by Allan Krahn, Alberta Agriculture.

The day will contain some very current information. We encourage your attendance and hope the topics will be useful to you. Please be sure to call our office (663-3666) to pre-register.

FIELD DAYS, TOURS, BUS TRIPS

In addition to our Pre-Harvest Update, there are numerous field days and tours coming up.

On August 4th the Alberta Environment Centre in Vegreville is holding its annual field day. It begins at 10 a.m. The resource people will discuss and display their research and plot work on weeds, entomology (insect study) and pathology (plant diseases).

The Agriculture Canada Soil and Crops Substation in Vegreville welcomes farmers to its field day August 9th. The day begins at 10 a.m. with information on Harvesting Strategies — straight combining versus swathing and combining. The Agricultural Implements Act will also be covered in this program. The afternoon session involves touring plots from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Zero tillage, winter wheat plots, herbicide demonstration, cereal varieties and diseases, and the use of annual forages will be viewed.

A field day is also being organized in Vermilion. The Seed Growers Association and Alberta Agriculture are sponsoring a tour of new cereal varieties and their performance in the region. A plot of fibre flax can be seen as well as various forage varieties. This is an afternoon program from 1 to 4 p.m.

Please Pre-Register!

There is little overlap between the field day agendas and the material covered is very applicable to our area. Please give us a call if you are interested in one of the days or even a portion of the day. If there is enough interest we will organize a bus load from the area.

For making arrangements we'd like to hear from you by August 2nd.

Also, for the Pre-Harvest Update, please pre-register by August 2nd. Call the District Agriculturist Office at 663-3666.

COMPOST PILE
PART I

The word "natural" seems to be a favorite these days, seen in advertisements for everything from hair colouring to potato chips. It's only natural, then, that backyard gardeners are turning to composting — Mother Nature's way of making fertilizer. Today's compost heap makes use of the process of decay and regeneration that goes on everywhere in nature.

Compost simply is well decomposed organic material which improves the soil's structure and contributes necessary nutrients to the soil. Composting the materials speeds up the decomposition process, using the bacterial growth that breaks down plant and animal matter. Compost systems can be as simple or elaborate as you choose, but there are a few general guidelines to follow to make composting easier.

Pick a flat location that has reasonably good drainage. A shady spot is preferable because too much sun will dry out the pile too quickly. The pile should be within reach of your garden hose for easy watering. The heap also should be close to your garden, easily accessible, and protected from the wind.

Composting can be done in a commercial composter, in a home-made box or in a heap on the ground. Keeping compost in a container makes it easier to build and maintain, and prevents rich moist materials from blowing around the yard. Containers can be made from bricks, concrete blocks, wire or wood. Use a wood that resists decay (cedar, redwood or cypress) or treat it with a wood preservative. One of the sides of the bin should be removable so that you can reach the pile to turn or remove compost. Remember to allow air into the container to nourish the bacteria; leave some space between the boards or bricks, or drill a hole to allow the air to circulate. Don't put a floor on the bin; organisms crawling through the soil beneath the pile are necessary to the decomposition process. The container's top also should be open to allow rainwater to moisten the mixture.

The size of the pile will depend on your garden's area and on the amount of material that you have to compost. A common size is a four foot square about three to four feet high. If you need more compost than this, two small piles may be easier to manage than one large one. Keep the top of the pile level; do not build it into a mound.

After you have chosen the site and constructed a bin you are ready to begin creating the pile. Spring is a good time to start, so that the compost will be ready for a fall top dressing, but a pile can be started anytime you have a good supply of compost material.

FOOD FOCUS AT THE FAIR

"What do judges look for when rating my entries?" I am often asked. Below are a few general guidelines, taken from the publication, "Judging Standards for Foods, Sewing and Handicrafts."

In the baking classes we look at the appearance, for uniformity of size and a pleasing color. Most baking should be fine textured with small even cells and a soft and appetizing texture. The flavor, lightness, moistness of a product are all very important.

When entering several buns or cookies on a plate, pick items similar in size and shape and colouring. Judges look for this.

Canned goods should be presented in clean, attractive jars, neatly labelled. Fruit should be as close to the natural shape and color as possible, and free from blemishes. Judges look for a proportion of ½ liquid to ½ fruit pack. And of course the flavour must be pleasing, not too sweet or mushy.

If you are entering sewing and handicrafts this year evaluate the item against these criteria-function, design and craftsmanship.

The final function of the article will determine appropriate materials and methods of construction. For example, wool children's clothing should be made of washable materials.

The design of the article must be related to the function and structure of the article. A dress with fine detail work is probably more suited to fabric with a smaller design than fabric with a bold print.

Lastly, craftsmanship is considered. What skills and ability are exhibited by the craftsman in the article. Stitches and tension should be even, loose ends tucked in and edges appropriately finished.

Hopefully we all enter the competition with an open mind and realize that it is a judges opinion and the quality of the other competing entries which decides how an entry is rated. We can't always win, but there is satisfaction in showing work to others and contributing to a community show.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

On the new book table this week, look for a novel of the macabre, by Les Daniels called The Black Castle, set during the Spanish Inquisition. A new mystery by Eric Wright, chosen for the Collins Crime Club is The Night The Gods Smiled. Written by a Canadian author, this story is set in Toronto, and introduces a new detective, Inspector Salter. Also for mystery readers is a collection of short stories by Agatha Christie, including one not previously published. The Agatha Christie Hour includes whodunits as well as light romantic occult thrillers and horror stories; these stories have been selected for a major television series.

Further paperbacks in the Paul Kropp Series Canada have been put out, as well as a selection of new picture books for younger readers. Area crops need warm, dry weather

by Shanleigh Cowgill

While the area has had relatively dry weather in the past week, many Alberta Wheat Pool crop reports indicate crops are still suffering from excess moisture and warm, dry weather is needed.

Crop development on low-lying areas is poor due to flooding and many crops in such areas are badly damaged.

Crops in the Round Hill area are suffering from excess moisture and a cutting date has not yet been estimated. Crop development is fairly high with 80 per cent of the wheat and 75 per cent of the barley heading, and 80 per cent of the canola blooming.

West of Camrose in the Rosalind—Daysland areas has been flooding is indicated and cutting dates have been set by the end of August and early September.

In the Rosalind area 10 per cent of the wheat and 30 per cent of the barley is heading and 100 per cent of the canola is blooming. In Daysland 90 per cent of the wheat and 80 per cent of the barley is heading and 100 per cent of the canola is blooming.

North of Camrose in the Tofield—Ryley—Holden area the surface moisture is great and the area had a large amount of rainfall in the past week.

Most areas indicate excess rain and the fields have been too wet and muddy to spray.

In the Tofield area 70 per cent of the wheat and 80 per cent of the barley is heading and 100 per cent of the canola is blooming.

In Ryley 75 per cent of the wheat and 85 per cent of the barley is heading and 90 per cent of the canola is blooming.

In the Holden area 90 per cent of the wheat and 80 per cent of the barley is heading and 70 per cent of the canola is blooming.

Echoes from Em

Here's a ten-year-old boy's essay on "The Cow"

"The cow is a mammal. It has six sides. Right and left and upper and below. At the back it has a tail on which hangs a brush. With this she sends flies away so they don't fall into the milk.

"The head is for the purpose of growing horns and so her mouth can be somewhere. The horns are to butt with and the mouth is to moo with.

"Under the cow hangs the milk. It is arranged for milking. When people milk, milk comes and there never is an end to the supply. How the cow does it, I have not yet realised but it makes more and more."

Zion Lutheran Church marks 80th anniversary

Zion Anniversary

A good spirit prevailed at the Zion Lutheran Church festivities July 2 and 3, when about 200 attended. Saturday evening Ed Knudson, congregation president, welcomed everyone. Quite rain and muddy roads the Chapel was filled. Seven floral bouquets graced the altar in memory of pioneer parents. The theme — thanks to God for Our Inheritance — was prominent for family and friends. Solo by Marlene (Hellekson) Burchill, special music by the Zion choir Band and the Emmanuel Band accompanied by Peggy Bratrud as soloist. Singspiration led by Jeanette Knudson, duet by Ida Gunerson and Clara Hovland. The guest speaker Rev. Alfred Tynestaal of Naicosta, Sask., former reverend here. Closing remarks by Rev. Lee Woolery, Bawlf. Fellowship and lunch in church basement.

Sunday services 10:30 a.m., a nice sunny day when about 250 attended. Vocal selection by the Ladies Trio, Larraine and Bonnie Hellekson and Delores Bratrud. Scripture reading by Rev. Lee Woolery. Solo for family and friends. Solo by Marlene (Hellekson) Burchill, special music by the Zion choir Band and the Emmanuel Band accompanied by Peggy Bratrud as soloist. Singspiration led by Jeanette Knudson, duet by Ida Gunerson and

At 2 p.m. Rev. A. Ingebergesen, Camrose, our former reverend brought a message "Memory" — Singspiration by Jeanette Knudson. Two hymns, one in Norwegian by the Middy Choir. Then it was the old timer's who sang when George Mosby Sr. was the choir leader in 1910 years. Through his efforts, the choir continued as an inspiration for many years. Anniversary cake room compomed and read by Mrs. Evelyn Mosby, followed by remembrances by Dr. Ben Lokken, Calgary (former teacher at Earling). Lawrence and Arnold Haveland, Selma Bratrud, Thelma Dorin of Innisfail, Ed Knudson and Mrs. Malinda Roth, Camrose, the oldest confirmed member present, who paid tribute to three pioneer brothers, Mrs. Ludvig Haveland, who made her home 60 long years, Mrs. Hans Hansby, who cooked at her wedding and her aunt Mrs. Ole Roth who was organist at her home wedding Lena was also organist at Zion Church for many years in the early days, driving five miles with horses and buggy or sleigh.

TWO OLDEST MEMBERS

The two oldest pioneer ladies of the church, Mrs. Lillie Bjerkseth of New Hilda and Mrs. Rachel Johnson Mohler, Camrose, were present and were presented with a history booklet and church plate, also to Rev. and Mrs. Lee Woolery going soon from there when her parents were missionaries in China.

Congratulatory greetings were read from President S. T. Jacobson, Saskatoon, Sask., Rev. Sigmer Skalee, Rev. Palmer Olson, Rev. Bruce Harshbarger and Malvin and Elsie Magnuson of B.C.

SPECIAL GUESTS RECEIVED

On behalf of Bawlf Lutheran Church, Lyle Ergo presented a potted fern plant in a stand; on behalf of the Studenessa Church, Elmer Bruce presented a picture of the "Last Supper"; on behalf of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Haveland and late Oscar Haveland, a kitchen clock, presented by Mrs. Clifford Ferre; another clock and sheet for the church was a gift from Arnold and Nellie Haveland. A cash donation from the Ludwig Haveland family surrounded by Ingvid Haveland, and a cash donation in memory of her parents, the late Tom and Bertha Bratrud, presented by Mrs. Thelma Dorin. Also a cash gift from Mrs. Anna Kongsrud and family in memory of her parents, the John Reuno's.

The Zion Congregation was organized March 14, 1903 at the log house with sod roof at Harold Bratrud's at Earling and continued to serve as a place of worship until the schools were built. The first church was built in 1913 and was destroyed by fire Dec. 31, 1925. The second church was built on the present site in 1926. The L.C.W. organized in 1908. On Oct. 11, 1983, Rev. Vas conducted the first confirmation service, confirmants were Ole and Martha Stub, Alfred Stenerud and Anna (Sandvik) Bratrud. In 1933 the first mortgage burned. Asael Evenson and Mary (Olsen) Stuarie.

Folks present for the 80th anniversary were from Calgary, Lethbridge, Burdette, Innisfail, Three Hills, Moorhead, Minn., Everett, Wash., Fairview, Grande Prairie, Beaverlodge, Valhalla Centre, Sask., Bruno, Wainwright, Wetaskiwin, Dawson Creek, B.C., Chase, B.C., Clayton and Naicosta, Sask., Langdon, Camrose, Bawlf, Holden, Ryley, Ohaton, Killam, Stroma, Tofield, Kelsey and Round Hill.

It should be mentioned that there are two sons of the church, Rev. Sandford Sorgen and Rev. Leserne Haveland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bertel Haveland, and a great-grandson of the late Ludwig Hove'land, a charter member.

Two girls baptized Bjerkseth and her sister, the late Olive Bjerkseth, served as Missionaries in Africa. Annette, now retired, resides at Three Hills.

Over the past 80 years the Zion Church has been carried on by families of the first Charter Members and is now into its fifth generation.

Pool tournament

by Ken Kosmuk

In a pool tournament it is an unwritten rule that to win a trophy and prize money a person has to win several matches against his opponents to win.

In the Legion Posters #91 pool tournament last weekend Tom Kenno of Camrose was an exception to the rule.

Kenno, second placer in the C Event, winning a trophy and $75 cash, without winning a match in the entire tournament.

It's probably one of those things Hell never happen again," said Kenno.

Kenno lost his first match, placing him in the C Event. Because of an odd number of players in the C Event, Kenno was given a by.

Fifteen players in the C division slated to play Kenno the second day of the tournament didn't show up, giving Kenno two more bys, to place second in the C Event.

In the A Event Doug Murray of Ledue placed first, winning a trophy and $400 prize money.

George Watson, of Red Deer, pic ked second, winning a trophy and $250 prize money.

Barry McCaghery, of Red Deer, placed third, winning a trophy and a 25-foot measuring tape.

Vic Gouhalt, of Tofield, placed fourth, winning a trophy and a Coleman water cooler.

In the B Event Bob Knispert, of Jasper Place, placed first, winning a trophy and $100 prize money.

Vic Welch, of Camrose, placed second, winning a trophy and $125 prize money.

Wally Parker, of Bonnyville, Calgary, placed third winning a trophy and a combination screwdriver.

Tom Thomson, of Jasper Place, placed fourth, winning a trophy and a screwdriver set.

In the C Event Charlie Hallet, of Tofield placed first winning a trophy and $100 prize money.

Tom Kenno, of Ledue, placed third, winning a trophy and $75 prize money.

Gord Hennig, of Ledue, placed third, winning a trophy and a screwdriver.

Dutch Goubalt, of Tofield, placed fourth, winning a trophy and a screwdriver.

First out in the A Event went to Danny Lenehan; in the B Event Vern Shapley; and in the C Event to Dick Hallet.

The Legion trophy, for the Tofield Legion member who placed highest in the tournament, went to Charlie Hallet.

A floral wall plant was given to Kim Rose, of Camrose for being the only women entered in the tournament.

There were 46 people entered in the two-day tournament, with some coming from as far as Calgary.

The tournament is one of two held in Tofield during the year, one single and one doubles.

Ryley Fair set

Plans are almost finalized for the annual Ryley Fair to be held next Thursday (August 11) at the Tofield Curling Rink and Community Hall.

Sponsored by the Beaver Heritage and Agricultural Society, the Fair has become a popular event, giving people a chance to view some of the talents of local craftsmen and produce of crops and gardens.

Last year's Fair drew more than 1,000 entries, with a great variety of items including fresh baking, sewing, school displays, crops and handicrafts of all types.

Items can be entered from 9-12 a.m. in the Ryley Curling Rink on August 11. The entries will be judged between 12:30 and 4 p.m. and the displays will be open from 4-8 p.m.

There is no charge for entering exhibits in the Fair, and since the Danish system of judging is used, each exhibit is awarded a ribbon.

Rules and guidelines for entries are found in the Fair booklet, which is available at Ryley Foods, Ryley Vendor, the District Agriculturist's Office in Ryley and Aspen Textiles in Tofield.

Also included in the fair booklet is an outline of the evenings activities which start at 4:30 p.m. with the Children's Pet Show.

All types of children's races will go at 5:30 p.m.

The gymkhana will be held at the gymkhana grounds at 6:30 p.m.

Those handy with a hammer can try their luck in the nail pounding contest at 7:15 p.m.

The annual tug-of-war pits the strength of Ryley South against the might of Ryley North at 7:30 p.m. The fair closes with draws and presentation of awards at 7:45 p.m.

The Ryley Community Hall will house the commercial displays. As in past years local businesses and organizations will display goods or sell their items.

Registration forms for commercial displays are available inside the back cover of the fair booklet.

Throughout the evening the concession will be open and a cold plate supper will be available as well.

Everyone is welcome to enter exhibits in the Fair or participate by attending.

There is no charge for attending the Fair.

Bruce has 69th rodeo

by Ken Kroetsch

The weather was sunny and dry as cowboys from all over gathered for the 69th annual Bruce Stampede.

It was estimated, by one of the stampede committee members, that there were approximately 5,000 people through the gates, slightly down from last year.

The weekend got underway on Saturday with a gymkhana.

Trophy award blankets were awarded for high points gained in each category.

In the Ladies' High Point Marilyn Thomas, of Edmonton was awarded a blanket; in the Men's High Point, Jess Fields, of Ardrossan; in Intermediate High Point, Lois Reiko; and in the Pee Wee High Point, Jason Bray, of Sherwood Park.

Following the gymkhana events was team roping. A trophy buckle was presented to the winners by the Stampede Association.

First place went to Shane Bucks and Brenda Amundsen, second place went to Bill and Darwin Ulley, third place went to Bill and Ken Chahalis, and fourth place went to Wayne Thirsk and Jerard Shostak.

There was a fireworks display at 10:30 p.m. followed by the dance at the Bruce Rec Centre.

At midnight Leann Kraus, of Holden was crowned the Bruce Stampede Queen. The runner-up for the Queen was Carrie Pryzus, of Daysland.

The Queen for the Stampede was chosen from the four contestants by the one that had sold the most tickets.

Winners of the Queen ticket contest were Shawn Hack, of Edmonton, winning $500; Trudy Erickson, of Bruce, winning $300; and Nicole Brisnard, of St. Albert, Ellen Collison, of Bruce and Kevin Kryzanowski, of Holden each winning $100.

Vandals active

by Ken Kroetsch

There have been several vandalism complaints reported to the RCMP in Tofield over the past few weeks, said an RCMP constable.

In one of the most recent cases, three youths were apprehended in the act. Police had suspected that something could be happening and had staked out the area.

In another instance vandals spray painted graffiti on the inside and outside of the new

Reunion is held

by Arnold Jones

Handshakes, hugs, kisses and smiling faces was the norm at the Tofield arena and Fairgrounds last Saturday and Sunday as about 600 people gathered for the Lakeshore-McKenzie School Reunion.

Visitors at the reunion were from British Columbia, Ontario, Michigan, Quebec, Texas and Egypt.

A large number came from points in Alberta, from Foremost and Tilly to the south, and Athabasca to the north.

Present at the reunion were several members of the Lennie and Saver families, who had left the district more than 50 years ago.

The Ferguson Family, with 25 in attendance, had the largest number of family present.

After visiting all afternoon, a buffet supper was enjoyed.

Following supper a program, emcee'd by John Warner, featured histories of the two school districts.

Doris Brown gave the Lakeshore history, while Ron Goeglein presented the history of the McKenzie District.

Ethel Moss presented a reading of events from keepsakes of early days in both districts.

These speakers had done research at the Provincial Archives, a storehouse of information.

The final speaker of the evening was Rev. H.B. Ricker, the United Church Minister in Tofield from 1946-1951.

. . . in Tofield

The last event of Saturday evening was an old-time dance, enjoyed by all. Music was by Ray and Vern Peterson, Don Tiedemann and Rasty and Arnold Jones.

Sunday morning began with breakfast, with John Johnston and crew (also the suppliers of the buffet supper) flipping pancakes.

At 11 a.m. a church service was held with Rev. Peter Wackenin as pastor.

Peter is a former student of McKenzie School. A choir, made up of former students, was also a feature.

Heather Rudycki was the organist for the service.

After a pot-luck dinner and a gymkhana show by the Beaverhill Light Horse Association, the gathering broke up.

Good food!

There were several kinds of ethnic foods to choose from at the Tofield Heritage Day. For a small fee visitors to the displays could sample foods of Japanese culture, the Welsh culture, the French, the Mennonite culture, the Ukrainian culture, the Scandinavian culture and the English culture. —Photo by Kroetsch

What kind?

Dissatisfaction with the role of the Canadian Senate is increasingly leading to discussion over what the role of the Senate actually should be, how it should be selected, how large or small it should be.

One of the more interesting discussion papers recently came from Canadian Minister of Justice, Hon. Mark McGuigan, in which he shows a number of the suggestions which have been made, and several of the alternatives which do present themselves.

Mr. McGuigan's paper shows plainly that the Government has determined that the Senate MUST be reformed. Indeed, Mr. McGuigan himself poses the question why, and answers it with the terms of reference given a special joint committee of the House of Commons and the Senate charged with finding ways of reforming the Senate "... in order to strengthen its role in representing people from all regions of Canada..."

What is not seen is whether reform is to be accomplished before Mr. Trudeau steps down, whether indeed, this is to be the last jewel in his crown.

The document does make clear that while it is hoped to strengthen the role of the Senate, not too much power can be given it ... it must not reduce the power of the Commons, or obstruct the House of Commons and the government.

There seems to be a good deal of misunderstanding, even by Mr. McGuigan, or else deliberate misuse of words, when he suggests the Senate might prevent Parliament from taking decisive action ... after all, the Senate is just as much part of Parliament as is the House of Commons. Too often the point is forgotten, even by Mr. McGuigan. And if the government's "decisive action" were indeed slowed by the Senate, perhaps it really should be slowed. Perhaps the Senate could do what the Opposition couldn't achieve.

The paper was published in June with the hope of stimulating discussion, and suggests Senators could continue to be appointed, could be elected directly by the people, or could be elected indirectly, through a process involving the provincial Legislature and the House of Commons.

Insofar as direct election is concerned, it suggests a variety of methods, such as the simple plurality, presently used in federal elections, or a variety of methods of the preferential or transferable vote. Another question is the length of term, and Mr. McGuigan declares that it seems generally agreed, at least if the system of appointment continues, that terms should be shorter. (In other words, there should be more opportunities for rewarding the faithful.)

Whether their term should somehow co-incide with that of a federal or provincial government (and fall with them) or run, such as the Australian, for six year terms, how many should come from where, and more such questions provide some highly interesting thought.

Curiously, it seems to us, the whole effect is to contrive a Senate which would be more representative of "the people", whether it followed change with each change in provincial government, and yet one which would be no more of a problem to the House of Commons, and the government in power, than is the case today.

If that's all we're going to achieve, then we might as well wrap it up and forget the whole thing. Canadians have indeed for years looked for change, have looked for a Senate with some real role, some real sense of duty, responsibility and integrity, some real opportunity to contribute to legislation, not just a rubber stamp lending the aura of democracy to the actions of an autocratic (at best bureaucratic) regime.

The variations are certainly legion. The number of questions is almost incredible. Mr. McGuigan's "paper" to the joint committee opens the matter for discussion, publicly, for the first time in many years. Something is almost certain to come of the discussions, and judging from Mr. Trudeau's haste in several actions in recent months, it may not be long in shaping up.

Contributions that any of our citizens have would undoubtedly be welcome, and might indeed, help in gauging public opinion or in shaping discussion and decision.

Red Deer tackles the press

In what we assumed was a free country, even local politicians are reaching for powers to stifle and regulate the press, to erode freedom itself.

Red Deer last month passed an outrageous bylaw making it an offence for newspapers to publish advertisements announcing store openings on Sunday and holidays.

It's not bad enough for Ottawa to cook up an autocratic proposal for a government "advisory" council to hear complaints about newspapers, to overrule newspaper press councils if it wished, to "research" the press, and to monitor "journalist practices." Now this.

The Red Deer Advocate will appear in provincial court August 9 to answer a charge it illegally published advertisements for five stores saying they would be open on July 1, Canada Day.

The newspaper will contest the charge. "This is an attack on the freedom of the press," says Advocate publisher Gordon Grierson. "We should not be asked to decide to contemplate whether someone intends to break a law," he added. Most advertising laws, like the federal law on misleading and false advertising, places entire legal responsibility on an advertiser — not a publisher.)

It is one thing to charge someone for breaking a law. It is quite another to also charge a newspaper which indicates someone might break a law.

Even if a store decides not to go ahead with an advertised Sunday or holiday opening, a newspaper which carried ads announcing a store's original plans can still be charged.

The bylaw appears to go beyond a newspaper's advertising columns. A newspaper which comments in its news columns on Sunday and holiday openings may well be charged with contravening the bylaw. And a newspaper which publishes a letter to the editor about such openings may also be charged, together with the letter writer.

Red Deer's outrageous little bylaw big lights how intimately our freedom is linked with that of the media. Freedom of the press is nothing more than the freedom of speech of every Canadian.

This tin-pot bylaw will be vigorously opposed until Red Deer city council either rescinds it or the law is tossed out by the courts.

Each of us responsible says Palliser president

Can we determine the future of Canada's economy, asks Ron Simpson as he discusses the topic A Future for Agriculture. President of the Palliser Wheat Growers Association, Mr. Simpson goes on to point out the McDonald Royal Commission hopes to do just that ... determine the future ... in a three year project which was begun on Saturday, June 18th.

A series of workshops was held across Western Canada to seek out areas of concern to Canadians, says Mr. Simpson. The Saskatchewan meeting was held in Regina and predictably, Saskatchewan's agricultural future received a good deal of attention the sessions held in the University.

Farmers, farm leaders, agrologists and agri-business people brought forward some serious and thought provoking issues. Soil degredation, future export markets, unfair subsidization of other exporting countries, continuing oversupply, lack of price-cost support, and lack of secondary industries were identified as immediate concerns to Canada's ability to improve its economy through agricultural profits.

Overriding these immediate concerns was a common thread. There exists in Saskatchewan an information and research gap. The average farmer knows how to grow it but is sadly lacking in the in-depth knowledge which would allow him to become more adaptable in times of economic stress, as there is today. There is information about soil conservation, work is being done on developing nitrogen fixing wheats, other countries have marketing tools so they can make decisions. But in Canada this appears to break down before it reaches the farmer. It is this breakdown which leaves us caught at the mercy of world conditions. It is this gap which will keep us from moving strongly into the future.

The Commission workshop did not come out with any short term solutions. It did, however, come forward with a concept which should last well into the future. Farmers must begin to play a greater role in initiating changes and improvements to agriculture. Through more research and information programs. Through better understanding of the industry as a whole.

It will be interesting to see where the Commission will proceed from here and whether we as producers will accept the challenges the future brings. Whatever the course, each one of us must bear the responsibility for leaving a future in Western Canada for our children. Sitting together and working out our mutual goals is a good start.

Patricia Young Says .....

I like the story of the tourist who stopped at a gas station on his way to a big city. Lighting up a cigar, he asked the attendant what the people in the upcoming city were like. The gas station attendant smiled as he filled the mans tank: "What were they like in the city you just left?" The tourist shook his head and said bitterly: "They were a bunch of pigs. Mean, selfish and very unfriendly."

The attendant smiled knowingly. "Ah, you'll find them exactly the same in the city ahead." And the tourist drove on, muttering darkly about the state of the world.

Strangely enough, the next tourist to stop at the gas station, asked exactly the same question and again the attendant enquired how he had found the last city. The tourist smiled broadly. "Oh, they were just fabulous people. "Friendly, generous and cooperative. I was sorry to leave, but I have business up ahead." The gas attendant smiled knowingly. "You don't have to worry, sir. You'll find people just like them in the city coming up!"

The point, of course, is one of attitude; the manner in which our own attitude colours everything we do, see or feel. The negative thinker saw only what he was looking for — the miserable, selfish and unfriendly. The optimist was the winner inasmuch that his attitude drew out the best in his fellowman.

Not that we should bury our heads in the sand or believe like the three monkeys who saw no evil, heard no evil and spoke no evil. Such an attitude indicates the mentality of a floor mop! Yet the therapeutic value of optimism is not to be overlooked. Two people might suffer the same loss, financial disaster or health problems and the positive man will do better every time.

Health notwithstanding, attitude is determined by a free will. Because negativism is a degrading, corrosive "disease" the positive personality must refrain free from the doom and gloom merchant lest it destroy his own spirit or cause the flame of his desire and hope.

In essence, the optimism aims high, knowing that he may fall short of his goal. The pessimist shrugs, and knowing that he might fall short of his goal, doesn't even bother to try. Like the two visitors who stopped at the gas station, our expectations are fulfilled to the same degree as our optimism or pessimism. It is up to each individual — to point to the stars, or stir up the stench of the gutter.

Disposal site sought

by Ken Knudsen

The County of Beaver has received a letter from the Department of Environment stating that a feasibility study is underway for the possible location of the regional solid waste disposal site.

The study will be undertaken by a consulting firm.

The regional landfill site when completed would be used by Ryley, Tofield, Viking, Holden and the County of Beaver.

The towns involved and the County of Beaver had a meeting July 28 to discuss the outlines of the study with the consulting firm.

The study should be completed by the end of November or the first of October.

In other council business it was requested that a notice be put in the paper informing county residents that the County of Beaver had contributed $6,000 towards the landfill site at Tofield, making it a joint facility between the County and the Town of Tofield, therefore available for their use.

The request came after ratepayers in the County of Beaver, feeling they were not able to use the facility, voiced their concerns to their councillor.

In other business, council passed a resolution that the Feed Freight Assistance Program be continued for 1983.

The past program expired in June of this year. A letter has been sent to Disaster Services for the County.

The program will have to be passed again in provincial legislation before it will be in effect again.

The objective of the program is to alleviate forage shortages where normal supplies have been seriously reduced by drought.

In other business, council established the low income cut-off at $8,000.

This figure will serve as a guideline for the county assessor, with the possibility of adjusting the figure up or down, depending on circumstances.

This means that farmers must not over $6,000 from farm production, on a parcel of land of more than 20 acres, to qualify for farm status.

A request from the Tofield Municipal Library for funds was discussed.

Councillors Hjordis Armitage and John Warner were appointed to investigate the situation and to report back to council at a later date.

Ryley news

by Lena Bell

Bill and Gladys Lambrecht of Dawson Creek visited with Gladys' mother, Mrs. Margaret Helgeland and brother Eigner. Then, they all visited with Kathleen Anderson of the Lions Golden Manor. Mrs. Ruth Coupsell and Harry Pedrunsky were also callers.

Marilyn Campbell and her brother, Earl Hjelter of Calgary, arrived home last Thursday after a three-week holiday in England. They visited their uncle, Raymond Hjelter, wife and family.

Sorry no picture of my brother Marvin and his colts he loved was left out of the Helgeland history in the "Round Hill and District Saints The Pioneers." And it was Gerald Helgeland, who owned the machine "Cat", not Selmer.

A large crowd turned out for the Round Hill and District Saints The Pioneers which was a huge success. The visitors kept the kitchen workers busy making pancakes and frying sausage. The parade was enjoyed by all and many books were sold. Mayor Renack was the highest bidder for the large white lamb at the auction. "Pioneered". I was told $1,100.

The Ryley Alberta Wheat Pool elevators have really had the painters busy which makes the entrance to Ryley more attractive.

Seniors plan addition

by Ken Kreutzch

Residents of Ryley, as well as visitors, have probably noticed the new addition being built to the Ryley Senior Citizens Sunshine Club.

The new 24 ft. x 48 ft. addition will be the new activities room for the club, said Harriet Ruddy, club president.

The pool table, the shuffleboard and the darts will be moved from the older section into the new, said Ruddy.

Also to be included in the new addition will be floor curling, carpet bowling and discing. There will also be a physical fitness class and possibly square dancing.

The cost of the new addition is going to cost approximately $10,000. There is a $4,000 grant from the provincial government, while the rest of the money has been raised through the sale of ceramics, weaving, quilt raffles and bazaars, said Ruddy.

Also three students have been hired through the federal government Hire-A-Student Grant.

Ruddy said there is also a good turnout of senior citizens turning out to offer their volunteer work.

Throughout the construction period the senior ladies are serving a hot lunch at noon hours for the volunteer workers and a light lunch at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

The foreman of the construction job is a local contractor from Poe, Jesse Wolkman.

There are currently 60 members in the Sunshine Club, with the membership of the club open to anyone 55 years and older.

The present club was purchased with money collected from the members for a sum of $6,000. A New Horizons Grant helped to finish the inside and to furnish the building.

The present building had its official opening February 3, 1978.

Heritage Day is held

by Ken Kreutzch

There was good food, various demonstrations, displays and entertainment for everyone who joined the Heritage Day celebrations in Tofield.

The celebrations started with various ethnic foods.

From the French food display, for a small fee, visitors could taste crescents and cheese, tourtiers (meat pies), pumpernickle bread or tarte a'la fertouche (molasses pie).

The Mennonites had a food display, displaying platz, roll kuchen, rollkchen, bubbat and portzelky (New Year's cookies).

The Scottish booth had cheese and scones, oat cookies and shortbread.

The English display had coconut tarts, sausage rolls, almond cookies and crumpets.

From the Scandinavian display there were skrull, set sape, lefse, primost and sand bakkels.

The Hungarian display featured jellied pork, kifle, rassos and apple cake, while in the Japanese display there was maki sushi, age sushi, kanten, yokan, terri-aki, and manju.

There was a hospital display depicting the history of the Tofield Hospital since its inception in 1947. Various news clippings that have been saved over the years were on display.

A Welsh display featured banners, dolls, needlework, baskets and a history of the Welsh people.

The Tofield Gun Club had a display of guns from the fur and settler periods. Gun club member, Allan Warner, also demonstrated the loading of shells to passing spectators.

George Knudslien of Ryley had a harness and leather display. Knudslien does leather repairs of all types at his farm near Ryley. He repairs saddles, harness, shoes, women's leather purses and does chuckwagon harness for chuckwagon racing.

Though he has only been in business for the last three years, Knudslien said he had been raised with horses and harness, learning the trade.

Another demonstration was horseshoeing. Munro Coleman of Tofield demonstrated the art of horseshoeing.

Coleman said he has been shoeing horses since he was 15 years old, although he only does shoeing for a few race horses now. Coleman also makes his own horseshoes. He had on display some of the shoes that he had made.

The Boy Scouts had a display from their visit to the World Jamboree in Australia last year.

From Fiji there was on display a grass skirt and wall plaques. From Australia there were boomerangs, an Australian camp shirt and kangaroo skins. From New Zealand there were pau pau shells as well as other items displayed.

There was also a display from the recent French Boy Scout visit in July.

Another demonstration was a spinning wool demonstration by Shirley Wilkinson.

Wilkinson said a person can do a lot of things with wool. It can be spun, with the natural lanolin still on the wool, to make weather resistant clothing.

She also said that wool is a fire retardent.

She said that a lot of their wool is sent to a woollen mill where it is cleaned for batting or made into a long rope for spinning.

The Wilkinsons have 55 sheep on a small farm west of Tofield.

Martha Tiedemann of Tofield had an old fashioned kitchen display at Heritage Days. At her display, she had home-made ice cream.

On the wall of her display there was a flyer from the Geo B. Brace store, an early store in the 1930s. Royal City Brand Catsup sold for .23 cents for two tins, Berryland Orange Marmalade sold for .47 cents for a four pound pail, while peanut butter sold for .16 cents for a one pound jar.

Other displays included a display by the Ketchamoot School District, a doll display, with dolls from all over the world, a display by the Ag Society, a display by the Lakeshore-McKenzie School Districts, and an old-time bedroom display.

Alberta Culture also had a display featuring the Ukrainian Village.

There was the Heritage Parade of Fashions.

Dresses from the late 1800's to the early part of the 20th century were featured.

A fur cape owned by Roberta Bates dates back 100 years that the cape has been in her mother's family (the Dunns).

There were also nurses' uniforms featured that were worn in 1915 and 1937.

Baseball uniforms that were bought in Camrose in 1906 were also featured.

Dorothy Shewchuk modeled her mother's wedding dress, dating back to 1915.

In ethnic clothing, there were Loatians costumes, costumes from the Hungarian culture, Ukrainian costumes, Welsh costumes and Scottish costumes.

The whole evening was wrapped up with musical entertainment.

Some of the highlights of the evening were Gordon Kyle and his daughter, Leanne Peirce, with Scottish dancing and bagpipe accompaniment. Karen Willows of Sherwood Park doing Scottish dancing, Kochu Dombro doing an East Indian dance, Ukrainian dancing by Al Stotsky and his daughter and the Bavarian Polka Band by the Ottos.

4-H'ers return home

by Ken Kroetsch

4-H members from the area, 21 girls from the Viking-Holden area, and three boys from the Tofield area, returned last week from a ten-day 4-H exchange program to North Simco County in Ontario, said Audrey Pratt, County of Beaver 4-H Council secretary.

While in Ontario, the 15 4-H members toured numerous farms in the area, learning about farming techniques in the east.

Pratt said that members had a good time seeing a different way of life.

Other tours they were given were to Niagara Falls, Blue Pottery Mountain, where blue pottery gift ware is manufactured, and to the locks and big ships, where they lift the boats from one canal to another.

Now back in Alberta, the 4-Hers will be busy getting ready for the Ontario 4-H members who will be visiting from August 9-19.

The visitors will be given tours of farms of the area and will also be given tours of one of the local Hutterite Colonies, the University Farm and the Ukrainian Village.

Some of the visiting members will be visiting the mountains and Fort Edmonton.

The visiting members will be staying with the families of local members who were billeted in Ontario.

Exchange camp is set

by Ken Kroetsch

In August, 19 Canadians and 19 East Indians will meet for the first time at Hastings Lake for 17 days of orientation in the India-Canada exchange through Canada World Youth.

The Canadians, from all over Canada, will arrive in camp on August 14, said Russell Pope of Canada World Youth.

The East Indians will be arriving in Edmonton by plane on August 18. They will be greeted and welcomed by Canada at City Hall by Mayor Purvis on the following morning.

Late in the afternoon, they will join their Canadian counterparts at Hastings Lake.

On August 20, all of the participants will be back in Edmonton and will be welcomed at the Legislature by Connie Osterman, Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, said Russell.

After being greeted by the Minister the group will be given a tour of the Legislature Building.

Back at camp, there will be development of cross intercultural skills, community and international development and language training.

There will also be a work on male-female role in both the Canadian culture and the Indian culture. There will be a number of guest speakers on various related themes.

There will also be days where one day only Canadian language, culture and food will be done. On an alternate day, only the Indian way of life will be observed.

After orientation the youth will spend time in Camrose, Drumheller and Ponoka.

The CWY participant will be billeted in various homes in the communities involved and will be spending approximately 10 weeks in each community.

CWY is in its 13th year of operation helping to foster a better understanding between the different countries of the world.

Vandals active . . .

Senior Citizen's Drop-in Centre.

In another spray painting incident, a house had "No more cruise missiles" painted on it.

In Holden, a man's car was painted black, as well as his house.

Constable Terry Reimer said that a lot of youth in the summer are bored and looking for something to do. He said that, usually during the summer, vandalism is a little heavier because of the holidays.

In an RCMP pamphlet on vandalism, vandalism is broken into several categories.

Wanton vandalism is the most common type of vandalism that is usually committed by groups of youths or adults.

This type of vandalism is often referred to as a senseless crime or as an expensive joke or prank, but regardless of the motive there is damage done against an individual or institution, resulting in a criminal act.

In the pamphlet, it says that it is ultimately the consumer and taxpayer that pay for these acts of vandalism through higher prices and higher taxes to cover the cost of repairs to vandalised property.

Through an informed public and parent awareness in the community vandalism can be reduced.

"If you see your child walking out of the house with a can of spray paint you should see that he is going to do with it," said Reimer.

A lot of parents aren't aware that their children are involved in an act of vandalism.

The RCMP said that all of the above matters are under investigation and charges will arise from the incidents.

If you were to reduce the amount of sugar like a syrup in a jam recipe, the results would be more like a syrup than a jam. In canning fruit, reducing the sugar is not nearly as disastrous. Sugar is added to conserve the flavor, shape and texture of the fruit.

If fruit is packed with just boiling water instead of syrup, the fruit tends to become soft and has a wishy-washy flavor. However fruit packed in its own boiling juice may be satisfactorily canned without sugar.

To obtain juice of the best consistency, boil 1 cup of diced fruit with 2 cups of water. Cook a few minutes, mashing to extract juice. Strain well, bring strained juice to a boil and pour fruit in jar.

Apple juice or other mild, unsweetened juices can also be used for syrup and will add interesting flavor to your canning.

It is not recommended to add artificial sweetener to canned fruit before eating. The product can develop a bitter taste. Better to add sweeteners just before serving time.

Using honey or corn syrup are alternate ways of providing sweetness without the use of sugar. Mild flavored honeys are best for most fruits, pears and jellies.

An all-honey syrup is naturally darker than a sugar syrup. Such a syrup tends to darken the lighter colored fruits such as peaches and pears. However, the original fruit flavor is intensified.

Since honey is part water, it is necessary to cook the product in which it is used slightly longer in order to obtain the desired consistency.

For more complete instructions on canning fruits, contact this office and ask for the free publication "Home Canning".

IN MEMORIAM

POOKE— Tillie In loving memory of my dear wife Tillie our mother and grandmother who passed away Aug 3, 1978
A happy home we once enjoyed
How sweet the memory still
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill
We miss you more than anyone knows
As each day passes the emptiness grows
The tears we shed we can wipe away
But the ache in our hearts
Will always stay
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by husband John children and grandchildren 48c 5677

CHRISTIAN— In loving memory of Harry who passed away August 3 1982
Quietly remembered every day,
Sadly missed along life's way
—Ever remembered by Ann, Ianne & Pamela 48c-5678

Agribition a hit

by Ken Kroetsch

Over 500 entries were received during the Holden Agribition held last Monday at the Holden Arena.

Some of the exhibits of the Agribition were a school exhibit, horticulture, fine arts, handicrafts, baking and preserves, with exhibitors from as far away as Viking and Edmonton.

There was also a display by the District Agriculturist and a bread baking demonstration.

Also part of the Agribition was a farm show and a pet show for the children.

In the pet show there were goats, dogs, cats, rabbits, bantams, chickens and ducks.

Betty Tuason of Ryley, was given an award for the Individual Aggregate: The Tuason Family were given the award for the Family Aggregate; Leona Krause of Holden was given the Junior Award for under 15 class; Fred Tuason of Ryley, was awarded the Senior Award for the 16 and under class; and Ethel Brakstad of Holden, was given the Senior Award for the 16 and over class.

Judging for the Agribition was done by Elizabeth Davis, Anne Kowalich, George Hamchuck and Phil McKinney.

The day ended in total approximately 300 people attending a ham supper.

Families to get choice

... of bus routes

by Ken Kroetsch

The County of Beaver Council voted 4-3 to decided in favor of accommodating families involved in the Bruce bus route change to attend the school of their choice, either Viking or Holden School.

The decision came after there was confusion over how many of the families involved in the change actually [illegible] to go to Viking School.

Of the seven families involved, four have requested by letter that their children attend Viking.

As there is a two-mile stretch where the bus routes overlap, there would be no extra cost involved in the change.

A delegation from the Future of Holden School Committee had come to the meeting to address the bus route changes, and the permitting of a Minburn bus coming into the County of Beaver to pick up one family.

Addressing the bus route changes, delegate Bobbie Schweitzer said that she felt that the change had contradicted a policy statement made last March where the board had said that Holden and Ryley Schools would remain the same.

Schweitzer felt that by declining enrollment this was contradictory to the policy.

Concerning the Minburn bus coming into the County of Beaver, Schweitzer was concerned that letting Minburn come so far into the county would set precedent in other situations that might arise.

The school board said that if they made policy for one family they would have to make it for all. The Board said this would be a detriment to the county with more students coming into the county then are attending outside the county.

The school board said that the gentlemen's agreement with other municipalities is to the advantage of the council. The present policy will remain until there is a distinct disadvantage, then the board said it would be looked at again.

In other related business, a request by board members to draw up a resolution, to be taken to the annual Alberta School Trustees Association meeting, stating that students involved their own school jurisdiction, was dropped.

The selection committee for a new superintendent of the County of Beaver reported to the board there were 34 applications received for the position.

The selection committee met last Monday night to review the applications. They reported to the board that they were in the process of checking references and that they would be drawing up a short list of 4-5 candidates in the near future.

It was also suggested the contract for a new superintendent be looked at by the ASTA lawyer, Judy Anderson, before it is signed.

The school board is concerned about the Joint Use Facilities Agreement, with the Tofield—C.W. Sears Schools and Tofield Recreation and Parks, clause 10, which states that if the Principal or the Recreation Director felt that extra supervision was needed during a fun of fml day, or $100 per weekend may be levied.

The new clause was introduced because of problems experienced last year.

The board felt the new clause was ambiguous, leaving room for confusion.

The board stated that clause 10 be clarified before the agreement would be signed. The rest of the agreement was approved in principle.

In other business, the school board overturned an earlier decision that had cut funds for Principal conferences.

Financial support had been scrapped during recent budget cuts.

Reviewing the decision the board said that it felt it was important for the Principals to attend the Western Canadian Educational Administrators Conference to be able to stay on top of things in the educational field.

The board said a modified proposal would be acceptable which would either pay meals and accommodation or meals and mileage.

Tofield Fair set

Tofield's annual Agriculture Fair will be held on Friday and Saturday.

The Fair is sponsored by the Tofield Agriculture Society and has been an annual event for the last several years.

A change in this year's fair is that the deadline for entries is 2:30 on Friday afternoon, one-half hour before judging begins. Previously the entry deadline was one week ahead.

Entries in field crops, horticulture, handicrafts, kitchen crafts and photography may be brought to the Tofield Arena from 9:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. on Friday. A completed entry form must accompany exhibits.

Those entries will be judged Friday afternoon and open for viewing on Saturday from 10:30 to 7:00.

On Saturday, the horse show will start at 9:30 a.m. with saddle classes in the morning and performance classes in the afternoon.

Saturday afternoon will also feature a children's pet show at noon and a livestock show at 1:00 p.m. Entries for Saturday's shows are also being accepted until show time.

There will also be various displays for viewing on Saturday.

The school exhibits, which were judged at the end of the year, will be posted around the arena.

There will also be some commercial displays as well as some by local organizations.

A concession booth will operate during the day, with a cold plate supper available.

Following the day's events, an auction sale of baked goods, vegetables and other items will get underway at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are being sold on a hand-made quilt with the winning ticket to be drawn after the auction sale on Saturday.

Rules, guidelines and entry forms are found in the Fair booklet which is available at Aspen Textiles or the Bluethene in Tofield.

Everyone is welcome to enter exhibits in the Fair or view the exhibits on display.

Penny pitch

The Tofield playground program had a penny carnival last week in the vacant lot across from Town and Country Drug Mart. A good number of kids and curious parents showed up to take part

Sounding off

The dangers of expounding ideas without taking time for sufficient research were demonstrated remarkably clearly recently by continuing Alberta Liberal leader Nick Taylor when he raced to the support of the federal Liberal government (in a move rare for him) over the Medicare confrontation and castigated the Alberta government for not providing much greater funds to keep the Medicare system going.

To his embarassment, a short time later, Mr. Taylor quickly admitted he had not completely reviewed the entire provincial contribution, and that he had not been accurate in his denunciation. (In this respect, incidentally, we have always felt Mr. Taylor's occasional slips are honest reflections of his enthusiasm running away with his judgment rather than of previously contrived backroom distortions and manipulations.)

In the process, Mr. Taylor compared all of Ottawa's contributions towards Medicare with only some of Alberta's. In itself, this would be bad enough, indeed, unforgiveable on the part of a man aspiring to lead a party into government, but he failed to take any cognizance of the point that it was Ottawa itself which imposed, (for all practical purposes) the Medicare program several years ago, and which in recent years, unilaterally changed the entire program for the simple reason that it was costing too much.

Oddly, when provinces, such as Alberta, or Ontario, or some others, for that matter, try to argue the same way as did Ottawa, they're trounced on.

Whipping

A Court of Queen's Bench Justice in Calgary some weeks ago told a man he was lucky, when he was sentenced to four years in prison, that he didn't live in a period when punishment was more severe.

The man had pleaded guilty to attempting to rape a blind woman. Mr. Justice Hewbottam told the convicted man "There was a time when court had the power to order whipping for people like you." Another man, also convicted of attempted rape, was sentenced to three years.

It would sound as though the judge was disappointed at his inability to order a flogging as part of the sentence, and strongly we agree with him. Indeed, we have said several times it was a mistake to eliminate such punishment, and the time has come long since when it should be available to judges again. In all probability it would be used rarely, for the judges seem to be following the move of society generally to softer, less severe punishment.

Yet there are sometimes unusually despicable crimes wich seem to cry out for unusually severe punishment. And when two strong males (they're not Men) join to force themselves on a blind woman, such punishment should be available to the judge. He shouldn't be limited to declaring they're lucky to live in this day and age . . . their crime is no more modern, no less severe than it was in the days when whipping could be ordered.

Farms use computers

by [illegible]
Farm Business Management Branch, Alberta Agriculture, Olds.

If you think the world will pass you if you do not buy a microcomputer, think again — you might just be wasting your money by purchasing one. To avoid wasting your money, you should make sure that the computer can do what you want it to do.

An on-farm computer microcomputer can be used for:

Financial Record Keeping — these programs are the most numerous and the most varied. To choose one, you should look at your present accounting methods. Do you use single or double entry? Do you keep track of your inventories, different enterprises, capital cost allowance or income taxes? Since no program will do all these things, you will have to set priorities.

Physical Record Keeping — in this category programs for dairy and swine enterprises are the most commonly available. Those for beef (cow-calf and feedlot), straight grain, poultry and/or sheep enterprises are harder to find. You should be able to choose between at least three programs when selecting the most suitable one for your specific situation. You can use your manual system as a guide when making your selection, and be sure to pay close attention to the amount of data you will have to feed into the computer and the frequency with which you will have to feed it in. You might find the whole thing too much of a chore.

Planning and Decision Aids — the user of these programs has to put numbers into the computer that describe the conditions under which the decision has to be made. The computer will analyse the numbers and come up with answers. Examples of this type of decision analysis include cashflow projections, crop budgets, machine y cost calculations, ration balancing, tax forecasting, land purchase analysis, etc There are computer programs that are available, free of charge, from Alberta Agriculture and other public institutions, but beware! You must understand the kind of analysis that a particular program will do or it could be a case of "the blind leading the blind".

Communication — a microcomputer can provide most of the data and programs a user wants by communicating with a large computer. A large computer can be a storehouse of information on current market prices, weather, etc and it can also be a clearing house for electronic mail. For the person who has a microcomputer, all these services are only a telephone call away, but there are difficulties. They include such things as an unreliable party telephone line, the high cost of a large computer's time, long distance charges and the extra equipment required for communicating with a large computer.

Personal Uses — personal uses run the gamut from games to word processing to personal record keeping. It is very important to remember that a machine that is good for games is not usually good for keeping financial records or physical records or for planning and making decisions. In fact, there are very few computers that can straddle the fine line between being a games machine and being a business machine. And to try to upgrade a games machine is simply throwing money away.

How much will a microcomputer with the appropriate software (programs) cost? Anywhere from $3,500 to $15,000, depending upon the complexity of the software and the capacity of the computer. The cardinal rule when buying a computer system is to expect the software to account for 50 to 200 per cent of the cost of the computer itself.

Knowledge is your best defence against making a bad buy. The COMPU-FARM Newsletter is a good source of information, and it is available, free of charge, from the Farm Business Management Branch, Alberta Agriculture, Box 2000, Olds, Alberta, T0M 1P0. Another good source of information is the Agro-Electronics Show. It is sponsored by Alberta Agriculture, and will be held in Red Deer on April 15 and 16, 1981.

M.D. appeal is legitimate

TORONTO - A number of concerned calls are being received by the offices of the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada, questionning the legitimacy of a mailed appeal for funds, signed under the name of Ken Taylor, Consul General for Canada in New York City John Connors, executive director of the Association, today assured all 100,000 Canadians receiving the mailing that the appeal is indeed official, legitimate and issued by the national office of MDAC in Toronto Ken Taylor, former Canadian ambassador to Iran, is an honorary director of the Association and gladly consented to sign the appeal, Mr. Connors added.

Said Mr. Connors, "The mailing is the first of its kind to be initiated by the Association and was necessary to meet a recent, sudden rise in the number of new, adult muscular dystrophy registrations, increasing at the rate of 20 per week. For the second year running, MDAC has had to draw on reserve funds in order to meet increased patient service costs."

The Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada trusts that this newly identified and growing need to care for more Canmadians affected by neuromuscular disorders will reinforce the reasoning to respond positively to this special appeal.

"THANK YOU"

I wish to thank publicly all those involved with the organization of the Lakeview — MacKenzie Reunion.

It was a tremendous success, aptly expressed by a lady when she said "I'm so glad I came."

The large turn out speaks well for the districts involved. There had to be a real sense of belonging for so many to have come so far.

Although I was not in the area for long, I did appreciate the opportunity of meeting former students and renewing old friendships.

The warmth we felt among those attending will long be remembered. Thank you one and all.

Eileen (Child) Connelly
Red Deer, Alberta

Patricia Young Says . . . . . .

When I was in the third or fourth grade, the free for all of childish assertation often found me battling boy or girl for possession of a football, or in defence of a smaller brother. On one occasion, I actually had young Tommy on his back in the school playground, pummelling him to "take that back!" Suddenly, Miss Needlenose, not exactly our favorite teacher, came across us and hauled me off the chest of a struggling opponent. In no time flat, we were brought before the assembled school — and I was berated for daring to fight a poor little black boy!

I don't know who was most indignant, Tommy, teacher or the rest of the kids who, until that point, had seen Tommy only as another kid, free to share all the games, squabbles and struggles of our world of childhood. Teacher's misguided protectiveness introduced an awareness of race which had not hitherto existed.

I have met numerous Miss Needlenoses since — well-meaning souls, who, at the drop of a hat, will point to their own non-discrimination. Their best friend is always a Jew, a Catholic or East Indian. They somehow never get around to seeing the human race as just one species.

While the most knowledgeable of men will talk about "cultural conflicts" few will point to the basic flaw in human nature, or how this flaw is used by men who perpetuate their power by way of the "divide-and-conquer" technique. On one hand, we talk of the Global Village, more and more nations are being divided. From the days of Karl Marx idea of setting man against man in a universal "class warfare", we have seen the cultural conflict at work in churches, political parties and economic systems. Between the females revolution, Flower Power, Student Power, Black Power, and the "Gay" Liberation front, even the disabled have occasionally been marshalled as yet another pressure group.

The points is, left alone, man is not born prejudiced. He is trained and educated that way. Children do not see one another in class, colour or creed. The other youngster might be bigger, dumber or a faster runner, but they are equalized in the limitations of childhood. The trouble is, we cannot remain children, and in becoming adults, largely accept the vague and unwitting prejudices of parents, grandparents, uncles or aunts. Far better that we sit on those who are all too anxious to point out the differences in mankind and do more to live by The Golden Rule.

Schoolhouse delinquents

It always happens that when the Teacher is not looking that students like to fool around. This schoolhouse display was set up for the Lakeshore-McKenzie reunion held July 30-31. It was left up after the reunion for Heritage Day, August 1

Preserve by Freezing

Freezing is a fast, convenient way to enjoy garden vegetables year round.

To keep that garden fresh taste, it's important to pick, prepare and freeze vegetables as quickly as possible. Try to avoid letting the picked produce sit overnight before processing.

With a few exceptions, all vegetables require blanching before freezing. Enzymes must be controlled by blanching to avoid undesirable changes in flavor, color and texture.

When counting blanching time, begin timing as soon as vegetables are lowered into vigorously boiling water and the cover is placed on the kettle. Keep heat on high so that the water quickly returns to a boil.

Chill the vegetables immediately after blanching by placing the food in cold running water or water chilled with ice. Leave in the chilled water only long enough to cool the vegetables. Drain the cooled vegetables and pack into freezer bags or freeze on trays.

Packages should be frozen as soon as possible after packing. Doing smaller portions of vegetables at a time allows you to process them quickly and allows the freezer to freeze packages quickly.

For more information on blanching times, both on the stove and in the microwave, contact this office at 663-3866.

Are you considering changing your hay equipment?

The following article was recently printed by the Machinery Institute (more commonly known as PAMI). It's a good recap of the pro's and con's of large round and conventional balers. Purchasing a baler may not be in the budget this year, especially with the current hay situation. But the information may still serve as "food for thought".

As haying season progresses, many farmers are contemplating the purchase of new equipment and perhaps changing their haying system completely. Two basic types of haying systems are in common use: namely, the conventional rectangular bale system or the large round bale system. The Prairie Agricultural Machinery Institute is in keeping with its mandate to provide useful information to prairie farmers, has evaluated balers and bale handling equipment for both systems.

Phil Bergen, Agricultural Engineering Technologist at P.A.M.I's Lethbridge station, indicates that there are pros and cons to both systems and recommends that, "a farmer should make himself aware of all aspects of both systems before he changes from one system to the other".

Large Round Bales vs Conventional Bales

Rate of Work

Average workrates for conventional balers in alfalfa range from 8.8 to 15.4 tons per hour. Workrates for large round balers range from an average of 7.2 to 14 tons per hours. Expected increase in capacity with large round balers is probably reduced somewhat because of the need to stop the machine while wrapping the twine and ejecting the bale, whereas conventional baling is continuous.

Stacking

Mechanization allows easy handling of both types of bales. P.A.M.I. has evaluated numerous types of bale moving and stacking devices for both types of bales. Generally, conventional bales can be handled manually or with automatic stackers, whereas the size of round bales make manual handling impossible.

The shape of round bales is less conducive to efficient stacking in terms of space. Round bales are usually placed a maximum of three bales high, which requires a large amount of ground space to store large amounts of feed. Conventional bales, on the other hand, can utilize height and use less space per ton of hay.

A common practice in the prairie provinces is to store bales outside. In general, the less stack area exposed to weathering, the less hay spoilage will occur. The Machinery Institute recognizes a need for information on comparison of spoilage between conventional stacks and round bale storage. To this point, very little reliable data related to prarie conditions is available on the subject. Such spoilage research will hopefully be carried out in the near future.

Power Size

Conventional balers require a tractor with approximately 30 to 60 p.t.o. horsepower to adequately utilize the capacity of the machine. Round balers, however, require significantly larger tractors. P.A.M.I. recommends a tractor around 100 horsepower to fully utilize large round baler capacity under all field conditions. Although this horsepower is usually not required for actual bale forming, due to the large bale masses, the large tractor is required in hilly conditions and for improved operational safety.

Power Use

Large round balers use considerably less twine than conventional balers. Most conventional balers use, on the average, 250 feet of twine per ton. Large round bales, which only wrap the twine after the entire bale is formed, use an average of about 210 feet per ton, about 1/3 as much as conventional systems.

Leaf Loss

Under ideal moisture conditions, leaf loss with conventional balers was approximately 4 percent. Leaf loss for round bales was slightly higher, at around 5 percent under the same conditions. Losses varied among the three types of round balers. Soft core (fixed chamber) and hard core (expandable chamber) balers have similar leaf losses, while the ground roll type round baler showed significantly higher leaf loss, at about 13 percent under ideal baling moisture conditions.

Merchants win

Holden Merchants have won the championship of the Highway 14 Men's Fastball League.

Merchants faced Lindbrook in the best of three finals and won the series two games to one.

The first game saw Holden blank Lindbrook 4-0 with Lindbrook eking out a 4-3 decision with the Merchants blasting Lindbrook 15-1 in the deciding game.

Lindbrook had won the league pennant over the regular schedule while Merchants ended the season in second place.

In one semi-final series, it was an all-Holden match-up which saw the Merchants over the Revies while Lindbrook had eliminated Round Hill in the other semi-final series.

Playoffs opened with eight teams involved in quarter-final action.

Lindbrook eliminated Bruce while the Merchants ousted Spilstead, Revies had eliminated Holden Keggers and in an upset, Round Hill ousted Tofield.

More teams needed

by Ken Kroetsch

With less than a month away from the tournament, local organizers of the annual mixed slowpitch tournament in Tofield are concerned that a lot of local teams haven't confirmed that they are coming.

Teams from outside the area have confirmed that they are coming, Vegreville, the County of Lamont and Sherwood Park to name a few, but local teams haven't said they were coming, said Jackie Dumouchel, recreation director.

The cut off date for entries was August 1, but has been extended to allow local teams time to enter.

Dumouchel said if the organizers haven't heard from these people by the middle of August they will be forced to organize the tournament without these teams.

The Tofield Slowpitch Tournament will be a three-day tournament, September 2 - 4, involving 32 teams. The tournament will be played on the four ball diamonds at the Fairgrounds and will be sponsored jointly by the Tofield Satellite Hockey Club and the Tofield Triggers Ladies Fastball Club.

Prizes will be awarded to the top eight teams.

Concessions for the events for all three days will be provided by Beta Sigma Phi. This includes pancake breakfasts on both Saturday and Sunday.

There will also be a social in the Tofield Arena and a dance on Saturday night.

Teams not entered in the tournament that wish to can do so by contacting Doug Nachtigal, 662-3215 or, Rose Simpson, 662-2852.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

Have you taken advantage of the Library's reference services lately? If there is a line to a song that you just can't remember, or perhaps an argument on the rules of a game, or even a need to know certain dates in history, just call or drop in to your local library. Every library in the province of Alberta that has a telephone is connected to a large urban library reference service via a direct-line Zenith connection. This service is free and available during all local library hours. If we can't answer your question from our own resources, we have only to call on the Zenith line for you.

Is there a book you need or want, and the local library does not have it? If this is not a new publication, any library in the province can arrange to borrow it from another library for a short period of time. Some loans even come from other provinces, or the U.S. and in the majority of cases, there is absolutely no charge for the interlibrary loan.

The free children's films this week are Georgie to the Rescue; Millions of Cats; and Me and You, Kangaroo. The films are shown Friday at 2:30 and again Saturday morning at 11 a.m. Admission is free and preschoolers should be accompanied.

Don't forget to inquire about the new free-loan camera from Polaroid. A Sun 660 camera is available to library patrons for up to one week's use and all you have to supply is the film. Do Check This Out.

Trail ride is held

Katchemut Creek Family Horse Club held a successful trail ride on Sunday.

There were 24 riders and one chariot team on the ride which began and ended at Beaverhill Family Centre.

It was a fairly lengthy ride, mostly through bush and meadowland. Everyone enjoyed the nice weather and beautiful, mosquito-free, scenery.

Upon arrival back at the hall, the hungry riders were greeted with a supper of ham, potato salad, beans, pickles and watermelon, which was supplied by Sandy Robinson and Norma Smith.

Club members are reminded that there is another work day this coming Saturday from 10 o'clock in the morning for as long as you wish to work.

There is also a long-delayed "Seniors Day" coming up Aug. 21. This is the day the "55 and over" citizens will be honored by the club with special entertainment, as well as complimentary food from the concession booth. There will be a special costume class during intermission for the guests to judge.

Anyone needing transportation out to the grounds please feel free to contact any of these phone numbers for help or information: 662-[illegible]; 662-2346, or 662-[illegible].

Enns celebrate 50th

The family of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Enns of Tofield honored their parents on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary on the weekend of July 16th and 17th.

Many friends and relatives attended from as far east as Newfoundland and as far west as Vancouver.

Celebrations began Saturday afternoon with a barbeque supper at the Oscar Epp farm for all the relatives. Many of these brought campers and spent the night camped on the yard where visiting continued well into the night.

The dinner and open house in the Tofield Community Hall on Sunday afternoon was attended by over 200 friends and relatives.

Granddaughters Lisa and Becky and Cindy Enns were in charge of the guest book.

The honored couple and their special guests were ushered to the head table by a grandson Wade Enns.

Seated at the head table with Mr and Mrs. Enns were Mrs. Justina Neufeld of Chilliwack, B.C., a sister to Mrs. Enns; John and Louise Neufeld of Calgary, a brother-in-law and sister to Mrs. Enns; Mrs Susie Thiessen, a sister; and Nick and Frieda Enns, a brother and sister-in-law, all from Chilliwack. Also at the head table was Mrs. Katherine Wall, an aunt from Chilliwack.

Following the dinner, a program was presented by the family.

Ed, the eldest son, was emcee for the program.

A granddaughter, Lisa Enns, sang a solo, followed by a violin solo by a grandson, Terry Enns. Donna Enns reminisced about her grandparents. Carrie and Robert Jensen, grandchildren, sang a duet.

A son, Arnie of Newfoundland, gave a history of his parents' 50 years together.

A choir, made up of family and relatives, organized by Oscar Epp, sang a selection of the couples favorite songs.

The two flower girls, who were in attendance at their wedding were present. One of the girls, Mary Kope, played a guitar solo.

Rita Sokalski, a daughter and Nick Enns, a brother, gave appropriate readings.

Several guests who had been involved with the Enns' over the years, offered congratulations. Mayor Dr W.H. Freebury congratulated the couple, on behalf of the town.

To close the program, Wally Enns of Grande Prairie thanked all the guests who came to celebrate this special occasion.

A beautiful cake was made and decorated by a daughter-in-law, Erna Enns of Edmonton.

Granddaughter Janice Marshuk of Edmonton, decorated the wall behind the head table.

Mr. and Mrs. Enns have six children, all present for the occasion. They include Ed Enns and his wife, Erna of Edmonton; Bill Enns and wife, Lou of Edson; Verna and husband, Joe Sokalski from Vancouver; Arnie Enns and wife, Deanna of St. John's, Newfoundland; Wally Enns and wife, Clara from Grande Prairie.

They have 17 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. All were present except for one grandson, Doug Enns of Newfoundland.

Playground news

by Sydney Seaglen

A very successful and enjoyable summer is swiftly coming to a close for Nancy and I, down at the playground.

All that's left for us now is daycamp (which will be held next week) and our wind-up Field Trip to Edmonton, which will all be lots of fun I'm sure.

Playground will conclude on August 22 with our trip to the Valley Zoo and the Wave Pool for any kids who have attended the Playground Program.

We previously had thought that the program would continue until August 26th. However, Nancy and I have found we have paperwork and other jobs to do for the Recreation Department.

We still need more registrations for Daycamp by Friday. Just call the Recreation Office at 662-3269.

Also, we must have a positive indication of how many people will be going on the field trip, by the end of this week.

A reminder that there will not be any playground during day-camp week.

Her husband, James Vergette is formerly of Ryley, a son of Herbert Vergette who almost every knew She lives in Wetaskiwin.

Borghild Sundlie phoned the other evening from Sherwood Park telling me that her niece, Mrs. Myrtle Jendruck (nee Sundlie), daughter of Alfred and Olga Sundlie passed away suddenly on July 29 in St. Paul. She leaves to mourn her husband, two sons, one daughter, four grandchildren, and her mother who has been staying with them.

Anderson reunion held

Over 200 descendants of the pioneer Lutheran minister, Rev. Bersvend Anderson, gathered in the Bardo Community Centre over the July 1st weekend. They came from as far away as England, Missouri, Illinois, California, Washington and many points in British Columbia and Alberta.

Peter B. Anderson and his brother-in-law, Martin Finseth, were among the first homesteaders in the Bardo area, originally having come from Norway to Crookston, Minnesota.

At the age of 73 years, Rev. Bersvend Anderson arrived in Bardo and was one of the pioneer Lutheran pastors in Western Canada. He held his first services in Canada in a rough log cabin on November 3, 1894.

He travelled many miles to seek out his parishioners, often going 30 or 80 miles in a buggy or sleigh to perform his ministry. He died at the age of 96 years having served the Lord in Norway, the U.S. and in Canada for 76 years.

The Anderson family who lived in Alberta included Peter, John, Barbro (Finseth) and Ingrid (Aasmo). Other family members remained in the United States, and in later years, the family had lost touch. To the delight of all, a great-grandson, Richard Glenn and his daughter, Cora, arrived to join the reunion. Richard's uncle, Leif Nashe, unable to be present, sent a friendship plant to be enjoyed by all.

Cool weather and rain did not spoil the weekend activities which included a wiener roast and sing song on Friday evening. Saturday started with choir practise, volleyball games, visiting, enjoying the meals provided and in the evening, each family was introduced and another evening of song and fellowship followed.

On Sunday morning, the family joined the Bardo Lutheran Church community in Tofield for the worship service conducted by Rev. Gordon Hendrickson (great grandson of Bersvend).

Krysta Hendrickson (great-great-great-granddaughter) was baptised by her grandfather.

A choir composed of the Anderson family presented special music for the occasion. They were directed by Malcolm Finseth (also a great grandson of Bersvend).

The community was invited to join the family for their Sunday noon meal and the afternoon was spent in visiting old friends.

Killings in the County of Beaver

In the past few weeks, we have had many reports of killings in the County of Beaver. I would also like to say that Alberta Agriculture supports these killings.

Now that I have your attention, you are probably wondering what this crazy D.A. is talking about. Scentless Mayweed is the subject and the killings I am referring to are the actions of people, both farmers and town residents, against one of the most important weed problems we have in the County. Scentless Chamomile or Mayweed has been with us for a long time. However, in the past couple of years, wet summer conditions have accelerated the spread of this weed into areas that have been previously Mayweed-free. In our travels throughout the County we have come across many instances where people have been walking the ditches and pulling up Mayweed plants. I must say that I have a great deal of respect for these people as they obviously have an appreciation for weed control and fully realize the implications of allowing a few Mayweed plants to grow and set seed on the roadsides, ditches, and fencelines adjoining their land. They also realize that a few hours of preventative pulling will eventually save them many costly hours and dollars later on.

There are a few points of interest that may help these ambitious people in their fight against Mayweed.

1) During periods of rainy, cool weather, a Mayweed plant htat has been pulled up and dropped in the same spot can re-root itself and still set seed. This is why some people will hang the plants on a fence to dry, or collect them in a plastic garbage bag.

2) If pulled, some Mayweed plants will have varying stages of flower development, meaning that there will be flowers with mature seed (that may drop off when handled.) and flowers that have just blossomed. The trick is to catch the plants early. As well, blossoms can draw enough out of the stem to make the seeds viable even if the plant is pulled out. Pulling the blossoms off the plant will correct this problem.

3) When pulling the plants out on roadsides and ditches, recognition of the plant is usually by the white, daisy-like blossom. Plants that have not yet blossomed out could be missed and a follow-up on these areas would catch these plants in blossom, greatly increasing the effectiveness of your efforts.

Once again, congratulations to those people who are taking the time and effort to insure that Mayweed does not get established in their area. An effective Mayweed Control Program is greatly enhanced with the co-operation and efforts of these people.

Crops improve

The hot weather that prevailed last week has speeded up progress in growth of the 1983 crops.

Reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool indicate that crops responded quite well to the improved temperatures and that, as a result, harvesting in most areas will get underway sooner than had been indicated earlier.

Cutting of crops is now expected to get underway in the Daysland area in about two weeks' time and generally, cutting in most other regions is now expected to commence before the end of the month.

Heading of wheat and barley is either completed or just about done in most regions with blooming of the canola crop in about the same category.

Filling of heads (and canola podding) is more than one-half completed in most instances with ripening now in progress in just about every locale.

Moderate to heavy damage has developed as a result of weed growth that has prevailed as a result of the hot weather, in a number of regions.

Although wheat is either in a normal state (condition) for this time of year, or just below normal, most other crops are twenty to forty percent below a normal condition, although most have shown an improved condition during the past week's better weather conditions.

Rainfall during last week was normal with Hay Lakes being the only region not to report some moisture.

Since the first of May, rainfall throughout the entire region has been pretty general, ranging from a high of 326 millimetres (13 inches) in the Rosalind area to a low of 275 (11 inches) around the Hay Lakes area.

Most of the rain came during a two-week period.

Subsurface (top 15 centimetres) moisture ranges from a high of ninety-five percent in the Hay Lakes area to a low of sixty percent around Daysland while subsoil (from

Past Time Pastimes

by Harvey Shank

August 3, 1583 — Sir Humphrey Gilbert arrived at what is now Saint John's, Newfoundland. Gilbert was the leader of a British expedition that had a charter to find a colony in the New World. When Gilbert arrived at Saint John's, the harbour was being used by fishermen from Spain, Portugal, France, Holland and England. It is doubtful that they were concerned when, in a small ceremony, Gilbert claimed Newfoundland for Britain. In doing this, Gilbert established Britain's first colony overseas.

August 5, 1915 — Nurse and Matron of the Red Cross Hospital in Brussells, Belgium, Edith Cavell was arrested by German military forces. Cavell admitted to helping over 200 Allied soldiers escape into neutral Holland. Because of these activities she was found guilty of spying and shot by a German firing squad. Mount Edith Cavell in Jasper National park bears her name in remembrance of her sacrifice.

August 5, 1951 — Over 150,000 onlookers crowded around Niagara Falls to watch riverman William (Red) Hill attempt to go over Niagara Falls in a homemade craft. He was acclaimed as the best riverman because of his daring rescues on the river and his ability to navigate boats in the raging river close to the Falls. Hill had designed and constructed a special craft for this attempt. The craft was a cigar shaped barrel made up of strips of truck tire tubes lashed together by canvass webbing. Hill hoped that when the tubes were inflated they would cushion his fall and buoy the craft to the surface quickly after plunging over the falls. At 3:03 in the afternoon, Hill inside his crafts, tumbled over the Falls. Eighteen minutes later, at 3:21, pieces of Hill's craft began to surface. Niagara Falls had claimed another daredevil's life.

August 10, 1876 — Alexander Graham Bell successfully demonstrated the theory upon which the development of the telephone was based. Bell believed that "speech could be transmitted electrically through wires for a number of miles." To prove this, Bell completed a long distance voice transmission between Brantford, Ontario, and Paris, Ontario, a distance of 13 kilometres.

Farm manual used

Alberta Agriculture's Farm Management Data Manual has subscribers from every province in Canada and from countries like Australia, Germany, Korea and Japan.

The manual is not intended to be a publication on production, nor an encyclopedia, but contains information not readily available to most people. For example, it tells such things as the number of seeds per gram for different crop varieties, the family labor rates on dairy farms in Alberta, the incubation period for Guinea hen hatching eggs and much much more. And it tells where to find more detailed information.

Two volumes divided into four sections contain 700 pages.

The manual is updated periodically free. The manual is mainly used by farmers, but also has subscribers from government agencies, universities and colleges, banks, financial institutions and agri-businesses.

Further information on the Farm Management Data Manual can be obtained from Craig Edwards, Farm Business Management Branch, Alberta Agriculture, Box 2000, Olds, Alberta, T0M 1P0.

Rollerskating popular

by Ken Kreetsch

Rollerskating in Tofield drew 118 people out to take part in the activities last Monday evening, said Christine Kenny, member of the Tofield Fire Department.

Wheelies Family Roller Centre of Sherwood Park provided the music and the rollerskates.

Six people had to be turned away because there were no rollerskates available to them, said Kenny.

Kenny said that Wheelies had brought 185 pairs of skates along, but it was hard to know what sizes were needed.

"The first night is kind of trial and error," said Kenny. She said that, next week, the problem should be corrected.

An attraction for the children was Big Wheelie the Hippo, showing up later in the evening.

Rollerskating in Tofield is a joint effort between the Fire Department and Tofield Recreation and Parks.

The concession and admission, as well as supervision, is being done by the Tofield Fire Department.

Rollerskating takes place every Monday evening, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., throughout the month of August.

Video machines get Ryley council's okay

by Ken Kroetsch

Ryley Village Council approved a request from a local businessman to bring video machines into his business, at its regular council meeting last week.

The request came from Ed Schultz, owner of the Ryley Bottle Depot.

At the meeting, Schultz suggested to council that a minimum age limit of 16 years to use the machines would be appropriate.

Council passed a motion making the age limit for the use of the machines be 16 years and over, with identification.

Council had no objection to a request from the Alberta Ekiai to operate a beer gardens as part of their tavern.

Owners of the tavern had sought approval from council before going ahead with the project.

In other business, council approved a request for 10 village pins to be given to visiting 4-H members from Ontario.

A building permit was passed for a fourplex to be built on 54 Ave. and 50 St. The building is being built by Carl Nikolay.

Oiling program is set

... for county roads

by Ken Kroetsch

The work schedule for the 1983 oiling program for the County of Beaver was discussed and set at the regular meeting of council last week.

With county crews presently working in the eastern portion of the county, council decided the work would move from one job to the next closest job, rather than jumping around.

County work crews are presently working on a 14 mile section of road on Secondary Road 619, east of Viking.

After finishing this, the crews will move to the Hamlet of Bruce to put calcium chloride on the hamlet's streets.

From Bruce, the work crews will commence patch work on Secondary Road 855, south of Holden.

From there, the work crews will move to Kingman Road to complete the oiling projects for the 1983 year.

Concerns were raised in council over the present fencing policy set in the spring.

One problem is that only a portion of farmers want to put up a fence, wanting instead a work crew to do the fencing.

Another problem expressed by several councillors is the present policy concerning payment for the fencing done.

The present policy states that a farmer must set up the fence first and then have it inspected before payment is received.

Farmers have expressed to councillors that they shouldn't have to put money out of their pockets to put up fences.

On the other hand, council felt that they shouldn't be paying for fence that might not be put up.

Reeve George Kaudelien said it was a difficult situation and had been a grey area ever since he had been on council.

The problem was turned over to the Public Works Committee to look at the problem and see if a solution can be found to make amends to the present policy.

The present fencing policy will remain in effect until further notice.

A delegation of truckers were in to see council concerning gravel hauling in the county.

They wanted to know of council if the work could be divided equally among the truckers rather than one person getting 70 percent of the work.

The truckers suggested that trucks be owner-operated, jobs awarded according to seniority, a numbers system to be used and a limit of trucks that would be used by the county.

Council told the truckers that this had been a problem for some time in the county and that council didn't have a solution.

Council suggested that all the truckers get together in the County of Beaver and try to come together with a solution to the problem, to bring to council.

Council said they were open to any solutions to the problem and would give consideration to the suggestions made.

Because of heavy rains in the area, several drainage problems have become evident in the County of Beaver.

Reeve Kaudelien advised council that there were many drainage problems north, west, and south of Ryley that required attention.

Kaudelien requested that Alberta Water Resources look into the problem.

Councillor John Warner reported that the Beaver Regional Arts Centre hopes to be able to pay its own way this year.

Movie projectors, from the Ryley Hall, could be one possibility for added revenue.

Council plans to have someone in to the Arts Centre to see if the equipment can be installed.

In other business, council awarded fuel tenders for the 1983-84 year.

Imperial Esso was awarded a tender for lubricants and gasoline, while Gulf Canada was awarded the tender for diesel fuel.

It's donkey time

by Ken Kroetsch

This Sunday in Tofield the Tofield Fire Department and the Tofield Curling Club will meet in donkey baseball but, the real winners could prove to be the spectators.

This could be the case as both teams' victory will depend on the temperment of the donkeys.

Jim Smith Enterprises of Ostario, will be supplying the 11 donkeys for the game.

Three donkeys are positioned for baserunners, three for fielders and one for shortstop. These donkeys stay in position for both teams.

Four donkeys are used as baserunners for the batters, with the pitcher and catcher as the only players unmounted.

Players are not required to stay mounted but, must be mounted to participate in any play.

The bases are four-foot circles and a player on base must have at least two feet of the donkey within the circle to be on base.

A player in the field must take his donkey with him to recover the ball and then must mount it to throw the ball.

As the donkeys are trained to do things wrong the players find themselves in a fight of wills, which usually the donkey wins.

The batter, after hitting the ball, mounts his donkey and tries to race around the bases, depending on whether or not the donkey is willing.

If the batter fails in two attempts to get his donkey around the bases, he is out.

All told, it could prove to be an unpredictable game.

The game will be played on the big ball diamond on the Tofield Fairgrounds, at 7 p.m.

Knee-walking drunk

"Knee-walking drunk" is an appellation often attributed to someone well past normal levels of impairment, through alcohol.

And we would think that four times, more than four times, the legal definition of impairment can't be very far from that description.

So it comes as something of a shock to read that an Alberta judge levelled a fine of only $600, in the last several days, against a man who registered a blood alcohol reading of .34.

Scandinavians define a level of .05 as impaired, so Albertans play it safe by using .08 as the standard. Yet a reading of .34 . . . more than four times our standard of unquestionable impairment . . . almost seven times that of the Scandinavians . . . brings a fine of only $600.

The judge is reported to have told the accused "that reading is absolutely out of this world" and then advising the same accused he "had no business being in a vehicle or anywhere near a vehicle" in that condition.

In spite of all the fatherly advice, he would see the public weal being healed by administration of a fine. Of $600. Only a few times more expensive than it cost to get in that condition in the first place.

If the judiciary thinks so little of human life, if it thinks so little of overstepping the bounds, if it thinks that $600 translates into "absolutely out of this world" then what hope has society, what hope have the rest of us, what hope have other people of ever seeing their standards, their values, their codes accepted by the rest of the community?

The message seems clear. You can drive when you're far beyond accepted levels of impairment . . . anywhere . . . for a measly $600. And you can kill (if you use an automobile) for as little as $1,500.

Drinking and driving are acceptable. At least in our society today. Judges see it that way, so it must be okay. But woe betide you if you steal a loaf of bread from a 7-to-11 store. Heaven protect you if you lose your temper in a neighborhood fracas. All the saints come to your aid if you beat your wife, or cheat the library, or write NSF cheques.

We're not suggesting these latter aren't felonies . . . but on a scale of one to ten, compared with $600 for an alcohol reading of .34 and the potential for hazard that involves, we think society and the courts should be looking at small change.

Who to name?

1983 is election year within Alberta, when members of elected bodies face new elections. City or town or village representatives, county councillors, school officials, whether county, public or separate, all require new election mandates, and nomination day is only a little more than a month away.

It's hardly too early to wonder who will consider running again, who will throw their hats in from the outside, who the voters want, and who they might prefer to forget.

Public service can be extremely demanding, yet at the same time it can be highly rewarding. It can also be illuminating, as elected representatives discover they don't really hold all the power they thought they might . . . that they're hedged about with government regulations, with previous commitments, with financial limitations, with pure (and impure) personalities and personal likes and dislikes.

Yet the democratic system hinges on the willingness of some people to stand for their own beliefs, while acknowledging the rights of others, to accept responsibility for attempting a course of action, to act with integrity on behalf of the larger community.

We would hope, too, for representatives who would be prepared to conduct public business in public, rather than behind closed doors. Indisputably there are times when doors should be closed, when personalities are being discussed, when sensitive financial situations are under review. But we also know . . . from experience . . . that these cases are the exception rather than the rule, that the public weal is better served by having opinions and opinion makers out in full view. We'll drink to that. We'll also vote for it.

No Threat

Dear Sir:

In late May, the Director of Public Affairs of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, Roger Wroth, wrote a column on "Admail" that received wide play in the weekly press.

We at Canada Post Corporation disagree with many of the assumptions and arguments contained in the article.

Attached you will find an article written from our perspective which, we think, answers many of the comments made by Mr. Worth.

If your publication ran the Worth column, we would be grateful if you would consider running ours in the interest of fair play and journalistic balance.

Thank you for your consideration.

Yours sincerely,
Frank Hilliard Manager
Media Relations Unit

Mr. Hilliard's letter follows:

Canada Post Admail no threat to Community Newspapers

The accusation by Roger Worth of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business that Canada Post Corporation is somehow out to ruin the nation's smaller newspapers should really be ignored. It is wrong-headed, mean-spirited and factually incorrect.

Unfortunately, this attack has been distributed to the very newspapers Worth claims are the victims of the Corporations Admail policy.

When you are accused of beating your mother with a blind man's cane, the problem is knowing what to say first.

Probably the first thing I should emphasize is that we are not promoting advertising ventures that will leave, to use Worth's expression, "smallest papers . . . the hardest hit".

Consider this. Over one half of the members of the Canadian Newspaper Association have free distribution as a result of "free area" distribution by Canada Post for some weeklies (2nd Class Mail — Rate Code 2). Newspapers within this free area can distribute 2,500 copies, including advertising inserts, flyers, etc. at no charge. Copies beyond the 2,500 limit can be mailed for as little as 4.2 cents for 200 grams.

Compare this to the basic Householder Mail rate of 5.8 cents for 50 grams (11.5 cents for 200 grams). Clearly it just isn't correct to say the Post Office offers advertisers free distribution through the mail.

What is accurate is the statement that Canada Post, directly and indirectly, helps subsidize and support small newspapers across Canada.

Given that, there is still the matter of why Canada Post is in the Admail business. According to Worth, "highly paid postal employees (are) promoting advertising ventures and compete directly with other media in the real business world." The fact is, Admail predates the existence of many smaller and larger newspapers and currently supports an extensive direct marketing industry in Canada that employs approximately 40,000 Canadians. This industry in 1981 sold about 500 million dollars worth of products and services. If this doesn't sound like the "real world", what is?

It is also what we are mandated to do by Parliament. The Canada Post Corporation Act specifies "the Corporation in carrying out its objects, shall have regard to the need to conduct its operations on a self-sustaining financial basis." Because of this, Canada Post and its employees are attempting to increase revenue by making available to Canadians the various services they are able to offer.

That's why we at Canada Post are pleased that Admail currently generates 28 percent of our volumes and 11 percent of our revenue. In doing so, Admail helps, substantially, towards paying the cost of operating a national mail service.

Perhaps this is the worth that Worth fails to understand. His column implies that public money, "government subsidized staff", is somehow not the public's money. He notes, for example, that Canada Post is directly subsidized "by the government" for $400 million. Well, it isn't government money, it is your money and mine that currently pays the post office deficit. And [illegible] our corporate [illegible] with better [illegible] and better service, is to reduce that taxpayer subsidy to zero.

If we can do this by promoting Admail while still helping small newspapers with low-cost, or no-cost, rates, that should please everyone.

Worth says Canada Post President R. Michael Warren and his fellow executives should be "ashamed" of themselves for promoting Admail. No, not ashamed, proud.

They are proud of the continuing improvement in on-time performance, which was up 4 percent in the first quarter of the year. They are proud of improvements in the speed of international mail, faster by a [illegible] cases. They are proud of the introduction of new services, such as EnvoyPost electronic mail. They are pleased at the improving financial and service picture of this great national institution.

Of course much has still to be done to improve and strengthen Canada Post, but a start has been made. Admail will help in achieving the Corporation's goals and we will continue to promote it.

I hope that community newspapers and the public generally will support this effort, because both benefit now and will benefit in the future from an improved financial position for Canada Post Corporation.

Past Time Pastimes

by [illegible]

August 11, 1931 — Most Canadians take our rights and freedoms for granted. However, cases exist in Canada where these rights and freedoms were ignored. On this date RCMP raided Communist Party of Canada headquarters in Toronto and arrested Communist leader Tim Buck. Although the Government had no evidence of illegal activities by Buck, or the other seven arrested Communists, it was fearful of the growing support for the Communist as well as increased militancy by unemployed Canadians. Under Section 98 of the Criminal Code of Canada, the Government convicted and sentenced these Communists to jail terms at Kingston. A public outcry arose against the Government's action and Section 98. Public protests and demonstrations forced the Government, headed by Conservative Prime Minister R.B. Bennett, to rescind Section 98 and to release the incarcerated Communist Party members.

August 12, 1971 — The Calgary Stampeders humiliated the Edmonton Eskimos 31 to 1 in Edmonton's Clarke Stadium. Calgary went on to win the Grey Cup with one of the best teams in the CFL's history. Two of the CFL's alltime greatest defensive stars, linebacker Wayne Harris and lineman John Helton were featured on the Calgary defense. Leading Calgary's offence was quarterback Jerry Keeling, fullback Hugh McGinnis, and tight end Herman Harrison.

August 14, 1877 — The North West Territory Council approved laws that attempted to save the last herds of buffalo. By this time, the great herds of buffalo were almost wiped out, causing widespread starvation among the Indians and Metis. The new laws, applying to all parts of present day Alberta and Saskatchewan, made it unlawful to drive buffalo over cliffs or into pits, ravines, or pounds. It was unlawful to hunt for amusement, or to hunt only for the tongues or robes. From November 15th to August 15th no buffalo hunting of any kind was allowed. These laws were virtually useless, as the Council had no means to enforce compliance to these laws. There were no Wildlife Officers and too few Mounted Policemen. If Indians had obeyed the laws they would have starved. Indiscriminate hunting continued and by 1880, the buffalo had vanished from the Canadian Prairie.

Patricia Young says . . .

When you stop to examine some of the ways government spends our tax dollars, be it to train union leaders or write a history of socialism in Canada, it makes one wonder just how mankind managed to get this far; how we managed to build universities, business empires or put a man on the moon.

We seem to have overlooked the simple fact that all of the world's great inventions, medical discoveries, art, music and architecture came to us by way of private enterprise, private drive and initiative, the challenge of individual achievement and the hope of reward.

While we could go back to the seventeenth century, we need to go back only to the turn of the century to recognize the value of the privately motivated individual, competitive production and private investment. At that time, North Americans were faced with the huge problem of building an adequate network of roads to link east with west; to enable tiny communities to grow and trade with one another. Between opening up transportation and communications, man was concerned with controlling plagues and other diseases in order to expand man's lifespan.

In less than seventy-six years, all of these problems and more were solved — not by way of government paternalism, but by way of individual drive, initiative, imagination, sacrifice and dedication —— not to the State, but to humanity itself.

One man invisioned and built the first automobile, the airplane, the telephone, radio, TV, washing machine, stove and tape recorder. Man, unsung and unaided, gave us polio vaccine and the technique of the heart transplant.

It would be a mistake to say that man creates and invents only for monetary gain.

Altruism and concern for the human race has occasionally driven man to great heights of dedicated inventiveness. By the same token, no dictatorship or state monopoly has made anything close to the advances of free people, but rather, lives off the drive and initiative of the free enterprise system. For all that has been said, man does not willingly work for the State. While he may cooperate in order to survive, individual drive, self motivation and initiative is neither demanded nor welcomed, let alone encouraged.

In short, government governs, guides and perpetuates [illegible] ment. Only the free individual, uninhibited, creative and willing to sacrifice time, money and energy, can keep us going in a forward direction, improving a standard of living that is the envy of the whole world.

Tofield Fair a hit

by Ken Kroetsch

There were fewer entries for the Tofield Fair this year, but there were more people entered said Peggy Kallal, Fair Committee secretary.

Kallal said entries were down noticeably in two areas, garden and baking entries.

Kallal said that gardens were not as good as they had in previous years, cutting down the number of entries in this area.

Also the hot weather cut down on the number of baking entries as women didn't want to bake in a hot kitchen, said Kallal.

There were however, more entries in the pet show this year.

People through the gate to view the fair remained about the same as last year. There wee 570 paying adults through the gate.

The winner of the Fair Committee quilt raffle was Debbie Appleby of Sherwood Park. Proceeds of the raffle will go to the Ag Society.

In the special awards for Horticulture, Best Exhibit of the Show, donated by Marie Worton, went to Brent Earl.

Best Arrangement of the Show, donated by the Tofield Garden Club, went to Marie Worton.

New ballot boxes are now permitted

The 1983 local authority elections will probably see the first use of a new style ballot box.

The commonly used metal ballot box may give way to a cardboard box which will be sealed with tape rather than locked with a padlock.

The "Alternative Ballot Box Regulation", dated June 29, 1983, authorized the use of cardboard ballot boxes constructed of 175 pound test, or heavier, cardboard and measuring approximately 22 centimeters wide, 35 centimeters long and 35 centimeters high.

Locking and sealing the box is done by means of coloured, non-removalbe tape. A red coloured tape is used to initially seal the box. The tape is cut to open the box to count ballots and is resealed by using a non-removable yellow tape.

Use of the cardboard ballot box will eliminate the problems of lost padlocks or keys and will also solve the problem of storing the bulky metal boxes.

A.U.M.A. is making arrangements to obtain a supply of the authorized cardboard boxes and will be issuing a circular shortly with ordering details.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. G.H. Taylor

Holden L.C.W. held their regular monthly meeting on Aug. 11th in the church parlors with Rev Haugen being in charge of the bible study. President, Mrs. Ethel Brokstad was in charge of the business meeting. Mrs. Irene Olson read the worship meditation. The meeting closed and lunch was served with Mrs. Annie Laube being hostess.

Mrs. Clara Shaw was a Thursday visitor last week in Ryley, going up with her daughter, Mrs. Carol Chomic and taking the Ryley Fair and supper.

Saturday afternoon visitors with Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor were their son, Brian of St. Albert and grandchildren, Ronald, Catherine and Richard.

Mrs. Agnes Phillips, who has been residing for the past year in one of the apartments at Northview Manor, left several days ago and is making her home at Glendon with relatives. Mrs. Irene Olson has been busy packing up her household goods to take up there.

On Sunday afternoon, a number of ladies from Holden and district gathered at the Lutheran Church parlors when a miscellaneous shower was held in honor of Miss Shauna Sea, daughter of Mrs. Harriet Giebelhaus whose marriage to David Smith takes place on Saturday. On entering the room, the guest of honor was greeted and corsages were pinned on her, her mother, Mrs. Giebelhaus, the groom's mother, Mrs. Smith and the bridesmaids-to-be, by Mrs. Sea and they were seated at the head table decorated with summer flowers. Mrs. Linda Sea read a brief resume of various incidents of Shauna's life, after which a game was played and after this, Mrs. Linda Sea, sister-in-law of the bride-to-be, presented many gifts to Shauna who then thanked all for attending. Lunch was then served while visiting and viewing the gifts.

Hay Lakes district news

by Mrs. A. Arneson

Mrs. Wanda Grahn and son Randy motored to Sammerland, B.C. where they attended a reunion of the Skinner Grahn family held on the weekend of Aug. 6-7. Members of the family began to arrive at the Arthur Grahn residence in Summerland on Aug. 4 and 5. Activities commenced on Saturday morning with a pancake breakfast served by the men. The day was then spent on the beautiful grounds of the B.C. Agricultural Experimental Farm where various games and sporting events were held for all age groups. On Sunday the group packed and visited at Osoyoos Beach. During their stay the visitors enjoyed the abundance of fresh fruit right off the trees.

Naomi Galloway was honored on the occasion of her 69th birthday when all members of the family, including grandchildren, gathered at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Theresa and Glenn Harbe for a barbecue and social evening. Glenn's birthday was also celebrated at the same time.

Jack and Anne Edwards have returned from a visit with relatives in Saskatoon, Sask.

An electrical storm dazzled the skies on Aug. 8 and the power was disrupted in the village and surrounding area for approximately 1½ hours. However very little rain fell.

Ministik and district news

by Catherine Reddick

A large family reunion of the Herricks took place at the Hazel Bluff Hall near Westlock where a pot-luck supper was enjoyed by all with lots of visiting and reminiscing. After the report, the evening was spent in dancing.

On August 1st, all these same people, some coming from as far away as South Carolina, U.S.A. and Ottawa and Seattle, Washington as well as British Columbia and many parts of Alberta gathered at the farm home of Barbara Herricks for another day of visiting, picnicing and plain enjoying themselves.

Margaret and Pat Paterson returned home on Sunday evening after a month's vacation trailering in the Yukon and Alaska. They especially enjoyed Dawson City where they motored up to the Northern Dome.

Sherry Wittig along with her brother Alvin, his wife, Doreen and two children, spent the long August weekend at Melford, Sask., visiting their grandmother Mrs. Aaron Wittig.

Pat and Johnnie Dyks and boys enjoyed ten days' vacation camping in the mountains doing some fishing and spending a few days with Johnnie's parents, Bob and Dorothy Sykes in Creston, B.C.

Farmers in the area are feverishly getting up every bit of hay crop possible these days, after being a month behind getting started.

There was no Ladies Club meeting held in August but the ladies will meet again in September.

The August Crafts Centre meeting will be on the 22nd. Plans will be made for wheat drives for the coming season, other entertainments, and any business gathered over the summer months.

Golfball hailstones pound north central

Two severe storms struck south Edmonton August 3 during the evening with golfball-sized and larger hail. The storms began in the Drayton Valley area about an hour apart and tracked eastward, hitting Edmonton between 5 and 7 p.m.

Another storm developed further south, in the Rocky [illegible] this time. It also tracked eastward, dissipating late in the evening near Bashaw.

Golfball-sized hail was reported in the Bentley area and numerous reports of grape to walnut hail all along the swath. Few reports of damage have been received.

Another major storm occurred August 1. [illegible] tracked from Sundre to Three Hills with mostly pea-sized hail in Sundre, Caroline, Torrington and Three Hills areas. The line was seeded by two aircraft as it moved east.

Thunderstorms on July 30 produced mostly rain showers in the project area with the exception of a few spotty pea-sized hail reports.

During July, hailstorm activity averaged just slightly below normal in Central Alberta. The storms tended to concentrate in the region from Red Deer to Calgary, a reversal of last summer when the storms concentrated from the Rocky Mountain House to the Camrose-Bashaw areas.

Alberta farmers have provided the world's most comprehensive hailfall climatological data bank. Hailfall data has been collected by the project since the [illegible] mailed in by farmers or is gathered by telephoning farms in the storm's path shortly afterward. The information documents the number, path and severity of [illegible]

This data bank is useful in assessing the impact of hailstorms relevant to agriculture. In addition, the data provides information with regards to building design, climatic variations [illegible]

Between the Covers

On the children's bookshelf, you will notice two interesting picture books about houses. "ANNO'S COUNTING HOUSE" by Mitsumasa Anno is an intriguing book without words, picturing a family's move from one house to another, and making use of cutouts in the pages for effect. "INSIDE AND OUTSIDE" by Annette Tison and Talus Taylor makes use of transparent overlays that transform pictures on each side of the page into something different, showing both the inside and outside of each different kind of home.

If you are interested in learning some new and funny songs to sing with your children, try Esther L. Nelson's "THE SILLY SONGBOOK". Including old favourites such as Found a Peanut, or You Can't Get to Heaven, it also includes many new and silly songs.

For Beatrix Potter or Peter Rabbit fans, a new edition of stories has just been added: "THE COMPLETE ADVENTURES OF PETER RABBIT". In a large-format book, this one includes four tales, all with the original text and illustrations so well loved by little children.

If your kids need something new to interest them in these last few weeks before school, try them on "JUNIOR BODY BUILDING" by E.V. Fisher.

The free movies this week are: The Red Balloon, and A Story, A Story. The films are shown Friday at 2:30 p.m. and again Saturday at 11 a.m. Preschoolers should be accompanied; the program lasts about 45 minutes.

Dist. Agriculturist

BARBARA BENNETT

The following is a collection of selected exerpts from the Farm Cash Receipts and Expense Summary for 1982, prepared by the Statistics Branch of Alberta Agriculture. These statistics do not look very encouraging and the picture for 1983 does not appear to be any better. Thanks goes to Lorraine Hope of the Statistics Branch for permission to use this material.

FARM CASH RECEIPTS

Lower grain and cattle prices and stable to lower prices for other crops were characteristic of 1982. Contrary to expectations, Total Farm Cash Receipts to Alberta producers in 1982 were down only 1% from that received in 1981. Explanation of this lies with cash receipts derived from four sources, the C.W.B. Cash Advances and Deferments, Crop Insurance Payments, Cattle and Sheep Support Program and the Alberta Pork Producers Market Insurance Plan.

Farmers delivering to the C.W.B. have the option of deferring payments on grain into the following calendar year. In 1982, Alberta producers deferred 16% less receipts to 1983 and derived 69% more cash from liquidation of deferred receipts from the previous year. This resulted in [illegible] million. The net effect was an additional [illegible] million into the Alberta farm economy. Crop Insurance Payments to producers from crops would have declined 13% rather than 7%.

Receipts from Livestock and Products rose 7% in 1982. Had it not been for $141 million received under the Cattle and Sheep Support Program and $7.3 million from the Alberta Pork Producers Insurance Plan, Farm Cash Receipts for this sector would have declined 1% from 1981.

In summary, Total Alberta Farm Cash Receipts would have fallen 8% in 1982 without the [illegible] million from the aforementioned sources.

Farm Expenses
Operating Expenses

Total Operating Expenses to Alberta producers rose 25% in 1981. While more farm inputs were used, most of the increase in expenses was attributed to inflation. In 1982, Total Operating Expenses rose only 3.0% even though the Consumer Price Index (C.P.I.) for all items ranged from 11-12% in Alberta. This downturn in the increase of total expenses is a combined result of lower inflation and interest rates, lower feed grain prices and producers economizing on farm inputs. For 1983, Total Operating Expenses are anticipated to decline nearly 4%. Despite lower projected Total Operating Expenses in 1983, producers could be facing the greatest cost price squeeze since 1933. Total Operating Expenses for 1983 are expected to be as high as 80% of Farm Cash Receipts.

Overall interest on indebtedness decreased by 4% in 1982 as interest rates continued to decline from unprecedented levels seen in 1981.

Machinery expenses including fuel, continue to be the largest operating expenditure. Rental expenditures for leased land rose 4% in 1982 but are projected to decrease 3% in 1983.

In summary, Total Operating Expenses rose $76 million or 3% in 1982 and are projected to decline by [illegible] million or 4% in 1983. Should Total Operating Expenses in Alberta decrease as forecast, it will be the first time since 1970.

NET CASH INCOME

Net Cash Income in 1982 fell 8% from $1,[illegible] million in 1981 to $1,[illegible] million. A further decline of $161 or 13% is anticipated in 1983. This brings Alberta producers net cash income in 1983 to slightly above the 1979 level. Considering inflation as measured by the Consumer Price Index, prices have risen 37%-40% from 1979 through 1982. Consequently, the purchasing power of producers net cash income, to meet financial commitments such as principal paydown on outstanding farm debts and living expenses is diminished. Cash flow for many Alberta farmers is tight and is expected to remain so in 1983.

Old vehicles needed

by Ken Kroetsch

The Tofield Fire Department are presently looking for old wrecked cars, or cars that are no longer in running condition, to start training for vehicle extrication, said Fire Department member, John Bauman.

Arrangements can be made with any member of the Fire Department to have the vehicles picked up, said Bauman.

The wrecked vehicles are needed for a two-day seminar, scheduled sometime in early September.

Eight senior members of the Fire Department will be taking part in the seminar.

Alberta Transportation has offered staff for training, as well as some material from the Edmonton Fire Department.

Bauman said they will also be using some of their own Fire Department members who have had special training in certain areas.

He said that some of the firemen have had training in the Disaster Services course and some have trained in the hazardous goods course. Also some of the firemen, through their line of work, have experience in various areas that apply to vehicle extrication.

The object of the new program of vehicle extrication is to respond to motor vehicle or industrial accidents where there is a need for safe removal from a hazardous [illegible]

Training for this new service will include cardiopulmonary resuscitation, first-aid, vehicle extrication, use of ropes and ladders, disaster training, emergency driving and traffic control.

The Fire Department will start training with existing equipment, a Disaster Services kit and other fire equipment on hand.

Crops being cut

Harvesting of the 1983 crop is now underway in some areas.

Reported cutting began late last week around Camrose with cutting around Rosalind and Daysland expected to start this week, according to reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool.

Cutting in most other regions should get underway next week and all areas are expected to be involved in harvesting operations by the end of the month (August).

Yields are not expected to be as good as was the case last year because of heavy rains earlier in the growing season and the hot, dry weather that has prevailed in recent weeks.

Farmers around Daysland apparently have the best quality crops with wheat said to be in a normal condition for this time of year with other crops ranging from ten to thirty-five percent below a normal state.

Wheat in the Camrose area is just slightly below normal with other crops in about the same classification as that which prevails around Daysland.

Crops in the Hay Lakes and Round Hill regions are between twenty and forty percent below a normal state while in the Rosalind area, crops are reported to be only about one-half of what they should be and in other regions, the range is somewhere between that which is described for Hay Lakes and Rosalind. Some crops around Hay Lakes have been plowed under because of [illegible] while [illegible] barley fields in the Daysland area are burning because of the extreme heat.

About three-quarters of canola in the Ryley and Rosalind areas have ripened with other crops at about the twenty-five percent stage.

About forty percent of canola around Daysland and Camrose has ripened with a good start to ripening reported by farmers around Hay Lakes while farmers in the Round Hill region are still waiting to enter the final growth and developmental stages.

Moisture conditions vary greatly from one region to another.

Subsurface moisture (top 25 centimetres) ranges from eighty to ninety percent (of a perfect condition) around Hay Lakes and Round Hill and drops to about sixty-five percent in the Camrose-Daysland-Ryley regions.

The poorest condition prevails in the Rosalind area where moisture conditions are said to be only about twenty percent of a perfect state.

Most regions reported no rainfall last week with the exception being Hay Lakes (17 millimetres) and Ryley (five millimetres).

The best production is expected to come from the Daysland area where farmers are expecting to get about 1,100 kilograms of wheat per acre with slightly more than 1,000 kilograms of oats and barley and about 450 kilograms of canola.

Record high!

There was a record high temperature last Wednesday.

The mercury climbed to thirty-three degrees about mid afternoon to set a new record high for August 10th.

The new mark broke the old record by two degrees with the former mark having been set only two years ago.

All other days saw warm weather prevail, with daily highs ranging from twenty-six to twenty-eight degrees, well below record levels which go from thirty-one to thirty-four degrees.

The hottest days of the month on record took place on August 9, 1922, August 15, 1934 and August 18, 1934 when the mercury soared to 34 degrees.

Nights haven't been all that cool with overnight lows ranging from thirteen to twenty degrees, well above record lows which have dipped to a few degrees below zero on a number of occasions in the past.

With harvesting time at hand, farmers would like good weather to prevail next month (September) and if record levels are approached, it could be a nice month.

The warmest days in September occurred on the 17th and 18th of 1981 when it got to thirty-three above while the average record high for the entire month is twenty-nine degrees.

Community correspondent for the last three months, Vicky Whalley, had a baby boy, Lee William, on August 3rd, a brother for Andrea. On the same date, a little girl was born to Carol and Steve Schmidt.

Community members were well represented among the prize-winners at the Tofield Fair on Saturday. Cindy and Wally Rabby took first prizes and Sylvia Schneider took two seconds, in riding, and Jan Addison a second in raspberries. Elizabeth John received a fourth place (in a field of eight) in riding, and she teamed with Sylvia Schneider to take cups in the Pairs riding event; disappointingly there were no other entrants so what otherwise should have been an interesting, and elegant event.

The August meeting of the Community Association will take place on Thursday of this week, and a new Social Convenor will be sought, since Elaine Ellard is moving in the direction of the city.

Preserve by Drying

If you run out of freezer space and sealers every year, drying foods may be for you. Dried foods are light, compact and last for years. They're great for backpackers and hikers!

Almost any food will dry successfully — fruits, vegetables, meats as well as herbs and spices. If you have a surplus of vegetables in your garden or an avid hunter who brings home wild meat, every year, drying would be economical.

No special equipment is required for drying — you can use your regular oven. Set the oven at its lowest setting, not higher than 140°F. Prop the door open so that moist air can escape. Placing a fan near the open oven door will improve air circulation. If you find you enjoy drying food you may want to look into building or buying a dehydrator. The advantage of having a separate unit is that it frees up your stove and it doesn't heat up the kitchen.

Fruit leather is an easy first project to try if you're new to drying. Simply crush or puree about two cups of fruit. Over-ripe or damaged fruit can be successfully used. Cover a cookie sheet with plastic wrap and spread the fruit puree over it. Make sure the fruit layer is thin (not more than 1/8 inch thick) and even. Place in an oven on its lowest setting and leave the door partially open. The fruit leather will take from 5-6 hours to dry. When it's done it will be pliable and slightly tacky. It should pull off the plastic easily. To eat, roll it up jelly roll fashion and cut strips off with scissors.

Take some on your next car trip — it's not messy and tastes delicious.

Roadwork starts

by Ken Kroetsch

Two construction projects on Highway 14, from south of Lindbrook to Tofield and from Tofield east to Ryley, will get underway by this weekend, said Lyle O'Neill, executive assistant to the Deputy-Minister of Transport.

O'Neill said that grading equipment will have already moved into the area and the asphalt plant will be moving into the area by this weekend.

The engineers have told O'Neill that construction should move steadily after this weekend, with the completion date for construction estimated for the middle of October.

The construction project from south of Lindbrook to Tofield will be a graded gravel base course topped off with asphalic paving, said O'Neill.

The construction from Tofield to Ryley will be an asphalic overlay.

The construction of the highway has been tendered out to Leduc Construction.

11 incumbents will run ... in local elections

by Ken Kroetsch

In a recent survey by The Mercury of county and municipal councillors to see if they would be seeking re-election for the next three year term, 10 were undecided, 11 said they would be seeking re-election and five said they would not be seeking re-election.

One councillor was on vacation and was unavailable for comment.

Another seat on county council was vacated on June 30 by the resignation of Eugene Ewasiuk of Division 5. The position will remain vacant until the election on October 17.

COUNTY

In the county there are seven divisions with a councillor from each division being elected to council.

Each councillor also sits on the school board. With the councillors on the school board there are four school trustees. On each from Viking, Holden, Ryley and Tofield.

Seeking re-election for the county is Reeve, George Kondalien of Division 6. Kondalien has served on council for 18 years, nine years as reeve.

Also seeking re-election is Gordon Maxwell of Division 2. Maxwell has been on council for six years.

Gordon Haines of Division 3 has served on council for three years. He also intends to run in the upcoming election.

Victor Romaniuk of Division 4 has indicated that he will also be seeking re-election. He has served on council for three years.

The seat in Division 5 has been vacated by Eugene Ewasiuk and will be open to all comers in the coming election.

In Division 7, John Warner has indicated that he will be seeking re-election in the upcoming election. Warner has served three years on council.

Not seeking re-election in the October election is Hjordis Armitage of Division 1. Armitage said that the position left her with very little free time, so she would not be running again.

School trustees Arnold Swift of Tofield, said he would be seeking re-election. Swift has served 4½ years as a trustee.

Leo Kelly, trustee for Viking, said he would be seeking re-election also. He has served the community of Viking for five years.

Harriet Ruddy, trustee for Ryley, said she would not be seeking re-election. She has served three years as a school trustee.

Nestor Semotiuk, trustee for Holden, said he also would be seeking re-election. Semotiuk has served as a trustee for 18 years.

TOFIELD

In the survey of Tofield Town Councillors, three have indicated they would be seeking re-election, two were undecided and two said they would not be seeking re-election.

New program planned

by Ken Kroetsch

The Tofield Child Development Society (TCDS) is presently asking for parental support for a family day home program said May Korobko, society president.

"We have to see if people are willing to put their families into a home program, or whether or not we have to build a day care system," said Korobko.

Before funds from the government can be obtained, a list of parents who are in favor of the program is needed.

In a survey conducted a year ago, it was estimated that parents of some 60 children were interested in some kind of a day care program, whether full-time or part-time.

Under the new program being set up by the Provincial Government, children would be put into private homes rather than an institution.

"It's like a private babysitter, though since it's through the TCDS parents could get government subsidy that they couldn't get if they used a private babysitter," said Korobko.

Through the program, care providers would be trained to look after children. After the training was completed, there would be an ongoing educational program for the care providers.

The care providers would be paid through the TCDS.

At the present time there is no day care program in Tofield.

The only official day care program in the County of Beaver is in Viking, said Korobko.

Feeling the area of Tofield needed a day care program the TCDS was formed a year ago May.

The society has been collecting funds for over a year to set up such a program in Tofield.

Any interested parents that would support such a program, or anyone that would be willing to be a care provider in their home, are asked to contact either May Korobko 662-2788 or Marralyn Tokarek

Wednesday publication planned for Mercury

A major change has been announced for the printing of The Mercury.

The paper's printing schedule will be moved ahead one full day.

For many years, The Mercury has been published on Thursdays but, in the future, the paper's publication day will be moved ahead to Wednesday.

Beginning with the next edition, The Mercury will go to press each Wednesday afternoon, with many subscribers receiving their paper that same day.

The change in publication day comes as a result of a direct request from the Tofield Chamber of Commerce as well as requests from many businesses and readers.

Rural readers found that their paper was being delivered too late for them to take advantage of the bargains that were being offered by the business community, because of mail delivery schedules.

It is now expected that both the business community and readers will gain from the change.

With publication day being moved ahead to Wednesday, all deadlines will have to be moved ahead twenty-four hours.

As a result, The Mercury's sales representative, Ian Walt, will be making his rounds on Mondays in the future, beginning next Monday (Aug. 29th).

The co-operation of the business community, correspondents and news contributors in meeting this new deadline would be greatly appreciated by the staff of The Mercury.

In donkey baseball either the batter, or the first baseman have to have both feet of their donkey within the circle to either be safe or out. The runner could be out in this picture if the first baseman's donkey would only cooperate. The game ended up in a tie, but the Firemen won the game in a donkey race to decide the winners.

Kids Day set

This Saturday, children of all ages will be turning out to the Tofield Fairgrounds for the 3rd annual Kids Day, said Legion Vice-President, Ed Ferguson.

"This is one thing for the kids that is totally free," said Ferguson.

Sponsored by the Tofield Legion, the three-hour event includes free hot dogs, ice-cream, pop and pony rides. Coffee is also available for the parents.

The pony rides are provided and operated by the Ketchemut Horse Club.

All the ponies are lead around the Fairgrounds by the Ketchemut Club but, parents are perfectly welcome to lead the pony for the child, said Ferguson.

Ferguson said the event has been successful every year it has run.

It has always taken place as close to school starting as possible to make sure as many children as possible could be there.

Over 300 hot dogs were given away last year. This year, 30 dozen hot dogs and hot dog buns have been ordered, with an assurance that more would be available, if needed.

Kids day will get underway at 2 p.m. at the Fairgrounds and will go until 5 p.m.

Killing the goose

Construction companies in Edmonton are exerting strenuous efforts to get their point of view across to the unions working for them in a manner they haven't even considered for years.

Until recently the construction [redacted] on the basis of any price is acceptable if only we can get the job done. Wages, working conditions, material costs, all soared into the stratosphere as Alberta experienced an unprecedented boom. Work had to get done. Buildings had to get [redacted]

But all that changed when the National Energy Policy was in- [redacted]

With a vengeance.

Construction plummetted to a standstill. Drilling rigs pulled out. Oil companies shut down. Companies went bankrupt. Many chopped staff. Umemployment soared.

Despite all this construction, union members felt there were still wage increases coming to them. They weren't prepared to discuss holding the line even, far less cutting back. Not even to save their jobs.

But non-union contractors started cutting into what little construction work there is. Non-union workers were taking far less in wages than union workers, and their companies were getting the jobs. So much so that where non-union companies used to get about a tenth of the jobs, they slowly moved up to about a quarter, and this year it has soared to roughly two thirds of the jobs under ten million dollars.

Union workers are quietly agreeing to take jobs at non-union wages from the non-union companies, but demanding the union wage from their union employer.

It's gotten to the point that the union contractors are pointing out they're completely out of the bidding market because they start with a labor component averaging more than forty percent higher than their competitors, and there is no job with that much fat in it.

So they're pointing out to the unions that they need real concessions, major concessions, or they'll go out of business. If the union workers have no jobs, the union [redacted]

And ever so slowly, ever so reluctantly, the unions seem to be reading the writing on the wall. They're killing the goose that laid the golden egg.

Or maybe our timing is wrong. That goose was killed by the National Energy Policy. And by not recognizing that, the unions are killing the other goose in the barnyard. If they continue to ignore the message, all they'll have left is a bunch of ganders.

And ganders don't lay very [redacted]

"I've just got to get a picture of Muffy acting SO cute"

Forked tongue?

Readers of daily newspapers across the country a number of weeks ago received a small tabloid newspaper insert published by the federal government and telling all the urban dwellers in the country why the Crows Nest Pass freight rates had to change. Not only that, the insert went on to tell them how greatly this modernization of a century-old anachronism would benefit them, or their part of the country.

Oddly, the government didn't distribute this insert to very many of its country readers, people who don't take the major dailies across the country. At least, it seemed odd until you took the trouble to read the little newspaper, and see just how biased, how distorted, is its presentation of the Crow, the background, the future, and the impact of changing rates.

It doesn't say, for instance, that the original deal was a government-railway one, and that the government is now trying to foist its cost share over onto the shoulders of the farmer. It doesn't say, for instance, that present estimates are that the farmer's freight costs will increase by 1200 percent by the year 2,000. It does try to suggest that the new schedule will define a system of performance which the railways must guarantee, but it doesn't point out that no system of guarantees could make the railways meet performance in the past. For the first fifty years or so, while the rates were profitable to the railways, they did an excellent job, but they soon forgot any guarantees when their costs [redacted]

Why should it be necessary for the government to develop such a blatant form of urban propanganda, while at the same time not disseminating it among the farmers, where its lack of objectivity could be quickly underscored? Is the government showing how poor is the Pepin proposal, and showing it must muster all the support it can not to look ridiculous, and to pass this legislation? If it's honest, equitable, desirable, why must the government feel obliged to resort to underhanded methods in its promotion?

Patricia Young Says . . . . . .

The funny thing about any civilization is that it declines and falls — not with a bang, but a whimper. The Greek, Roman, Egyptian, Turkish and Aztec Empires which once flourished upon this earth are no more and yet few people stop to discover why these flourishing Empires are no more. While it could be argued that wars and natural disasters took their toll, it must also be recognized that affluence and an "I'm-all-right-Jack" attitude allowed the decline and decay to go unheeded. In ancient Greece, when a runner brought news of a victory in a distant war, citizens feted him in their lavish games and banquetting. Should he bring news of a defeat, the man was put to death as citizens went about enjoying the feasting anyway!

More recently, I completed an account of my depression days childhood. Permitting a neighbour to read the first draft, I found that while she enjoyed my annecdotes, my observations on the extent to which society has changed, made her feel uncomfortable. In short, even knowing of the decine in public morals, increased crime, rape and murder, she would just as soon not think about it!

In taking the life we enjoy in North America for granted, we have somehow lost the passion, excitement and emotion that pioneered this continent. While we might be stirred by enough blood and gore at a hockey match, the latest government sex scandel or night club fire, are we passionate about the development of crop management in India? About the polution of our lakes, streams and rivers? About the billions of lives of human beings who have lived under varying dictatorships for some sixty years?

Somehow, through apathy, indifference and plain old brainwashing, we are afraid to make decisions. We deny that anything is black and white. We seek the safety of the middle-of-the-road, the "open mind" and the "consensus." As a result, our opinions, convictions and dedication are as solid as a bowl of jello. In effect, we find it safer to accept the commonplace, to align ourselves with the "popular" opinion and to be on the winning side — even if it is a race to Hell! In fearing to rock the boat, we would sup with the devil himself and sacrifice dignity, courage and honour at the [redacted]

While the rich tapestry of our language is reduced to the four letter word, so we bow to the "rights" of the homosexual, the criminal and the dope fiend. We do not dare talk of sexual deviation — just an alternate sex style! Our fear of standing up to be counted finds us lashing out at the runner who brings us a truth we [redacted] ask me for the answer — ask the man who suffered apathy — until it was too late to do anything

Morgentaler is not above the law

Leaving aside the emotional issue of abortion itself, whether it should be permitted or prohibited or strictly limited, there is the issue of respect for the law inherent in the attempts by Dr. Henry Morgentaler to open abortion clinics in various parts of the country.

The Criminal Code of Canada provides for the procuring of a miscarriage in an "accredited or approved hospital". Dr. Morgentaler and his fanatical supporters disagree with the law, but instead of trying to change it by peaceful and legal means, they apparently have decided to defy it, to disobey it.

As we say, in this matter, the issue isn't abortion itself, but the requirement for people to obey the laws of the land while trying, if they disagree with them, to have them changed.

Dr. Morgentaler seems to be setting himself up as above the law. He wants to provide abortion service in a chain of clinics, the law doesn't permit this, so to heck with the law.

Obviously, that cannot be tolerated, for that way lies anarchy and the law of the jungle. It isn't much different from bootlegging, or selling illegal lottery tickets, or trafficking in drugs. Under certain terms and conditions, alcohol can be sold for consumption either off the premises or by the drink on the premises or by the drink on the premises. But in the former a provincial monopoly exists in most provinces, while in the latter case, a licence is needed for retail sale by the drink. There are approved lotteries in Canada, but it is an offence to sell tickets for unapproved lotteries. Drugs properly prescribed by a physician and dispensed by a pharmacist are one thing, but illegal trafficking of controlled narcotics or other substances is entirely another.

If one thinks that alcohol sale should be either tighter or looser, one can preach one's cause, hoping to persuade the politicians to make changes. If one thinks that laws governing lotteries are either too tight or too loose, again one can try to persuade the lawmakers to amend things. If one thinks that certain drugs or other substances should be legalized or, to use the popular phrase "decriminalized", then one can lobby for acceptance of this view.

Thus, just as the Pro-Lifers are protesting what they see as too-easy abortions, so can the Freedom-of-Choicers cam- [redacted] an end to the requirement for abortions to be carried out only after approval by a therapeutic abortion committee and only in an accredited or approved hospital.

But so long as the law is what it is, it should be obeyed. And fr Dr. Morgentaler and [redacted] supporters to deliberately flout the law is unacceptable and obviously the authorities must act. As they rightly have in Winnipeg and Toronto.

Editor's Note: It should be pointed out that at no time has Dr. Morgentaler tried to put himself 'above the law'. Indeed, he voluntarily surrendered to police only weeks ago, then was released.

On three earlier occasions, charged by police in Montreal, he has been declared 'Not Guilty', each time by a jury from the community.

This hardly appears as 'setting himself above the law'.

Noooo!

Seeking re-election are Ed Regehr, with six years on council; Tom Lyle, with three years on council; and Marie Worton, with six years on council.

Laurie Weatherill said he has no intention of running at this time but, if circumstances arise, things could change. He has served six years on council.

Peggy Nahirniak also said she would not be seeking re-election. She said that with two small children she doesn't have the time for both. She has been on council for three years.

Coal mine tour planned

by [illegible]

As part of their public information program, Forestburg Collieries will be having a tour of the company's operation near Forestburg to show interested parties how the land is reclaimed, said Bob Logan, spokesman for Forestburg Collieries.

"Things have really changed in reclamation practise in the last ten years," said Logan.

At one time, said Logan, the land was just put back into pasture land while now as part of the Diplomat productions land has been put back into crop production.

The tour is designed to give people an impression of mining and of land reclamation.

The tour is part of a public information program to inform people in the Tofield area of the coal mining and what is involved, prior to a possible re-opening of the Tofield Coal Mine, south of Tofield.

Forestburg Collieries is presently in the preliminary disclosure stages of the project, said Logan. In the preliminary disclosure stage, Forestburg Collieries has to approach the Provincial Government with a proposal to open the mine.

The government indicates whether or not the program is feasible to go ahead with.

If it is feasible, and the government gives the green light to the project, the second step is public disclosure.

In this step of the program, public meetings are held for interested persons to see the overall aspects of the project such as mining reclamation and a review of the development plans.

This gives the public a good idea of what the project is all about, said Logan.

The public disclosure meeting is scheduled for sometime this fall, although a date hasn't been set.

Within 45 days of the public disclosure meeting, there will be a public hearing. At the public hearing, any concerns about the coal project would be brought up.

Just prior to government approval would be the various recommendations of the Department of Environment and the Energy Resource Conservation Board.

If everything goes as planned, the final government approval for the project is hoped for by next spring.

At the present time, 1985 is the earliest start up date, although a specific date has not been set.

Forestburg Collieries hope to open the Tofield mine to service their domestic and industrial coal supplies.

Presently these coal demands are being serviced by the Diplomat Mine near Forestburg, said Logan, but it [illegible].

Another mine, the Paintearth Mine, has been started in the area but the coal production from this mine will be strictly used for supplying Battle River Electrical Generation Plant.

When the Tofield Coal Mine is opened, between 100,000 and 200,000 tons of coal a year will be mined. This will mean approximately 20 acres a year [illegible].

Compared to the 120 acres that are mined at Forestburg a year, Logan said this will be a smaller scale project at Tofield.

This tour of the Forestburg Collieries will have been the third public awareness project done in the Tofield area. Two open houses were sponsored by Forestburg Collieries last November and last April to inform people of the plans for coal mining in the area.

People interested in going on the tour can phone, collect, 430-8843 to reserve a seat.

Sweetened Without Sugar

Lately there have been numerous ads for new "sugar-free" drinks and food. All this is possible because of the newest approved sweetener, Aspartame.

Aspartame is a white odorless, crystalline powder with an intensely sweet taste and no bitter aftertaste. Because Aspartame is about 200 times sweeter than sugar, very little is needed to give the equivalent sweetness. Thus, its calorie contribution will be insignificant for most uses.

You are likely to see Aspartame used mainly in soft drinks and as a table-top sweetener. Exposure to high cooking temperature results in the breakdown of Aspartame and a loss of sweetness. Thus, it is not suitable for use in baking or frying. It is more suitable for such foods as milk puddings or gelatin desserts where the heat is kept lower and cooking time shorter than baking.

Aspartame probably cannot be used to sweeten acidic foods which require heat processing, as in canning fruits and making fruit jams and jellies. It likely can be used for freezer jam and jellies made using gelatin. Recipe development and testing is yet to be done.

This new sweetener opens up many possibilities for sugar free foods. A welcome development for diabetics and those on calorie reduced diets. Look for Aspartame listed on the labels of new sugar free products.

"The Religion of Power" -by Cheryl Forbes

Have Christians become so infected with the world's view of power that they are operating the same way and justify the means to the end? Are we using God as a power pawn in the politics of living? This is certain to be one the most talked about convicting books of the decade.

4-H enjoys exchange

by Ken Knowlan

After spending 28 days together there were tears of parting for the 16 exchange members from both Alberta and Ontario, last week.

The exchange between Albertans and Ontario 4-H members involved 16 4-H members from the County of Beaver.

Four of the 4-H members were from Tofield, while the rest were from the Holden-Viking area.

Bernadette Zintel, Dean Schacher and Dan and Doug Brown were involved from the Tofield area.

While in Alberta, the 4-H group were together for two excursions. One excursion was to the Hutterite Colony, the Unversity Ranch and the Petro-Canada oil plant between Viking and Kinsella.

This was followed by a barbecue for all at the Colin Lang farm.

Last Tuesday the group toured the Ukrainian Village, a rapeseed crushing plant at Fort Saskatchewan, the Red Barn Game Farm and were given a whirlwind tour of the City of Edmonton.

Previous to the 4-H members coming to Alberta, the 4-H members from the County of Beaver had spent 10 days in Ontario.

In other 4-H activities in the Tofield area, Dale Brown participated in the opening and closing ceremonies of the Universiade Games held in Edmonton at the beginning of July.

He was one of 4-H members from Alberta that had the opportunity to carry the flag of the participating countries and to see Prince Charles and Princess Dianna officially open the games.

4-H member Joe Brown was on an exchange trip to Oregon in July.

Daniel Brown attended the Western Provinces Seminar held in Winnipeg for one week.

This trip was awarded him at 4-H selection held in May. While there, all delegates attended Folklorama, which is an ethnic festival.

The delegates that attended this seminar were from the three prairie provinces and B.C. They were at the seminar to learn more of the ethnic backgrounds of the Canadian people.

Club Week was held at Camrose Lutheran College for all Northern Alberta 4-H members.

Those attending from the Tofield area were Cailay Brown as delegate, and Daniel Brown as junior staff.

The theme of club week was to find out 'Who I Am'.

The members met in small groups discussing the interaction of family members and how to improve this.

They also listened to guest speakers J. Kibby and D.W. Smith of the Edmonton Trappers.

Also there was a guest speaker from Ghana, from the Crossroads program.

Penny Wood attended Junior Camp at Moose Lake.

Anyone between the ages of 10 and 21 interested in joining either the 4-H Beef Club, or the 4-H Crafts and Laughs, can either call Yvonne Brown 662-3851 or Maureen Bauman 992-2188.

Donkeys enjoyed

by Ken Knowlan

The Tofield Fire Department came out the winners over the Tofield Curling Club in donkey baseball action last Sunday night.

The real winners of the evening was the spectators however, as they were treated to laugh after laugh.

The first two batters to try and ride a donkey were dumped off before they could even start for first.

In donkey baseball, there are no outs at bat and everyone gets a turn to ride a donkey.

It wasn't only the batters who had to fight against the donkeys, the outfielder would sometimes find himself in the infield no matter how hard they tried to turn the donkey around.

By the third inning the firemen were ahead by two points. The curling club, in desperation, brought in some fresh grain on a stick to influence the donkey to go their way.

At the end of the fourth inning it was a tie game.

To break the tie, six members from each team had to have a foot race out to centre field, jump upon a donkey and race back.

Wayne Lysons almost made it to the finish line first, but was tackled from the back of his donkey at the last moment.

Another fireman who hadn't been far behind Lysons crossed the finish line to win the game for the Fire Department.

There were 500 people that showed up to watch this hilarious event, with $1,375 taken in at the gate.

Of the $1,375, $550 went to the Fairground Advisory Board.

Reunion held

Recently a reunion of the descendants of Abram Heidebrecht (1840-1915) born in the Southern Ukraine in Russia, was held at the home of George and Ericka Heidebrecht, northwest of Calgary. 168 family members were present.

They came from as far off as West Germany, California, Ontario and the four western provinces. Many members had never met before and many are still in Russia.

The first to come to Canada was John A Heidebrecht, with his family in October of 1925; then in the autumn of 1929, Ernest A. Heidebrecht and his family arrived in Canada from Russia.

Others have come to Canada via Paraguay, South America, and from Germany since the Second World War.

A wonderful time was had by all and a desire was expressed to hold reunions more frequently.

Harvesting is underway

Harvesting of the 1983 crop got underway in some areas last week and is expected to be general throughout the region by the region by the end of the month.

All of the rye (small acreage) in the New Norway area was cut and ten percent has been thrashed with cutting of other crops expected to begin later this week.

Farmers in the Ryley-Holden-Rosalind areas began cutting canola last week with ten percent cut in the Ryley area and a start having been made in the other two regions.

Farmers in Holden and Rosalind regions are expected to commence cutting other crops this week while in the Ryley region, cutting of their crops should begin next week.

Some canola and barley has been cut around Daysland and cutting should be general throughout the region this week.

Cutting in all other areas is not expected to get underway until sometime next week.

The grade of this fall's crops will vary from one region to another.

It is estimated that all of the canola around New Norway will get the best grade while most of the wheat will be in the second category and a majority of barley will be number one feed.

Eighty percent of canola in the Rosalind region still get the top grade with barley being feed and wheat will be rated number two.

Only sixty percent of canola in Ryley and Holden will be top rated with about seventy percent of barley getting a number one feed rating. Most of the wheat around Ryley is expected to be class three with about one-half of the Holden crop getting into the second category.

Most other regions have not rated their crops with the exception of Hay Lakes where crops are predicted to be well below average.

Some moisture fell during the past week although, in some instances, rain at this stage is too late to aid development because of the damage done by the recent intense heat that prevailed.

Holden and Ryley areas each got twelve millimetres while Daysland and Rosalind got ten millimetres. Camrose got five millimetres with New Norway, Hay Lakes and Round Hill getting between two and three millimetres.

There is a great difference in yields expected from one region to another.

The New Norway area expects good production with about 1,300 kilograms of wheat per acre along with about 1,100 kilograms of oats and barley, 1,000 kilograms of rye, 525 kilograms of flax and 600 kilograms of canola.

Production is slightly lower in the Daysland area where farmers expect about 1,100 kilograms of wheat, about 1,000 kilograms of oats and barley and 600 kilograms of canola.

Farmers in the Camrose region are looking for 1,000 kilograms of wheat, 1,100 kilograms of barley, 770 kilograms of oats and 600 kilograms of canola.

Wheat production in Rosalind, Ryley and Hay Lakes is expected to yield between 800-850 kilograms per acre while oats and barley should be in the 900 kilogram range. Canola should yield about 500 kilograms around Rosalind, dropping to 400 kilograms in Ryley and about 350 kilograms in Hay Lakes.

Production in the Round Hill region drops off to about 650 kilograms of wheat, 750 kilograms of barley, 600 kilograms of oats and about 250 kilograms of canola.

In the area around Holden, farmers are anticipating 540 kilograms of wheat, 670 kilograms of barley, 770 kilograms of oats and 600 kilograms of canola.

Reports on crop conditions were received from the Alberta Wheat Pool with only Tofield and Bawlf not forwarding reports by presstime.

Decision pending on plant site

... for waste disposal

by Ken Krostsch

The location of the new special waste disposal plant should be decided by the Provincial Cabinet within two to three months, said Ken Simpson, head of the Waste Management Branch of Alberta Environment.

Addressing the directors of Rural Development No. 4, Simpson said Alberta Environment has narrowed the number of sites to five for final consideration.

The five locations are Ryley, Swan Hills and three locations in Special Areas near Veteran, Consort and Youngstown.

"All five areas are environmentally suitable," said Simpson.

A high degree of environmental testing has been done on each of the locations to make sure it would be a fail safe plant.

Alberta Environment has looked at all the hazards as they affected agricultural land, animal life, recreation areas and water tables. They eliminated any areas that might have caused a problem, said Simpson.

There is some final testing to be done in Swan Hills, delayed by recent wet weather.

Until the final testing is completed, said Simpson, no decision will be made.

Speaking with the directors of Rural Development, Simpson said the Waste Management Branch deals with three specific areas.

The first area, he said, is technical and financial assistance for such facilities as a regional landfill site.

"It is cheaper to bear the costs of a regional landfill site than it is going it alone."

Simpson said he didn't see any reason why the County of Beaver regional landfill site, presently under consideration, couldn't be completed by early spring.

A question was raised as to what Tofield Council should do with the town's garbage after their site is full, sometime this fall.

Simpson agreed that council approach some of the neighbouring municipalities to see if available space could be used until the regional site was completed.

Some of the outlying communities involved in Rural Development Project No. 4 were concerned about communities that have a long distance to haul their garbage to a regional landfill site.

Simpson said they might consider a dump box system presently used by the Dunstable landfill site.

Each dump box is operated by the individual communities. A ramp is placed to the top of the dump box.

Once or twice a week a tractor-trailer pulls alongside the box and the garbage is dumped into the trailer.

Simpson said this has been a satisfactory method for smaller communities in that area.

Since 1976, 12 regional land fill sites have been installed in School opens Friday

by Ken Krostsch

This Friday is the first day of school for students, although the first day of school for teachers is Thursday.

The enrollment projections for the upcoming year are estimated at 1,975 students for the County of Beaver, almost the same as last year.

Grade one enrollments are up from last year. This year the enrollment of Grade One students is 164 new students, where last year there were only 149 new students.

Though to put this in perspective, last year was down drastically from the previous year. The previous year there were 176 students going into grade one in the County of Beaver.

Students who are new to the area are encouraged to register at their school during the week of August 29 to September 2.

Armitage will run

by Ken Krostsch

County councillor, Hjerdis Armitage of Division 1, has reversed her decision not to run.

Armitage said she decided to run again for another term at the request of several people in the county.

Of those councillors previously undecided, none have made a decision of whether or not they will be seeking re-election.

Dr. W.H. Freebury of Tofield, Hans Christensen of Tofield, Ernest Brown of Ryley, Ed Albrecht of Ryley, Nick Shilinski of Holden, Peter Ogonoski of Holden, and Dennis Cooper of Holden have all indicated that they were still undecided as to whether or not they would be seeking re-election.

Dennis Danilak of Holden was unavailable for comment.

Ryley Mayor Larry Andrukow, previously unavailable for comment, said he had just returned from vacation and had not given the election much thought. He said he was undecided as to whether or not he would seek re-election.

Candidates

The Mercury has learned that Lawrence Hrabec of Holden will be a candidate seeking a seat in Division 5.

This seat is presently empty, having been vacated by Eugene Kwasiak on June 30, when he resigned.

Also The Mercury has learned that Bobbie Schweitzer will be a candidate in the upcoming election seeking a seat as school trustee for Holden.

John Bauman is a candidate in Division 7.

It's our birthday!

With this edition, we are celebrating a birthday.

The Mercury celebrates its 67th anniversary with the publication of this week's paper.

And what better way to celebrate than by going to press one day earlier.

The 67th birthday edition of the weekly newspaper went to press on a Wednesday instead of Thursday.

The move to an earlier publication day has been in the works for some time but, required a lot of juggling and rescheduling before the move could finally take place.

Coming out earlier should be a boon for all concerned, both readers and advertisers alike.

Readers will get the paper at least one day earlier (in some cases, it will be even better than that) and will better be able to take advantage of the many bargains being offered by the business community.

Members of the business community have sought this earlier publication for some time and a number have already expressed the view that they can only gain more business because of the change.

It might take a few weeks before everyone adjusts to the change because it now means that all news and advertising must be ready every Monday when The Mercury's sales representative, Ian Watt, makes his normal rounds.

The management and staff of The Mercury is appreciative of the support given to the new publication day as well as the co-operation received from all concerned.

While Watt will normally make his rounds on Mondays, his schedule will change for the next edition because of the Monday holiday. For the next edition only, Watt will be making his regular rounds on Friday.

Not proven

Opponents of mercy killing won't be able to take much joy in the verdict of Mr. Justice Carl Rolf last week when, from the bench, he found it impossible to declare what had actually been the course of infant Taschuk's death.

The euthanasia opponents felt he should have come down hard on the side of murder, that the remarkably heavy injection of morphine ordered by Dr. Gal had certainly killed her. And that euthanasia should be proclaimed an outright crime.

On the face of it, it's very hard to disagree with Judge Rolf. The baby was "in fact dead" for five minutes, the judge declared, after an emergency Caesarean delivery, and until "heroic efforts" at resuscitation brought her to life again. Further, a ruptured umbilical cord and lack of oxygen at birth made it all too clear the severely brain-damaged child had no alternative but death, complicated by continued suffering.

Under the circumstance, it would seem to us the doctor and the nursing staff would be highly lauded, rather than castigated, for trying to alleviate such suffering.

Medicine is not now, and never has been, an exact science. Undoubtedly mistakes are made . . . mistakes of doing too much, mistakes of not doing enough. It's one thing to argue the propriety of any such action in the cold, logical, analytical process of the courtroom, another thing entirely to deal with it in the fast moving crisis atmosphere of a hospital emergency.

We would be far happier relying on the sympathetic instincts of a concerned, caring medical staff responding from experience than we would on the mechanical chapter-and-verse demands of pragamatic pedants. Even if it resulted in somewhat unusual even unorthadox treatment.

Our view is that Dr. Gal, and his thousands of associates throughout the medical world should be highly complimented, instead of being censured, for the kindly, considerate, caring way they daily face up to tragic situations most of us can barely imagine, and for the relatively high level of responsibility they exercise in meeting these problems.

To our way of thinking it is tragic that so much time, so much money, so much talent, so much legal and so much medical expertise should have been exhausted in so minutely dissecting such a case as that of Candace Taschuk and Dr. Gal. Especially when we're prone to close our eyes, to completely avoid seeing other major problems existing right next door to us, tragedies such as wife beating, such as child abuse, such as the evils consequent on race oppression, race abuse, and hatred.

ADC lends $43 million

Harold Hanna, chairman and managing director of the Agricultural Development Corporation (ADC), has announced the corporation's lending results for the first quarter, which ended on June 30, 1983.

Direct farm lending for the quarter equalled 238 loans for a total of $43.5 million.

Three hundred and nine of the loans, amounting to $60.9 million, were made to beginning farmers.

Specific guaranteed loans to farmers equalled 22 loans and totalled $0.87 million, while guaranteed loans made under the Alberta Farm Development Loan Program accounted for 2,137 loans and totalled $39.9 million.

In the area of agribusiness, seven specific guaranteed loans were approved for a total of $5.2 million, while eight operating loans were extended for a further $0.5 million.

Compared with the same period in the previous year, the volume of direct lending in the first quarter of 1982-84 was down by $18 million or, by about 29 per cent. This was the result of continuing insensitivity in agriculture and the increased lending activity of other lenders.

Mr. Hanna says that the corporation expects there will be a continued emphasis on guaranteed loans providing that commercial lending rates remain at or near their current levels.

With the reduced level of direct lending, ADC's field staff have been able to devote more time to financial counselling and assisting farmers in difficulty to restructure their affairs.

Mr. Hanna also emphasized the necessity for the corporation to be responsive to the changing credit needs of the agricultural industry in Alberta.

Ebeling named to ADC posting

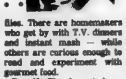
Randy Niven, Manager Farm Lending, has announced the appointment of Ken Ebeling to the position of Assistant Manager Farm Lending effective September 1.

Mr. Ebeling brings to the position extensive experience in agricultural lending having been employed by the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Commercial Credit Corporation, Federal Business Development Bank, and the Bank of British Columbia.

For the past two years, Ebeling has been employed with the Agricultural Development Corporation as a Senior Business Analyst, dealing with agribusiness loans and complex farm lending proposals.

Ebeling is married, has three children, and will continue to reside in Camrose.

Patricia Young Says . . . . .



I am always surprised to hear someone say that they are bored. Surprised because every square foot of this earth offers a lifetime of interest and study. Those people whose lifestyle is hemmed in by family, job, relations, neighbours and the newspaper horoscopes suffer a lack of curiosity, and inevitably, become bored.

You could almost say that it was curiosity that got man out of his cave. While need may have motivated his drive, it was curiosity that led him to experiment and ultimate success.

Many years ago when I worked at The Mansion House, home of the Lord Mayor of London, I learned that my office stood some twenty feet above the original site of the first Roman encampment set up to colonize the newly conquered land in 43 A.D. After a lifetime of reading about that one square mile of old London, my life is just that much more enriched by knowing exactly where Dick Whittington lived, where Dickens supped, where the Canterbury Pilgrims were assembled and which Livery Companies funded the first settlers who set off for the New World.

The origins and growth of education throw great light on the meaning, purpose and state of education today. The simple chore of hunting down the origin of the names of cities, streets, lakes and mountains gives man a great sense of world community, since history itself is registered in the choosing of such names. During a period of sickness, I spent weeks tracking down the origin of expressions such as "dead as a door knocker" and "by hook or by crook". Curiosity has led me to investigate the customs, traditions and lifestyle of the Biblical era, making the Biblical stories clearer. To be sure, no man can learn everything in one lifetime. The sky, the sea, field and forest are an education in themselves. We have men and women whose whole expertise is contained in the study of just one species of ape, flora, fauna or bird.

There are experts on fabrics, wines, those who fly kites. There are homemakers who get by with T.V. dinners and instant mash — while others are curious enough to read and experiment with gourmet food.

Bored? We do not have anyone to blame but ourselves. The whole of the universe, past, present and future, is ours to discover. All it takes is a little curiosity.

Past Time Pastimes

By Shirley Elsh

August 26, 1926 — Indian legends tell of a friendly sea monster in B.C.'s Okanagan Lake. Many people, some sober, have claimed to have seen this monster, even in recent times. A host of names referred to this dragon-like creature, undoubtedly a cousin to Scotland's Loch Ness Monster. The Vancouver Province newspaper, on this date, referred to the monster as Ogopogo, a name that has become the official name of this creature.

August 26, 1922 — Prime Minister Mackenzie King informed the the British Government that Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill's remarks were unacceptable to Canada. Turkey and Greece were fighting a minor war in the Balkan Peninsula and as Turkey had threatened to attack a British military garrison in the area. Churchill warned that such an attack would bring Britain and the Commonwealth, including Canada, into the war. Prime Minister King maintained that Canadian troops could only be committed to foreign action by Canada's Parliament, not the British Parliament. Britain agreed to confer with Canada, and other Commonwealth members, in situations which involved Commonwealth members. This latest, Chanak Affair, was an important episode in Canada's road to total independence from Britain, achieved in 1931.

August 28, 1792 — Captain George Vancouver sailed into Nootka Sound aboard the Discovery to accept the transfer of Vancouver Island back to British control. Spain had occupied the Island in 1789. The threat of a war with Britain convinced Spain to withdraw from the Island. The Spanish Captain Juan Bodega y Quadra transferred the Island to Vancouver.

September 1, 1983 — ". . . It will never amount to anything more than a village or town for the simple reason that in neither its position nor its surroundings is there anything to give it the slightest commercial importance. Situated in a vast plain of inferior soil, with hardly a tree to be seen as far as the eye can reach, and with about enough water in a miserable little creek known as Pile of Bones to wash a shirt, it would scarcely make a respectable farm." Although this long winded editor could be describing most prairie settlements, he is referring to Regina, Saskatchewan. Newspaper editors were always promoters of their community and never missed an opportunity to criticize a competing settlement. In this instance, the editor is reacting to the selection of Regina as capital of the

Communications system is approved for firemen

by Ken Kronlund

Tofield Town Council has received the go ahead from the Department of Communications to set up the new fire communication equipment.

Council was informed by Millman's Communication Ltd. that the new equipment could be installed by as early as the middle of October.

The new fire communications equipment consists of two hand-held radio telephones, 10 pagers, a repeater, a tweer and various other related equipment.

The new equipment will give the firemen greater mobility within the town. From the handhelds, a fireman will be able to page any of the firemen with pagers, be able to set off the siren directly from the handhelds, direct cass at a fire and be able to call different agencies for backup.

The new fire equipment is estimated to cost $16,000, of which the County of Beaver has agreed to pay half.

A delegation from Tofield Industrial Developments were in to discuss with council the proposed industrial development of their land west of 51 Street and south of the railway tracks.

If the proposal goes through, there would be 22.5 acres developed, with a possible 49 saleable lots for industrial and commercial development.

At a suggestion from the Rural Development meeting held week, Tofield Council will be writing the Village of Ryley requesting to use their landfill site in the interim between the filling of the Tofield landfill and the development of the new regional landfill site.

Directors of the Rural Development meeting were informed by Ken Simpson, head of Waste Management for Alberta Environment, that the proposed regional landfill site would be decided by this fall.

In other business, council approved a 5% increase in wages for the recreation director. The increase will be retroactive to July 1.

Kids Day held

by Ken Kronlund

Kids of all ages showed up at the Tofield Fairgrounds on Saturday to take part in the Tofield Legion's 3rd annual Kids Day

It was estimated that over 300 children of all ages were out to take part.

There were 570 cans of pop given away, 12 gallons of ice cream and 300 hot dogs.

Kids could be seen all over the Fairgrounds sipping on a pop, licking an ice-cream or wolfing down a hot dog

There were even a few of the "older kids" seen enjoying a hot dog, or even an ice-cream cone.

The other big attraction at Kids Day was the Ketchemut Creek Family Horse Club's pony rids.

There were 14 ponies in the rodeo enclosure, being led by members of the club

Long lines-ups of kids stood patiently waiting their turn to ride on a pony around the enclosure.

Bob Scott said the Legion was grateful for the effort put into the Kids Day by the Ketchemut Horse Club.

The day was successful, said Scott.

Church gets new steeple

by Ken Kroetsch

After three years without a steeple, Holden Lutheran Church was re-steepled last Friday.

The new steeple, built by Bill Voigt of Tofield, is 36 feet from the base to the top of the cross and is estimated to cost $6,000. Add to the height of the cross and height of the church and this makes the total height of the church to be 65 feet.

The steeple was lifted up in place by a 70 foot crane, balanced by ropes on the ground.

Three years ago, the old steeple was removed due to rotting. It was reported that many people had missed the weather vane that had adorned the top of the steeple, just under the cross.

At the raising of the new steeple, several people standing watch commented on how nice would be to be able to look out of their windows and see the weather vane on top of the steeple of the church.

In 1914, the Ladies Aid bought the church lots at a cost of $227.50. In 1915, the present church was built for an estimated cost of $1,300.

As the building was being built, two members of the three-man building committee thought that a bell would make the church look better.

The 2,000 pound bell was ordered from Chicago

It was reported that one Saturday afternoon the bell arrived at the station and was delivered to the church.

Several people gathered around the heavy bell, many feeling the bell couldn't be lifted into the church tower.

"Who said it can't be done," said Paul Kjomeen, one of the members of the building committee.

Solid planks were set against the tower window, tongs placed in the tower and two good horses with tackle were used to slide the bell into the tower.

Within thirty minutes the bell was in place and ringing out to the people gathered

In 1926, water and sewer were installed in the church; in 1961, cement sidewalks were added; in 1986, the sacristy was built; in 1972, a new heater put into the basement; in 1978, new carpets were put on the outside steps; in 1979, new toilets and new eave troughs were added; and now, in 1983, a new steeple is put in place.

Farmers work long hours

Prize winners
Doug Brown, Cheryl Berg, Dale Herbert and Ben Hofer were four of ten door prize winners offered to school age children at the Farmer's Market Thieme of the Farmer's Market last Friday was Back to School.

Long days!

That about sums up the situation in the country where farmers are racing against the calendar and the weatherman in an effort to get crops of the fields.

While many are putting in long hours, some are still waiting to get started as their crops fell considerably behind in development when some regions were hit harder than others by the poor weather that prevailed through much of the growing season.

The best progress to date has been reported in the New Norway area where all of the rye crop has been removed from the fields and a good start has been made with canola and barley while wheat cutting is now underway.

Farmers around Rosalind have commenced threshing operations for barley and canola and wheat cutting is started.

Over one-half of the winter wheat and rye has been harvested in the Daysland region with a start having been made with canola and barley.

Canola threshing just got underway in the Holden region while cutting of canola, oats and barley is about twenty percent completed.

Cutting operations are just nicely getting underway with barley and canola in the Round Hill region and threshing should start next week.

Most other regions have begun to cut crops and threshing will commence at intervals over the next two weeks.

It is about a week or so too early to accurately predict what sort of grade the crops will receive until more cutting is done although it will vary greatly from one region to another.

the province at a cost of $750,000 each.

Another type of regional system is the regional incinerator, located at Wainwright.

The cost to build the plant at Wainwright was $1,500,000.

"The kicker of the operation is the operating cost."

Simpson said while the operating cost of a regional landfill site was around $13 to $15 per capita, that the cost for operating an incinerator could be as high as $30 per capita, though the Wainwright plant is the first of its kind in Alberta, this figure was an estimated one.

He said the plant would have to be in operation for a couple of years before an accurate cost could be obtained

Simpson said that if cost of operating this type of plant proved to be cheaper than estimated, then this could be the route taken in garbage disposal in the future

The higher cost of running this type of equipment were attributed to higher maintenance, higher wages for qualified people, and for auxiliary fuel used to ignite the garbage.

Simpson said it was a bit more efficient way to dispose of garbage, but more costly.

The second area is special waste management, previously discussed and the third area dealt with by their department is recycling.

Simpson said the other two areas are a result of a breakdown in recycling. He said that if there wasn't so much waste in the first place that problems in the first two areas would be solved

At the present time metal, paper and glass are recycled each year, cutting down on the amount of waste put into regional sites

Rural development Project No. 4 was organized eight years ago for communities who couldn't afford to have a development officer

This way communities could be banded together to hire a co-ordinator.

A representative from each community involved meet once a month to discuss shared problems in their community

These areas are investigated by Rural Development and then each director reports back to their councils the findings of the board.

There are 12 communities involved in the Rural Development Project No. 4, of which Ryley, Tofield and Holden are members.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. G.H. Taylor

A former Holdenite, Mike Tkaczyk was a recent visitor in Holden, calling on relatives and friends in the district.

The steeple from the Holden Lutheran Church, which was taken down a few years ago in poor repair, has now been replaced by a new one over the past weekend, giving the church its original look.

Mr. and Mrs. Stan Wandio were recent weekend visitors with his sister.

Mrs. Beulah Latimer, a cousin of Clare Anderson and Mrs. Helen Lewis and a niece from Wattford, Ont. who have been visiting with him for the past week, left on their trip home Friday morning. While here, they visited with Mrs. Frances Hanson in Viking Nursing Home and were Thursday evening visitors with Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor. Mrs. Lewis also went to Grande Prairie visiting for two days with her son, his wife and two grandsons.

Mrs. M. Zusak, who is still a hospital patient, is making satisfactory progress from her operation.

Mrs. Bill Harasymchuk and daughter of Edmonton were callers last week with relatives here.

Friday afternoon visitors with Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor were their son and wife, Brian and Dineke Taylor and granddaughter, of St. Albert, also Dineke's father, Professor Oevlee of Bennekom, the Netherlands who is returning home next week after visiting with his family for the past six weeks.

Mrs. Bertha Chetney has had her daughter, Helen and friend of Vancouver, B.C. visiting with her the past few weeks.

Mrs. Frances Hanson was home on Saturday and Sunday from the Viking Nursing Home.

Owing to The Mercury now being published on Tuesday instead of Wednesday, the news is being picked up by Mr. Watt on Monday morning. Any news items, classified ads, etc., should be handed in to me on Saturday or, phone 688-3810.

Mr. and Mrs George Taylor were Sunday guests with their son and family, Mr. and Mrs Robert Taylor in Viking. Their granddaughter, Saylor picked them up on her way home from Edmonton. Saylor who took a course in Early Childhood Development at Lakeland College in Vermilion is now employed at a school in Mill Woods.

Teacher transfer upsets committee

The Future of Holden School Committee has learned that the Board of Education has approved the transfer of Joyce Wilke, a Holden Grade Four teacher, to Viking School where she will teach special education.

This move was made as a cost saving measure, in view of expected declining enrollment for Grades 5, 6 and 7.

She will not be replaced at the Holden School, resulting in a proposed class split of Grades 7 — 6 and 5 — 6.

The Future of Holden School committee has called a meeting of all students' parents and interested persons for Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. in the Holden Community Hall to discuss these latest turn of events, and obtain the feelings of those present.

The committee feels this latest move is in direct conflict to a board motion of March of 1983, which states that Holden and Ryley Schools will remain as is for the upcoming year.

Without the September enrollments in place, the committee feels that this action was premature and irrelevant as a cost sharing measure as the position is budgeted for.

The committee is very distressed with the increase in taxes, long overdue, supported various cuts in staff, supplies, etc.

The committee felt that firm plans were in place for September 1983.

The committee will determine if the parents wish to combat these moves and will release a statement in the near future.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

The library will return to regular fall/winter hours beginning tomorrow, Thursday, September 1. The hours will be: Tuesday 1-5; Wednesday, closed; Thursday 3-5 and 6-9; Friday and Saturday 10-12 and 1-5.

On the new book table this week, look for one of three new parenting selections. "Our Endangered Children: Growing Up In A Changing World", written by Vance Packard takes a look at the overall environment children are living in today. Such topics as working parents, daycare, single-parent families, media influence, and so on are looked at with reference to how our children are affected.

Dr. Thomas Lickona's book "Raising Good Children" is a guide to helping your children, from birth through the teenage years, to develop moral maturity. Instilling basic good values in children is always a high priority with most parents, even more difficult today.

"A Parent's Guide To Streetproofing Children" by Richard Gossage takes a look at the physical safety and well-being of children in our care. It provides many tips on training children, especially young ones, to watch out for the many hazards of modern life.

Speaking of life, George Burns offers his advice on how to have lots of it, in "How To Live To Be 100 — Or More". With his own brand of humor, the author covers exercise, diet and attitudes for a long life.

New fiction selections include Peter Straub's recent novel, "Floating Dragon". As the author of Shadowland, and Ghost Story, Straub presents another novel of the occult.

Jack Higgins is quite contemporary in his choice of plot in the new book "Exocet", a spy novel set in the Falkland Islands.

A small, and quite different fiction selection, is Leon Rooke's book, "Shakespeare's Dog". It is written as a humorous biography of William Shakespeare as seen through the eyes of the family pet. Also look for additional new paperbacks, such as "Return of the Jedi", "Superman III", "In The Heat Of The Summer", "Still Falls The Rain", and others.

Fashion Show

While we don't want to rush winter on, it makes sense to be prepared for the cold blowing winds. A fashion show featuring cold weather clothing is being sponsored by the MacPhee Workshop, September 14 in Edmonton. Featured will be various parkas of all kinds, ski wear and children's outerwear. Following the show, fabric, patterns and garments will be on display. If you are considering sewing a parka or have sewn one but want more ideas this could be an interesting evening. Shows run at 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. at the Old Timers Cabin, 9420 - 99 St. For tickets, phone 973-3516.

Home Economics

Returning to school is synonymous with new shoes, old friends and bag lunches. If you run out of interesting lunch ideas after the first week of school, read on.

Making non-sandwich lunches once in a while shakes the routine a bit. Try packing a cold picnic type lunch with a hard boiled egg, deviled sandwich meat slices, cheese and a pickle. Put in a few crackers, an apple and the lunch has a serving from each food group.

Try wrapping luncheon meat around a cheese wedge or lettuce leaf. Served with a bun, thermos of cream soup and a dessert, the meal is complete.

A wide-mouthed thermos filled with stew, chili or baked beans is welcome on a cold day.

When roasting a chicken, remove the drumsticks and save for the next days' lunches. Or, consider buying a package of favorite chicken pieces, cooking them all at once and freezing them. Thaw them as needed for lunches.

Including "goodies" in the lunch makes mom popular. Packages of raisins or nuts are good snacks that aren't too hard on the teeth.

Making a lunch interesting is often the difference between a lunch that is eaten and one that is continuously forgotten on the bus.

Farm income will drop

While farm cash receipts in 1982 remained similar to those of the previous year, 1983 cash receipts are forecast to drop by nearly 7 per cent or by $301 million.

Total cash operating expenses are also expected to drop, but by only 4 per cent. This would bring Alberta farmers' net cash income in 1983 to slightly above the 1979 level.

However, because prices rose by more than 35 per cent from 1979 through 1982, many farmers are continuing to be hard pressed to meet such financial commitments as principal payments on outstanding debts and ongoing cash expenses.

According to the assistant head of Alberta Agriculture's statistics branch, Lorraine Hope, machinery costs, which have risen by 94 per cent since 1979, continue to be the largest on-going expense being faced by Alberta farmers today. She points out that these machinery expenses include only fuel, parts and labor for repairs; they do not include the purchase of new equipment, nor do they include the interest paid on existing equipment. Ms Hope says these increased costs, which have been accompanied by lower incomes, have resulted in many farmers repairing their old machines rather than buying new ones. And she adds that "While this approach allows for an immediate decrease in the total cash cost to the farmer, the difference between the old equipment, which is worth less, and the new equipment, which continues to increase in price, will be much greater when the old machinery is finally replaced."

The reduction in interest rates from their unprecedented levels in 1981 has been the one bright spot for farmers in 1983. The lower rates charged by the federal Farm Credit Corporation and the provincial Agricultural Development Corporation have enabled some farmers to refinance their debts to match their present and projected incomes. However, even though total interest costs for 1983 are expected to be down by $62 million from what they were in 1982, the $418 million in interest costs that will have to be paid by Alberta farmers this year remains one of their larger cash expenses.

Ms Hope expects cash receipts from crops in 1983 to be down by more than $169 million. She points out that a weak demand and burdensome world grain supplies will mean lower grain prices. Wheat receipts are expected to be up slightly, but barley receipts are projected to drop by 22 per cent. Canola receipts will remain similar to what they were in 1982.

Cash receipts from livestock are projected to be down by $138 million in 1983.

Playground report

Young cowgirl

This young lady gets a boost up on the horse by one of the members of the Kettchemut Creek Family Horse Club. The Kettchemut Club were on hand for Kids' Day to give free pony rides to all of the kids. It was estimated that over 200 kids took part in the activities last Saturday.

A summer full of experiences could very likely sum up the past two months for Nancy and I at the Playground.

The Preschoolers were always enjoyable and full of surprises.

Our afternoon crew were constantly challenging our creative talents while also keeping us in shape with soccer, British bulldog, tag, etc.

Our weekly special events were well attended throughout the summer, and hopefully enjoyed also.

Daycamps I and 2 were undoubtedly the highlights of the summer. The kids and the atmosphere at Elk Island Park combined, made both camps loads of fun. We had our problems, of course, but nothing that couldn't be solved by a hand-aid, a hug or a stern reprimand.

Another great part of our Summer Programs was the cooperation that we received from Liz and her staff in the Library. The storytime and films were a definite asset to our weekly activities.

Also, our shack hit the scene late in July, and with lots of busy helpers, it was painted beautifully in no time. It will be a great help next year for storing materials.

All told, this summer has been just great!

All the volunteer support and parent involvement have made Nancy's job and mine much more enjoyable.

A few weeks ago, we had reprinted an article taken from the U.G.G. Grain News publication. In recent weeks, new information has come to light that considerably alters the impression left by the first article. The article deals with the risks associated to contact-lens-wearing people while welding and it describes an incident where the lenses were fused to the wearer's corneas after receiving a "flash" from an arc welder.

The topic has apparently been a victim of sensationalism, and the following article from the August 22 issue of Agri-News will hopefully set things straight. We hope that the information originally printed caused no [illegible]

Contact Lens Scare Story Untrue

The staff of Alberta Agriculture's Farm Safety Program have received a number of calls from people who are worried about the danger of wearing contact lenses while welding.

The alarm was triggered by a recent article that stated that two workers wearing contact lenses had apparently lost their sight when the arcs and sparks that are generated during the welding process bonded their contact lenses to the corneas of their eyes.

The manager of the Farm Safety Program, Solomon Kyeremanteng, reports that the information he has received from the Alberta Optometric Association indicates that there is not truth to the above statement. He quotes the association's spokesman, Glenn Campbell, as saying that it is physically impossible for a contact lens to be bonded to the wearer's cornea, and that the heat generated by a welding arc or an electrical spark is not nearly enough to dry out the tear fluid in the eyes. Mr. Campbell also said that there is no possibility of a contact lens being able to intensify the heat in the eye by concentrating the light rays that are produced during welding.

However, welding does pose dangers to the eyes, and it is for this reason that all welders, regardless of whether or not they wear contact lenses, should always wear the appropriate safety glasses or goggles.

A welder who does not wear the proper tinted safety glasses or welder's goggles has a good chance of developing a condition called photokeratitis from exposure to the ultra-violet radiation in the welding arcs. Although this condition rarely causes permanent damage, it can be very painful for from six to 24 hours. And it is important to remember that a hot spark can burn unprotected eyes just as well as unprotected skin.

Holden parents hold protest march

... over teacher transfer

by Ken Kroetsch

An estimated 300 parents and children braved the cold and rain last Friday morning in protest to the recent County of Beaver Board of Education's decision to eliminate a teacher position and combine grades in the Holden School.

Future of Holden School Committee member Bobbie Schweitzer said she was pleased with the turnout of parents.

"This was the real test as to whether or not we (the Future of Holden School Committee) had the support of the parents," said Schweitzer.

The decision to protest came at a meeting last week of concerned parents who had gathered to discuss the decision and what action they would take.

Schweitzer addressing the group said the meeting had been called after obtaining information concerning the transfer of a Holden teacher to Viking.

"It wasn't had that she was moved, because she is qualified. The problem is that she won't be replaced," said Schweitzer.

By not having the teacher replaced, the Grade 6 class will be split, with 12 students going in with the Grade 7 class and eight students going in with the Grade 5 class.

Another concern raised at the meeting was the Board of Education's prediction of declining enrollment for Holden School.

"We're saying our numbers are not that bad. We don't have nearly the decline the board is projecting," said Schweitzer.

Schweitzer told these present that the FSHC felt these moves were detrimental to the school and community both.

In a report, Ron Mulich committee member, said the writing is on the wall that the board's intention is not to keep the school open in Holden.

He said that as each day passes there seems less likelihood that a school will remain in Holden.

"What are we going to do as a community to combat this?" asked Mulich.

Different suggestions and alternatives were discussed by the group.

An emergency meeting with the Board of Education for the following night was an idea agreed upon by most of those present as an immediate course of action.

Board of Education chairman, Hjordis Armitage was contacted during the meeting to see if such an emergency meeting could be arranged.

Armitage phoned back and said that an emergency meeting was not possible, but said that time would be made available at the regular board meeting this week.

An alternative was sought since an emergency meeting couldn't be arranged.

The decision was made by the majority of the group to register their children in school on Friday and then take the children out of classes and march in protest in front of the school.

Schweitzer said that while the majority of those present were in favor of the march there were those parents who would not. She said that in no way should these people be harrassed or stopped from entering the school.

She said it was a march of protest, not picketing of the school.

It was also decided that the Future of Holden School Committee and three parent representatives, with children in each of the grades involved, attend the Board of Education meeting on the following week.

Another suggestion made was to have parents phone either the school superintendent or the Board of Education chairman to express their concerns.

Parents meet Board

A delegation of parents attended yesterday's (Tuesday) meeting of the County of Beaver Board of Education.

The delegation was from Holden and they were in attendance at the meeting to express concern about the future of Holden School and specifically, to debate the teacher situation in that school.

Spokesmen for the group asked the Board to rescind a previous motion and either return a transferred teacher from Viking or, to hire a substitute for Holden School until a permanent teacher is obtained.

The delegation was concerned that the loss of the teacher would be another step in eventually closing the school in Holden.

Members of the Board assured the delegation that there was no intention of closing the school, at this time.

It was noted that the county had anticipated an enrollment of 1,850 students for the present term but, that registration figures showed only 1,814 pupils had actually entered county schools.

248 students were registered for Holden School but, on Tuesday morning, only 137 had shown up for classes with many parents apparently keeping their children out of school as a boycott to protest the transfer of a teacher to another school.

A representative of the teaching staff of Holden School met with members of the Board on Tuesday morning with this session being held behind closed doors in an 'in camera' meeting.

The meeting with the two delegations took up most of the morning portion of the meeting and there was only time for a brief debate among board members before the noon break.

When The Mercury's news deadline arrived, a decision on the request of the parents had not been reached.

Protest march

Parents and their children began to gather last Friday outside the Holden School to protest against a County of Beaver Board of Education's decision to eliminate a teacher position and to combine grades. As the morning rolled on, more and more parents joined the march. Shortly after these people had started to gather it started raining.

Farmers question yields from reclamation fields

by Ken Kroetsch

Several farmers were concerned that yields from the Camrose-Ryley reclamation plots gave anyone reading the test results a misconception of the yield of the land.

"It's actually not telling the farmer what he is going to yield if he takes the land over," said one farmer during the discussion period of the Camrose-Ryley reclamation demonstration plot open house.

Erin McAllister, of McAllister Environmental Services, consultants on the project since 1975, said that in trying to evaluate the capabilities of the land they had to go for maximum yields. He also said that for anyone reading the reports, there was a section in the front explaining this.

He said it was a case of two different concepts; one of a scientific nature where they were going for maximum yield regardless of cost, to find the potential of the land; and the other at an economic nature where the person farming the land wouldn't necessarily go for maximum yield, but for maximum profit.

Farmers also expressed concern over the late planting of the crops this year. One farmer said he had to plant in the spring and take what he could get, regardless of the weather.

The planting this year on the demonstration plots was delayed.

The delay, said McAllister, was to make sure there was good germination to get a uniform stand.

Another concern expressed by the farmers was that reclaimed soils had received fertilizers two years previous to undisturbed land, making the test results, in the farmer's estimation.

McAllister said that to his experience it wouldn't have made much difference in results if both had received fertilizer at the same time.

The discussion of the Camrose-Ryley demonstration plot open house followed a tour of the demonstration plots.

McAllister showed farmers who attended, the various plots, explaining the different results that had been found this year.

Fox Run set

by Ken Kroetsch

The Terry Fox run scheduled for September 18, will be run entirely in the boundaries of Tofield this year, said John Blades, organizer of the run.

Last year, said Blades, the route for the run was from Tofield to the campsite at Shonts and from Ryley to the campsite.

There was a lot of work setting up the run and having to have transportation from the run for both areas.

By having the run held within the boundaries of Tofield, this will eliminate the problem of transportation, said Blades.

Last year, 180 people participated in the run, bringing in $3,380 towards cancer research.

Pledge sheets will be available over the next couple of weeks through the schools or, by phoning John Blades.

Blades said they are expecting the same amount of people to come out this year and he encourages everyone to pick up a pledge sheet and come out.

For further information about the run, call John Blades at 662-3946.

Nominations

Interest in civic elections is still building slowly throughout the region, as dwellers in city, towns and county give more and more thought to whether they want to have a hand in doing a superior job of governing local affairs over the next three years

Some of the seats, of course, will be filled by representatives who have decided to "have another go at it", or who are drafted by acclamation, since in so many cases, there is a shortage of candidates willing to take their chance in the democratic vote process. Some, we know, are willing to serve, but shrink from the electoral process. Some, also, would accept a two year term, but shrink from a three year commitment.

However, it is becoming more and more clear that many a seat is not going to be contested by past office holders, so that more and more new candidates are needed.

One of the great privileges, and at the same time, one of the great responsibilities, of living in a democratic country is the opportunity to represent other people in the community, and the privilege of selecting among the various offerors.

More than that, many people with experience behind them, both men and women, feel the opportunity to serve in elected office is one of the great educational experiences, one that can be gained in no other way. Among other things, it offers strange insights into the ways peoples' minds work, ways it might be hard to forecast if not given that experience.

There is also the feeling, vastly rewarding, as you look at some piece of legislation, some piece of construction, some area of development, that "I played a role in that. It's better than it would otherwise have been because of the contribution I made to its progress."

We need to give great thanks to those people who have carried the role of alderman, councillor, trustee, mayor, reeve, or whatever. We may disagree, sometimes, with the way they do things, even with the things they do, but it's hard to disagree that they have given a tremendous amount of time, a great deal of thought, and often, no little personal or family sacrifice, in their attempt to spread the cement of democratic action.

But we need also to look around us, with a good deal of industry, thought and persuasion, for the people who can help mold things in the future the way we think they should go.

"I don't care if the kids do enjoy it! We are not buying a sports car without any back seats And that's final"

Slowing down

It's interesting to see the requests of the power companies to delay construction and development of planned power generating projects which only a couple of years ago seemed essential.

Until only recent months Alberta utility companies cited the fact that usage of electric power in Alberta was increasing at rates faster than anywhere else in the Dominion, and it was necessary, really, to plan for doubling the size of the entire generating system every seven to ten years. And the huge costs involved in doubling, at recent construction costs, has been reflected in the assault on power bills over recent years.

The devastation of Alberta following the National Energy Program, however, nipped that continued escalation of power usage in rather dramatic fashion. No longer are people's meters reading more every month. No longer are there more and more customers every month. Indeed, a net outflow of people from Alberta results in fewer customers, smaller readings.

The result is that the forecast of doubling in seven to ten years has been revised to doubling in from twelve to fifteen years. Based on those figures, say the utility firms, we already have enough generating capacity in place to handle needs for some time into the future, and programs for phasing in more and more kilowatts should be slowed down.

It's hard not to think the utilities board would agree with them. After all, few of us would mind postponing the next increase in utility rates consequent on huge construction costs.

Patricia Young Says . . . . . .

One of the freedoms we take for granted is freedom of the press, largely because we have never been without it in North America. Like breathing, we presume that we are at liberty to read what we want, print what we want and in addition, enjoy radio and TV. Yet we rarely think of man's search for this right and means of communication. In essence, the newspaper is one of the world's biggest private enterprise businesses — excluding, of course, the communist publication which has long since become a tool of propaganda.

Would you believe that the ancester of the newspaper dates back to Rome of 449 B.C.? At this time, officials of the Senate deposited offical documents and speeches in the Temple of Ceres, where slaves made hand printed copies for distribution to wealthy citizens. Later, sporting events and gladiatoral [redacted] The first "Letter to the Editor" was from Cicero in 51 B.C. when he was fighting overseas and complained that he did not want to read about stale gladiatoral combats but rather what Rome was saying about him!

The world's first official newspaper might well be The Acta diura (The Daily Acts) authorized by Julius Caesar in 60 B.C. which was posted in the Forum for common citizens to read the news of finance, elections, politics, [illegible]

The invention of the printing press changed the nature of communications. The first regularly published newspaper was the Avisa Relation oder Zeitung founded in Germany in 1609. The first English language newspaper sheets were printed in Amsterdam in 1620 and shipped to England. The word newspaper itself was first used by a reader writing to The Oxford Gazette in 1670 when he asked to subscribe to the news paper (as against the news sheets).

News letters were circulated in Virginia as early as 1619 and gave the news of home, public observances and ships arrivals. Bostons first News Letter printed only 250 copies although Boston had a population of 10,000. Subscription was $4 a year or a penny a copy on the streets. By 1800, there were 7,000 newspapers in the USA alone.

Needless to say, the world's newspapers have performed many valuable services besides presenting the news. The New York Herald financed the sending of Stanley to find Livingstone. They also fitted out the ill-fated De Long expedition to the North Pole. Newspapers have often been in the forefront of raising funds for disaster areas and funds for medical research. Oddly enough, the revered "Fourth Estate" was to soon include a radical Underground Press, a strange new medium of pornography, pot and revolution. As against these weird splinters, the larger newspapers will often involve a staff of over 2,000. A single piece of machinery might cost over $1,000,000. Between News Agencies, Newspaper Unions and Newspaper Guilds, we have probably come a long way from the news sheets posted in the Roman Forums.

BEWARE OF SILO GAS

Life on the far can mean death on the farm for the unwary who are exposed to poisonous silo gases.

These gases are produced by fermentation and form a deadly layer on the surface of the silage.

Although most often regarded as a danger in the fall when new silage is placed in the silo, gases are produced throughout the year. Farmers should be cautious at all times when entering their silos.

The West needs its own party

Dear Sir:

I am surprised to hear how many Canadians are being lulled into a false sense of security by the latest rumors being circulated from Ottawa and Edmonton. Namely that Mr Trudeau is retiring and that an elected senate based on areas will be an issue in the next election. Surely we know from past experience that we can expect just the opposite to what we hear from either source

When ... there would never be ... went up approximately .10¢ a litre. Are we so dumb or rich that we can afford to go to sleep? or are we so lazy we prefer to bury our head in the sand and kid ourselves it can't happen here??

We need a Western Oriented political party here in Western Canada. One that is responsible to the people of Western Canada and works for the benefit of the people in Western Canada.

One need only look at the tremendous strides that Quebec has made since the formation of its own provincial oriented political party the P.Q. to see what can happen when people decide ...

... serious about an elected senate. None of them were serious about retaining Property Rights in our constitution, of course our Provincial government claimed in the last election we had them, but since then have come out publicly and admitted they are opposed to having them in the constitution.

Mr. Whalen has his Canagrex bill through Parliament. They have everything set up for their Secret Service to commence operation. Therefore, I would urge every one to sit up and take notice of what is going on. To get involved with promoting a Western Political party that will ...

Dear Sir:

The Lakeshore-Mackenzie re-union was a very enjoyable event for all of us that were able to attend.

I appreciate Arnold Jone's idea of having the re-union and also the great amount of planning and work that was done by the many other people that worked so hard to make this day such a success

To some of us that have attended the Lakeshore School as a pupil, then later as a teacher there and finally living in the District for many years this was a very special occasion.

Thanks ...

Reclamation

During a tour of the reclamation plots of the Ryley-Camrose reclamation plots, Erin McAllister of McAllister [illegible] Environmental Services showed the farmers and interested parties the various findings they have found in land reclamation in the area. The tour was followed by a report from McAllister on last year's crop and discussion.

At the beginning of the Ryley Community Hall, McAllister said this was the most peculiar year he had ever seen and that the test crops had suffered in all, did the farmer's crops in the area.

"It's a real blow to the farming community. It's a year where a lot of people who don't live on farms cannot begin to appreciate what the farmer is going through," he said.

The Camrose-Ryley demonstration plots are in their eighth year of testing. The project is planned to continue for another two years.

At that time, said John Railton, manager of environmental planning for TransAlta Utilities, whether or not the project will continue will depend on the attitude of the Provincial Government towards the project and whether they will be willing to put in money.

In 1975, TransAlta Utilities had proposed the development of a six unit coal-fired electric generating plant in the Lo-Ad-Round Hill area.

In 1978, TransAlta and Fording Coal set up pits two and three and were setting up pit one for bore tests to determine the boiler construction prior to opening the mine, when the Provincial Government deferred the project in favor of electrical power development in other areas.

One reason for this, said Railton, was the local opposition to the project and partly because no one was able to prove reclamation could be done at that time.

When the Provincial Government deferred the project, TransAlta and Fording Coal decided to continue research to show reclamation could be done.

Railton said there has to be a time for the land to function properly again, approximately eight years, before it can be turned back to farmland.

Railton said there were also concerns from the farmers one year when the crop was frozen in the bonds.

The crops were taken and an estimate of the crop was taken for research purposes. The farmers objected to this feeling that because nothing was harvested, nothing could be recorded.

Railton said that a lot of money has gone into the project not to have results from one year.

The tests done on the reclamation plots are done by comparison of reclaimed soils and undisturbed soils in the same area.

Both areas are fertilized the same and planted the same to give a comparison.

Initially, plants and crops are selected for their ability to rebuild the soil.

There are two types of rotation used in the tests. One is a three-year period of Alfalfa followed by one year of barley rotation and the other is a four-year rotation of canola, wheat, barley and fallow.

Buying Computers

Home computers are the hottest item on the market They are marketed as though every modern family must have one, just to keep up to [illegible]

Computers and the necessary accessories are very expensive items A lot of homework and research is advisable before you make the purchase. You will want to determine, first of all, what you will use it for and what do you expect the computer to do for you. These may seem like simple questions but buying a computer simply for the kids to play around with could be a disappointing experience

Questions value of home canning

Home food preservation has been with us for centuries, but it seems that it is becoming more and more difficult to justify this practice from an economic point of view.

Reasons for preserving foods at home include a better flavored product, convenience, year-round variety, personal satisfaction and economics. However, according to Alberta Agriculture's food and nutrition specialist at Airdrie, Suzanne Tenold, it is very doubtfull whether economics should be included in the reasons for preserving foods.

She says the home preservation of food products is a very commendable practice, and that is certainly has an important place in our traditions, heritage and personal satisfaction. However, she points out that it is becoming increasingly difficult to show a "profit" from such a pursuit. She also points out that the home preservation of food can be very satisfying and enjoyable, but that the subjective values we assign to our efforts can cover up the harsh economic fact that it does not usually pay.

She recommends that anybody who is planning to do home preserving for the economic advantages ask himself the following questions.

● Do I compare the cost with the same commercial products?

● Do I take into account the time I spend?

● Do I calculate my time on an hourly wage basis?

● Do I consider the transportation, gardening, and material costs that are necessary for my efforts?

● Do I put a dollar value on the products I make?

● Do I consider the money lost in products that must be discarded because of spoilage?

"Be Safe, Not Sorry"

This time of year always brings with it the "harvest hurry". Long hours are spent in the field to beat the weather and fill the bins. Mental and physical fatigue usually accompany these long hours — many times at the expense of farm safety. Short cuts may save time but may often lead to serious accidents causing personal injury and/or heavy financial losses.

When servicing and maintaining machinery, make sure the machinery is shut off. After repairing, replace all guards and shields. They are there for your safety, not for decoration.

Night-time operation is especially dangerous. Moving belts are difficult to see at night and, if you've only had 3 or 4 hours of sleep the night before, your fatigue may reach for a moving belt before your brain realizes what you're doing. Today's grain bins are getting higher and thinner, a long way down to the ground if you should fail. Be careful with those.

With the significant amount of second growth in the crops this year, many farmers may consider drying. For those that may be drying grain, try not to leave your dryers unattended especially if something has not been functioning properly. A grain fire is extremely hard to put out before extensive damage occurs.

And, last but not least — be patient with the helpers. One too many sharp words to a lady who cooks meals between truck loads, may be detrimental to the completion of harvest!

Advanced Payments for Crops Program Popular

More Canadian farmers every year are taking advantage of Agriculture Canada's Advance Payments For Crops Program.

In the 1982-83 crop year, 41 producer groups participated in the program. About 20,000 farmers received financial assistance

The program offers producers interest-free advance payments for their crops. This eliminates the need of selling the crops immediately following harvest when prices are at their lowest, allowing farmers to extend their marketing season. Since its creation in 1977, advance payments for farmers have totalled $230 million. The federal government has paid interest charges on those advances totalling more than $18

BETWEEN THE COVERS

The fall/winter hours are now in effect, and the summer reading game and film program have finished now that school has begun. The two winners in the Spinning into Space game were Nia Roberts and Jennifer Warner There runners up will also receive book prizes. Kevin Sommer, Keith Reichenbach and Jason Warner. Congratulations to all five, and to all the kids who came and played and read so regularly.

The Preschool Story Hour will begin again Tuesday, Sept. 13, and will run for four consecutive weeks. This program is designed for children who have had their third birthday, and consists of stories, puppet play, singing games, etc. It runs from 10-11 each Tuesday morning, and a charge of $3.00 covers simple craft materials. Please preregister at the library, as the maximum group size is 20.

There is more new fiction this week, with the addition of P.D. James' detective novel "Skull Beneath the Skin". Mrs. Pollifax also makes another appearance in Dorothy Gilman's novel "Mrs. Pollifax on the China Station", set in modern-day China. The many readers of Catherine Cookson's novels will be pleased to try "The Whip", set in nineteenth century England, featuring the orphan, Emma, sent from Spain to live with her unknown grandmother.

On the nonfiction side, look for two books on different wars: Roy Macleren's "Canadians Behind Enemy Lines 1939-1945", covers clandestine operations during the Second World War in many different theatres. "My Grandfather's War" by William Mathieson is subtitled "Canadians Remember the First World War," which is a good description of the memoirs and first-hand accounts it contains.

For Canadians, it's not all bad news

By W. Roger Worth

With depressing news about everything from unemployment to bankruptcies cluttering our daily lives, it is perhaps time to reiterate just how fantastically lucky we Canadians really are.

First, let's consider the [illegible]

Food - Thanks to our hard-working farmers and fishermen, the country has no shortage of foodstuffs. What's more, the prices (compared to most other countries) are among the lowest in the world.

The Japanese, for example, spend about 40 percent of take home pay on food products, and the West Germans about 30 percent. Canadians lay out a lowly 22 percent, which is not bad at all.

Energy - We may complain about the high price of oil, gas and electricity, but at least we have an adequate supply. In fact, Canada is now a net exporter of energy.

Shelter - Canadians are among the best housed people in the world and, compared to people in other nations, the cost is reasonable. One need only consider the tiny size of apartments in Japan or even Europe to understand how well off we are.

Wealth - On a per capita basis, Canadians are among the wealthiest people anywhere. We have such an abundance of land, water, minerals and other resources that people in other countries have difficulty understanding why we haven't developed them to a greater degree.

Support Systems - Through such programs as unemployment insurance and social assistance, Canadians are guaranteed that they won't starve and that they will have a roof over their heads. Medical care and education is available to all, and virtually anyone can receive a university or technical school education at bargain basement prices.

The support system may not be as elaborate as some would like, but it surely provides all needy Canadians with the basic necessities.

Lifestyle - With a relatively low crime rate and few racial problems, Canadians live in a peaceful environment that impresses most visitors to the country. In addition, we have a democratic system of government that provides the freedoms denied to a great proportion of the world's population.

Canadians, it seems, are introspective. We complain about our seemingly horrendous day-to-day problems, giving little thought to the hundreds of millions of people who go to bed hungry.

So perhaps it is again time to take stock. No matter what the news headlines may suggest, Canadians are very well off indeed.

Copper, ammonia, heat vital to getting best out of feed

Feed samples in Saskatchewan have shown that the copper content of many Prairie feeds is low to marginal for cattle.

This was the subject of a paper presented at the Western Section Meeting of the Canadian Society of Animal Science by Dr. D.A. Christensen of the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon, and the paper is one of four that have been summarized below by Ross Gould of Alberta Agriculture.

In his paper, entitled "Copper Deficiency in Prairie Feeds", Dr. Christensen said that the low to marginal copper content of many Prairie feeds showed up in feed sample surveys, and that the problem may be further compounded by drinking water that contains 1200 to 2400 ppm of sulphate. This is because sulphate interferes with an animal's ability to make use of the copper that is in the feed.

Dr. Christensen also reported that studies carried out at the University of Saskatchewan have shown that some growing cattle in that province exhibit a low to marginal copper status (the same situation can be expected to exist in parts of Alberta). However, when supplemental copper, sulphate or both were added to a standard ration in a feedlot trial, the copper did not improve gains. The sulphate actually reduced gains in both Hereford and Holstein steers after the animals had been on trial for 56 days. And while the added sulphate reduced the feed efficiency of the Hereford steers, copper fed in combination with sulphate restored it to the same level as that of a standard ration.

"Preserving High Moisture Alfalfa and Brome Grass Hay with Anhydrous Ammonia"

In his paper on preserving high moisture alfalfa and brome grass hay with anhydrous ammonia, Dr. J.A. Robertson of Agriculture Canada's research station in Melfort, Saskatchewan, said that ammoniation at the 2 per cent level prevented heating and the development of mold in both alfalfa and brome grass hay that had been baled with a moisture content of less than 35 per cent. Untreated bales that had been baled at the same moisture level exceeded an internal heat of 30° C for two to three weeks after baling, and they developed an extensive amount of mold.

Dr. Robertson also siad that the crude protein content of the treated hay increased by 7 to 9 per cent, and that treatment increased the digestibility of the organic matter, protein, energy and fibre.

Sheep apparently ate more of the ammonia-treated hay than they ate of either high moisture or dry baled hay that had not been treated.

"Pasture Improvement in Aspen Parkland"

In his paper on pasture improvement in aspen parkland, Duane McCartney, also of the Melfort research station, reported that a long-term pasture rejuvination study showed that rough pasture land that was rebroken, seeded and fertilized in alternative years with 80 pounds of nitrogen and 40 pounds of phosphorus produced 2,320 pounds of dry matter in the year in which it was fertilized, while similar pastures in the area that had not been fertilized produced only 1,033 pounds of dry matter. He also said that there was a carryover effect in the years when the pasture received no fertilizer, which produced 23 per cent more dry matter compared with yields from unfertilized pastures. This increase in production from the use of a fertilizer resulted in a longer grazing season, lower winter feed costs, an increase in calf gains per acre and a significant reduction in the number of acres required per cow. In 1982 a cow-calf unit grazing on pasture that had been rebroken, seeded and fertilized required only 3.2 acres compared with 3.7 acres for pasture that had been only fertilized and 5.4 acres for pasture that had been left in its natural state.

According to Dr. Robertson, untreated pastures in the area where the study was conducted have produced 52 pounds of calf gain per acre since 1978, while pastures that were fertilized produced 77 pounds of calf gain per acre and pastures that were rebroken, seeded and fertilized produced 80 pounds of calf gain per acre. The pastures that were fertilized every other year produced about 25 more pounds of calf gain per year for an average cost of 40 pounds of nitrogen and 20 pounds phosphorus per year.

"Heat Damage in Large Round Bales"

In his paper on heat damage in large round bales, Dr. J.A. Stelford of the University of British Columbia said that a study conducted by the University of British Columbia and the B.C. Ministry of Agriculture and Food showed that large round bales that had been baled with a moisture content of from 30 to 35 per cent generated internal temperatures of 72° to 75° C. those that were baled with a moisture content of 20 to 21 per cent, generated internal temperatures that ranged from 58° to 78° C, while bales that were baled with a moisture content of 13 per cent generated internal temperatures of 45° to 46° C.

[...]portant finding was the fact that heating reduced the dry matter digestibility of the hay from 57 per cent to 44 per cent in the better quality hay and from 53 to 50 per cent in the poor quality hay. And most important of all, the heating caused a major decrease in the amount of protein that could be digested. Only 9.2 to 11.5 per cent of the protein in hay that had been baled when dry was indigestible, while the 30 to 37 per cent of the protein had been damaged by heat to the point where it was indigestible in those bales that had been baled with a moisture content of from 30 to 35 per cent.

More detailed information on any of the above papers can be obtained by writing to the authors. However, copies of the original abstracts that were published for Canadian Society of Animal Science meeting can be obtained from Ross Gould, Beef Cattle and Sheep Branch, 7000 - 113 Street, Edmonton, Alberta, T6H 5T6 (Telephone: 427-5335).

RCMP has busy summer

In the past summer months of July and August the RCMP Detachment in Tofield has opened a total of 400 new files.

These files result from the public complaints, information received by our members from different sources and from other Detachments and agencies.

Among the 400 files are 36 Assist General Public complaints, which range in nature from inquiries to noisy parties; 51 motor vehicle accidents were reported and investigated; 21 break and entry; 33 thefts; 20 frauds, and 13 mischief were also brought to our attention.

As result of patrolling our area's highways, 17 persons had their licence suspended for a 24-hour period, or were charged, due to drinking and driving. 19 traffic notices were issued, 26 traffic tickets were given out, for violation of Provincial laws, other than speeding.

Tofield's Detachment members also responded to seven family disputes, four attempted suicides, four shooting complaints and two fires of a suspicious nature.

All complaints that were received were investigated, with the majority being concluded.

However, some investigations are still ongoing, or awaiting court.

The RCMP would greatly appreciate any information, however slight, which you may have in regards to any of the above noted occurrances.

As a closing note.

Due to the large number of inquiries regarding off highway vehicles, mini-bikes, and all terrain vehicles, operated by minors, that we have received, we feel that we should pass along the following.

Tournament held

by Ken Kroetsch

It would have been a perfect weekend for the Tofield Harvest Klassik Slowpitch Tournament if it hadn't rained during the final game of the A Event.

Even though they had to play in the rain, the game was finished leaving the Ryley Rebels wet, but undefeated.

The Rebels beat Sherwood Park Panthers in the final game to win hooded jackets with a 'Harvest Klassik' crest. The crest was on all the prizes given out.

The Sherwood Park Panthers placed second in the A Event winning lined jackets; Kai's [illegible] placed [illegible] winning baseball shirts; and the Bonnyville Pop-ups placed fourth, winning baseball shirts.

In the B Event, first place went to Thor Lothers, winning sports bags; the Sports Kings placed second winning sweat jackets; Woody's Checkers placed third winning T-shirts; and Antler Lake Whirlwinds placed fourth winning T-shirts.

The female most home runs went to Cindy Svitich of the Lamont Rowdies. The men's most home runs went to Jerry Kruger of the Colchester Old Fogies.

The booby prize, consisting of lemon suckers and baseball caps, went to the Tofield Tire Retreads.

There was a good turnout both nights for the dance.

On both Saturday and Sunday mornings, there was a pancake breakfast sponsored by Sigma Beta Phi.

Races cancelled

Three horse races, scheduled for Camrose this month (September), have been cancelled.

The races were to have been held on Sept. 11, 18 and 25 under the sponsorship of the Camrose Agricultural Society.

Cancellation of the races was announced earlier this week by the society, because of the financial risks involved.

In making the announcement, a spokesman for the society suggested that it would be wrong for the society to risk incurring a loss when it already owes substantial sums of money to the business community in Camrose.

According to the society's racing committee, profits from standardbred races are marginal and, if circumstances (weather) were unfavorable, a financial loss could easily be experienced.

In an effort to curtail expenditures, the society has already reduced its staff and running of three race meets would thus involve a lot of volunteer assistance.

With farmers heavily involved in harvesting operations, such volunteer help could not be guaranteed.

Another problem is the fact that the society is required to clean up immediately after each race meet and with volunteer assistance not being assured, the committee noted this could be a major problem as they could not afford to hire a commercial firm (or the city) to do the job.

Hay Lakes

by Mrs. A Arnston

Neil and Karen Johnson, accompanied by Karen's mother, Mrs. Agnes Holm of Regina, attended the wedding of Neil's nephew, Colin Gunn, which was held in Duncan, B.C. on Aug. 20. On the return trip they were accompanied by Neil's mother, Mrs. Chris Johnson of Duncan, B.C., who is spending a few weeks here.

Mary Ellen Johnson of Toronto is presently visiting with her parents, Neil and Karen Johnson, and on September 12th will return to the National School of Ballet in Toronto. During the month of August Mary Ellen attended the Ballet School in Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Melvie and three children of Fort McMurray were recent visitors at the homes of Mrs. Kristine Forsen and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Arnston.

The District Health Nurse will visit the Hay Lakes Senior Citizen Center on September 12. The change to Monday afternoon is only for this month.

Two fires reported

There are two fires to report from the last couple of weeks.

The first fire was a structure fire north of town, along Secondary Road 834.

The fire was in a log building used as a machine shop. The building and all contents were lost.

The other fire was a grass fire in the Belvedere subdivision on the future site of the Tofield Health Centre.

The fire was a small grass fire and has been blamed on children playing with matches.

There was a good turnout for rollerskating last week with 191 people showing up. Last week was the final week of rollerskating.

Rollerskating in Tofield was a joint effort of the Tofield Fire Department, Tofield Parks and Recreation and Wheelies of Sherwood Park.

Hail study reviews effects of sulfur

The Atmospheric Sciences Department of the Alberta Research Council is investigating the possible relationship between sulfur emissions and decreases in hailfall.

A study undertaken several years ago by the Research Council suggested that increases in sulfur emissions might be associated with decreases in hailfall. The recently developed research aircraft is used in this study. Gaseous emissions are tracked from gas plant stacks into the base of clouds where measurements are taken to determine any relationship between the emissions and rain and hail production.

The most active day was August 24 when two storms developed in the project area and one outside the area. Pea-sized hail was reported in the [illegible] as a storm developed west of Sundre and tracked southeast to Airdrie.

In the late evening another storm developed in the Eckville area forming a line from Dickson north to Gull Lake.

A storm developed in the Hanna area in the afternoon. [illegible] it remained outside the project area.

Grape-sized hail was reported in the New Norway and Bawlf areas August 23. These storms, which developed in the late afternoon south and southeast of Camrose and tracked northeast, were not seeded.

On August 20 thunderstorms developed in the Red Deer and Three Hills areas. Pea-sized hail was reported at Delburne and Lousana. No seeding was carried out because of the small size and short duration of the storms.

T.G.H.A. Flashes

September 23rd is the sod-turning ceremony for the new Tofield Health Centre.

This is a very important day for all, as it marks the first concrete step to the new hospital. The THA fund drives will mean more now as the facility that they are aimed towards, grows. The new hospital will require many articles and services that the THA hopes to supply. "A dream in the making!"

The THA plans to conduct a (Lottery No. R10282) raffle with the following prizes, 1st prize — Dollhouse completely decorated and fully furnished; 2nd prize — Afghan; 3rd prize — child's quilt.

Tickets will be available at the next farmers market (Sept. 9) selling for 3/$1.00. The winner's names will be drawn on Nov. 12 at the Bazaar. After the regular monthly meeting, tickets will be available from THA [illegible].

On Nov. 12, the THA is holding a Bazaar which will feature a spice sale, baked goods and homemade treasurer — all geared for the [illegible] this, in the coming weeks.

All THA members wish to express their gratitude and appreciation to all volunteers who made Heritage Days such a big success. A special thanks goes to the behind-the-scenes people who prepared the special ethnic goodies in advance and donated them to the tables.

The first THA monthly meeting this fall will be Monday, Sept. 19 in the Tofield School library at 7:30 p.m. See you there.

Lakeshore-McKenzie news items

by Ellen Eaton

If you have any news items however small it may be, would you please have it ready when your correspondent calls. Now the holiday season is over maybe we can start the column again.

Mrs. Mae Ferguson and grandmother Wanda Weir of Lakeshore rode their horses in the Bruce Stampede Parade and won first place, receiving ribbons and a trophy.

A baby girl was born to Nelson and Ren-Ai Ferguson of Sherwood Park on July 9th, Melanie Dawn, a sister to Kristopher and Matthew. The proud grandparents are Mrs. Mae Ferguson of Lakeshore; Ren-Ai's mother, Mrs. Shirley Greenwood and husband of Salmon Arm, B.C. and her father Lawrence Olson and his wife Kay of Beaumont.

The Lakeshore-McKenzie School reunion July 30 and 31st was a real success with both former students and teachers coming from all over, not only Alberta but B.C., Ontario and one was here from Texas as well as other provinces. A thank you was given to the organizers, especially Arnold Jones who was the originator of the idea but also to all those helping with it.

Rita Powell spent about ten days at the Eaton farm the end of July and first of August and her daughter, Linda Niemetz spent a week. Walter Eaton and all of his family were camped at the farm also during the school reunion and on Sunday, July 31st a family reunion dinner was held and Ellen Eaton joined the rest of her family at the farm. Leroy and Shirley are living on the farm so a large gathering were there consisting of three and four generations of Ellen's family. All attended part of the school reunion.

Ethel and Verlyn Moos of Tofield and Ethel's brother Donald and Fran Baines of Edmonton attended Decoration Day in Gadsby on Aug. 28th. Gadsby the home town of the Baine family and th family members gather there most every year, some members still live in Gadsby making it also a family reunion. Ethel's brother Art of Gadsby has passed away leaving only members of his family.

Randy and Kim Jones have moved from Wetaskiwin and are now living on Randy's father, Arnold Jones' north farm, better known as the Anderson farm across the new highway from the Billie Miskew farm.

Donald and Marlene Eaton and three children of Seba Beach were recent visitors at the apartment home of Donalds' grandmother, Ellen Eaton enroute home from visiting Marlene's parents at Bonnyville.

The weather has finally turned cooler and early this morning (Fri.) quite a heavy rainfall fell but now the sun is shining but quite a chilly wind is still blowing. The farmers will be glad it it continues clearing as several are combining some of their crop now, others are in the midst of haying and with any delay at this time of year, there is a chance of frost hurting the late crops.

Decendants of the Waterston family of Camrose met at the home of Glenn and Theone Jones for the annual family re-union. There were 35 guests present from Camrose, Edmonton, Sherwood Park, Tofield and other point. Arnold and Glenn Jones are the sons of Mabel (nee Waterston) and Leslie Jones of Lakeshore. The weather co-operated for a very lovely day for the picnic.

The Lakeshore U.C.W. will begin holding their monthly meetings this month after two months' holidays. The date and place of the meeting will be announced later.

Farmers race clock

Farmers are continuing their race against the clock and the weatherman to an effort to remove crops from the fields.

According to reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool, threshing of crops is now general throughout the entire area.

Rain, which hit certain areas on the past weekend, can bring harvesting to a complete standstill and the other problem faced at this time of year is the threat of frost.

Light frost was reported last week in the Rosalind, Holden and Camrose areas with slight crop damage being reported as a result.

One-half of the canola crop has been removed from the fields in the Rosalind region along with about twenty percent of barley and a start has been made with wheat.

One-quarter of the canola crop in the Camrose area has been harvested and threshing of other crops is now underway.

Tofield area farmers are just getting a good start with their crops.

Farmers in the New Norway area have reached the mid-way mark in getting this fall's crops off the fields while other regions are now reporting that harvesting is in full swing.

Grading varies greatly from one region to another.

Canola in the Daysland area is rated at about ninety percent number one with the other extreme being around Tofield where only forty percent is getting that classification.

Camrose farmers are getting a sixty percent number one rating while most other regions are in the second category for most of their crop.

Most regions are reporting that about sixty percent of the barley crop is getting a number one feed rating with Hay Lakes being on the low end with most of the barley in that area getting second and third feed category ratings.

over one-half of oats and barley is off the fields along with twenty-five percent of canola and a start has been made with wheat.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. G.H. Joyce

On the weekend of August 27th, the family of Jack and Emily Ogonoski along with relatives and numerous friends gathered at the home of Robert and Ramona Ogonoski, south of Ryley, for a surprise celebration for Jack's 65th birthday, also for Emily's birthday which she would celebrate a few days later. They came with holiday trailers, tents, vans and campers from Niaku, Millwoods, Sherwood Park, Edmonton, Ryley, Ardrossan, Holden and Red Deer. With the co-operation of the weather, a good time was enjoyed by all. On the following Monday evening, a number of friends gathered at the home of Jack and Emily to help him celebrate his birthday.

A successful Bible vacation school week was held at the Emmanuel Evangelical Church north of Holden under the guidance of Rev. Brown. There were 25 children from the district attending, and on the final evening, Friday, the children held a concert and a display of their week's work which was shown to the parents and friends attending the concert.

Mrs. Frances Hansen of the Extendicare Nursing Home in Viking was home for the weekend.

A number of residents took advantage of the holiday weekend and good weather, going out to the lakes around St. Paul.

Jack and Emily Ogonoski had their families visiting with them during the holiday weekend.

Mrs. Rose Sharpe is home after spending several days the past week at the lake.

Helen and Jim Zwierchko arrived home over the weekend after spending a two-week holiday overseas, leaving Calgary on July 17th and arriving at Manchester, England, leaving by train for Scotland where they visited with cousins of Helen's.

Sidewalk program okayed for Holden

by Ken Kroetsch

Holden Village council gave third and final reading to approving the tendering of curbs, gutters and monolithic sidewalks from 48 to 50 St. along 51 Ave., at a regular meeting last week.

There will now be a waiting period while the project is put to tender.

After a tender is accepted, the tender will be forwarded to the Local Authorities Board for their approval.

Council is hopeful the project will go ahead this fall.

The Tofield Recreation Board asked council to consider putting a no open fires sign in the recreation grounds after concerns of open fires were expressed.

Council passed a motion that a "no open fires are permitted" sign will be put up at the recreation grounds.

The project for a junior ball diamond at the recreation grounds will not go ahead this year. The $800 in reserve has been told over in reserve until 1984.

In other business, council decided to sell the excess black dirt from the lagoon construction for $5 per yard.

Teaching position restored

by Ken Kroetsch

The County of Beaver Board of Education changed an earlier decision to split grade 6 in the Holden School, during an emergency meeting last Thursday morning.

Due to public pressure and a strong public outcry, the decision was reversed.

In a press release, the Board of Education said that effective immediately, individual classes would be implemented for grade five, six and seven and an additional staff member be hired for Holden School.

The board stressed in its press release that they did not agree with the contention that split grades were a detriment to the students' education.

The board said they have had split grades in the past and felt they are a necessity when dealing with large and small enrollments.

This motion rescinds an earlier decision at the last regular meeting to leave the split grades the way they were and to hire a ¾ time teacher to alleviate a problem caused by the split.

The original decision to transfer a Holden teacher to Viking and to split grade six was made at a special meeting of the school board on August 22.

Following that meeting, an emergency meeting of the Future of Holden School Committee was called to inform parents of the school board's decision by committee members who had found out about the change.

Approximately 300 parents and concerned citizens attended the meeting to express their concerns.

When an emergency meeting between the School Board and concerned parents failed to materialize, parents decided to hold a protest march in front of the Holden School and withhold their children from school.

It was also decided to have a delegation attend the School Board meeting the following week.

A delegation of 25 people, the Future of Holden School Committee and concerned parents, attended the School Board meeting to express their concerns to the board and to ask the board to reverse

Blazers win

The Blazers fastball team, representing this zone, won the gold medal at the Alberta Summer Games.

The Games were hosted by the Mountain View County and the ladies' fastball was played in Olds

All participants in the games received sport bags, T-shirts and three meals a day at no cost to the participants.

The Blazers went through the tournament undefeated, beating teams from Barrhead, Red Deer, Medicine Hat, Calgary and Edmonton.

The game closest in score was the final for the gold against Edmonton in which the Blazers won 6-5.

Laura Convey-Kechan was the winning pitcher in all five games.

Cheryl Banack hit an over the fence home run in the first game against Barrhead. It was the only out of the park home run in the tournament.

The Blazers also won the Edmonton Sun Tournament this past weekend which took place in Josephburg. They received a cheque for $1,000 for their win.

Members of the team have worked hard this year to establish a competitive provincial team. They hope to have a rookie camp in early next spring for women in the area that are interested in playing at a provincial level next year

Members of the Blazers are Mona Kaudalies, Loretta Convey-Lyons, Laura Convey-Kechan, Cheryl Banack, Maureen Convey-Solberg, Lis Brimacombe, Mary Thompson, Sharon Kaudalies, Bonnie Boles, Yvette Schneider and Sarah van Tilborg.

Holden plans run

by Ken Kroetsch

The 10 km route for the Terry Fox Run is set up in Holden and ready to go this Sunday, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Participants can either run, walk, jog or cycle the 10 km course, or whatever distance they feel comfortable with.

Interested persons wishing to participate in the Terry Fox Run can obtain pledge sheets either from C Mathews, 662-3753, at the Royal Bank or, at the Lucky Dollar.

The Terry Fox Run is to honor a Canadian hero who touched the hearts of many Canadians and people around the world by his determination to walk across Canada to raise money for cancer research.

This is the third annual Terry Fox Run to honor his memory.

Last year, there were 125 communities in Alberta that took part in raising funds, raising $500,000 towards cancer research.

Restraint

"Teachers are really not interested in going on strike because of the effect it has on the education of students," declared Walter Kulak recently as he surveyed salary bargaining developments in the North Central East School Authorities Association, and pointing out a strike may commence on Sept. 28.

"However," continued Mr. Kulak, "the economic restraint placed on us by school boards with their two percent offer is more restraint than the teachers think they should bear."

Mr. Kulak's argument seems to redefine a line which has been growing stronger and stronger almost every day in recent month, the line being between those of us who work for government and those of us who do not.

The first seems to be a group that seemingly hasn't heard of hard times, the second includes a very substantial percentage who live with that fact on a daily basis.

Examples are legion, it seems on both sides, and there are many people, even including other teachers, who would be willing to take the status quo, much less a two percent increase. Only this week, for instance, did Chrysler workers catch up the actual cut in wages they took two years ago, simply to keep on working. Massey Ferguson workers agreed to no increase.

Doctors in Prince Edward Island are flocking to work for the government in the Department of Veterans affairs offices to be opened there shortly.

On the other side, union contracts with workers see the Post Office paying merely casual workers more than twice what those same unskilled workers can earn in private industry. City of Camrose contracts see half again being paid on the same basis. And a report out of B.C. points to a relatively minor government official whose office commands two full-time secretaries, at $27,000 each per year, simply because of a union contract.

Mr. Kulak and his boss, Mr. Berlando, and the teachers' association, might do well to look at the economic levels in the counties in which they are negotiating. The counties have not, in years past, been niggardly in meeting teacher salary contracts. But this year, especially, faced with poor crops, higher operating costs, uncertain incomes, more foreclosures, more bankruptices, more tax arrears, the counties are more than reluctant to "look on the bright side".

They're staring reality in the face. It's time Mr. Kulak did, too.

Illiterates

It's more than co-incidental that Canada should be hearing complaints of illiteracy from two ends of the scale at the same time. On the one hand, we have the universities complaining bitterly of candidates sent to them for higher education who cannot handle the English language in everyday workable fashion, while at the other end, we hear of surveys being taken which demonstate that fully a quarter of our population is "functionally illiterate," a description which is taken to mean they have not achieved even the level of Grade 9 capacity, and so are not able efficiently to work in the business world today.

The former must, of course, be a relatively fixed level of capability, but it has to be admitted that the functionally illiterate description is one which is relative, relative to the business development and the level of technology in which the general population is working. We may be functionally illiterate in Canada, for instance, though we might be considered superior in some of the developing nations.

But both criticisms come after public school education has endured, for far too long, some of the fallacies and the theories of 'modern education'. One of these has been that phonics, phonetics, or sounding out of words is not nearly as efficient or as productive, as word memorization, recognition, instant identification. It has taken nearly half a century for 'experts' to say, in effect, 'great if you can recognize the word, but of what help is it if you come across one you have never seen before . . . at least phonics provided some help.

The second fallacy has been that of automatically passing a child to the next grade, regardless of whether he had achieved or not. Children know when they've made it or not, and scoff at a system that doesn't make demands on them. But years and years of this sort of 'system' have bred even teachers who don't demand or expect very much of their pupils . . . they'll still be passed to the next grade at the end of June.

Reading, Riting, and 'Rithmetic went headlong into decline as modernists established how outdated they were, and how much in need of reform. What with easy accessibility of the ultra-efficient computers of today, it could be that 'Rithmetic has to be viewed in a new manner (though it seems an understanding of computation, of figuring, is essential to knowing whether the computer got it right or was a mile off).

But 'Rithmetic apart, it seems clearly demonstrated that Reading and Riting are being viewed as essential in a way that hasn't been recognized in almost half a century.

Free Medicare from politicians

R.R.3,
Saskatoon, Sask. S7K 3J6
August 31, 1983

Dear Sir:

Recently the media has subjected us to many news items regarding the medical care system. The theme has been that socialists, be they NDP, Liberal or PC, are still insisting on free medical care for all. The term "free" as socialists use it is deliberately deceptive. Since Medicare has to be paid by someone, it is not free. I suppose that socialists are hoping that people in general have been educated, at great public expense, to be ignorant enough to believe the "free" socialist propaganda, and consequently will vote for them in future elections.

If governments and medicare are really free, why would these same socialist-type politicians enslave so many people with so many taxes to pay for all the free services including Medicare? This political deception may be legal as are so many evil things in our society, but it is not morally right.

What is even more shocking about our politicians is the fact that they knowingly create both sickness and crime by allowing the sale of the killer drug alcohol. This politically-sponsored drug, we are told, has killed more people in the last few years on the roads alone than all the Canadian servicemen killed in both world wars. In addition, it is also responsible for countless maimings and cripplings, abused children and wives, as well as countless divorces and pregnant teenagers. These are only a few of the political rewards; rewards because politicians use this human carnage to justify Medicare. As well, our high-price prisons are full of our younger people because alcohol was a factor in the crimes they committed. The political, killer drug alcohol is the only product to my knowledge that politicians sell directly for a non-government, private corporation. Selling alcohol has many financial rewards for elected politicians and other vested interests, like doctors, lawyers, the courts, car repair shops and undertakers, to mention a few. Alcohol also has a disastrous effect on its users and their innocent victims, both dead and alive. Politicians see alcohol as the Holy Water of Politics. It allows them to stealthily create the problem for which they make millions of dollars, and then in their two-faced manner, they appear to solve the problem they have deliberately created.

Politicians also allow that [illegible] who has partaken of [illegible] killer drug alcohol need never fear the usual type of justice if they commit crimes under the influence. In this case, punishment is greatly reduced by the courts. The rule is, if you want to kill someone, get under the influence of the Political Holy Water first. It will allow anyone to get away with murder if properly planned. Politicians see to it that courts deal very leniently with anyone who commits a crime under the influence of their Holy Water. They just cannot afford to give their favourite product a bad name, no matter how many people get killed.

The use of alcohol has in fact created a bonanza for the medical profession by supplying them with numerous patients, some dead and others barely alive.

On one hand, the politicians claim there are not enough funds available to properly look after the sick and on the other, they continue to supply more patients to the overloaded system. Two things need to be done. The first is to let the brewers and distillers sell their own holy water and be responsible for the problems they create. Second, the present Medicare system should be scrapped because it has become a political racketeering cartel where nearly every family in Canada has become its slave, either as a patient or as a payer. It must be taken out of the hands of our politicians [illegible] innocent people have been sacrificed to make the socialist politicians appear as if they really cared.

ADC's lending results

Harold Hanna, chairman and managing director of the Agricultural Development Corporation (ADC), has announced the corporation's lending results for the first quarter, which ended on June 30.

Direct farm lending for the quarter equalled 338 loans for a total of $43.5 million.

Three hundred and nine of the loans, amounting to $40.9 million, were made to beginning farmers. Specific guaranteed loans to farmers equalled 22 loans and totalled $0.87 million, while guaranteed loans made under the Alberta Farm Development Loan Program accounted for 2,127 loans and totalled $29.9 million.

In the area of agribusiness, seven specific guaranteed loans were approved for a total of $5.2 million, while eight operating loans were extended for a further $0.2 million.

Compared with the same period in the previous year, the volume of direct lending in the first quarter of 1983-84 was down by $18 million or by about 29 per cent. This was the result of continuing uncertainty in agriculture and the increased lending activity of other lenders.

Mr. Hanna says that the corporation expects there will be a continued emphasis on guaranteed loans providing that commercial lending rates remain at or near their current levels.

With the reduced level of direct lending, ADC's field staff have been able to devote more time to financial counselling and assisting farmers in difficulty to restructure their affairs.

Mr. Hanna also emphasized the necessity for the corporation to be responsive to the changing credit needs of the agricultural industry in Alberta.

SEWING AND KNITTING SUPPLY SHOPPE

September is National Home Sewing and Needlecraft month. Be sure to check out local stores for specials offered during this promotion.

Fashion trends make it more and more advantageous to sew and knit your own clothes. Investment dressing is the key to wardrobe planning. This means having fewer clothes at better quality and fit, that mix and match to make varied outfits.

Making clothing items at home has numerous advantages, the first being cost. A home-made garment of comparable quality to store-bought is most often less expensive. The reason? You're providing the labor!

The second advantage of making your own clothes is getting a personalized fit. Anyone with fitting problems can attest to the frustration of trying to find ready-made clothes that fit properly.

Because wardrobes have fewer items, it is most important to match yarn color and texture; creating a mix and match wardrobe. Again this matching is easier done with fabric and yarns than with ready-to-wear clothes.

Other advantages of "home-made" include adding your personal touch to garments and the satisfaction of making it yourself.

If you are new to home knitting and sewing check for courses being offered in your area. This county has many talented crafts for people who are willing to share their skills.

Why not take advantage of the cost savings and personal satisfaction of producing your family's clothing at home.

If you are interested in learning a specific skill, (sewing, etc.), contact the District Home Economist and some instruction can be arranged.

Hockey league set

The Camrose County Senior Hockey League will definitely operate this coming winter.

Following a preliminary organizational meeting last week, league officials were assured four entries and at least one more (if not two) could be forthcoming.

Returning teams from last winter will include Bashaw, Kingman, Round Hill and Tofield Tires.

It would appear to be certain that New Norway, who was unable to complete the schedule last winter, will not be back.

Bawlf was represented by a team consisting mainly of players from Camrose last winter and that team could be back with league officials uncertain if it would operate out of Bawlf, or Camrose.

There are reports (unconfirmed) that the Camrose Maroons could be applying for entry. Maroons won the championship of the Camrose Commercial Hockey League last winter.

League officials have set another meeting for Thursday evening at which time the team line-up for the 1983/84 season will be finalized.

That meeting will be held in the Aquatics Centre in Camrose and will get underway at 7:30 p.m. and any prospective new entries should be represented.

It was agreed that league officials should get in touch with representatives of Bawlf and New Norway to see what those two centers are going to do about last winter's unpaid ice rental fees.

Because of increased costs, league officials will be investigating a number of fund-raising ventures.

Another move that is receiving consideration will be the possible move of the annual All Star Game from one community to another. In the past, this contest has always been held in Camrose.

A third re-sting will be held later in the month and at that session, a new executive will be elected and the constitution will undergo a number of revisions.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. G.H. Taylor

On Thursday the Holden L.C.W. held their regular monthly meeting. Bible study was led by Mrs. Kathleen Harum and Mrs. Annie Laube read the offering meditation. The ladies made a donation to the Canadian Bible Society. A discussion was held regarding a fall bazaar, tea and home baking sale and the ladies decided to hold one on November 5th. The meeting adjourned and lunch was served with Mrs. Ethel Brekstad being hostess.

The Holden Senior Citizens Club will be holding a meeting on Sept. 20th.

Mrs. Ethel Brekstad and Melvin Fjeldstrom were to Viking on Friday afternoon and called on Ethel's aunt, Mrs. Frances Hanson, in Viking Nursing Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Olson had their daughter, Mona and two granddaughters visiting last week. Mona, her husband and family are hoping to make their home in Camrose.

The Friendship Group will be resuming their meetings this month, starting on Sept. 21st.

A former Holden resident for many years, Mrs. Lillian Gertrude Bye of Edmonton, passed away on Thursday, at the age of 89 years. She is survived by her three children, Lois B. Kells of Trochu, Mrs. Shirley McKeag of Fort McMurray and Robert R. Bye of Edmonton; seven grandchildren, Cheryl, Howard, Glennis, Denise, Cindy, Sherry and James; and three great grandchildren, Andrea, Nathin and Shawn. The funeral service was held on Saturday, at Howard and McBrides Chapel and interment took place at the Evergreen Memorial Gardens.

Mrs Bye and her late husband owned and ran the meat cleaning and grinding mill in Holden for many years, it being on the site of Pete Milunsky residence.

After Mr. Bye died, Mrs. Bye carried on the business for a number of years with occasional help. Then owing to health problems, sold the business to Mike A. Komarnisky and left to reside in Edmonton near her son, Robert and family. A few years ago she sold her home owing to poor health and has made her home in Ottewell Lodge in Edmonton.

Albert Johnson was a visitor last week with Mrs. Frances Hanson at Viking Nursing Home.

Steve Tkaczyk, who was a hospital patient for some time having had surgery, returned home on Wednesday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Gammon and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Gallanor of Langley, B.C., visiting with them recently for two weeks.

George Giebelhaus, who was a patient in Viking Hospital, was transferred to the General Hospital in Edmonton for further treatment.

Bruce gets post

by Ken Kroetsch

Though new to some in the area, for most, the new County of Beaver Superintendent of Schools, Marvin Bruce, will be a familiar face.

Bruce was Supervisor of Instruction in the County of Beaver from 1966-69, and Superintendent of Schools from 1969 until he left in 1974.

Bruce is presently employed as the Director of the Regional Office of Education in Lethbridge. He has held this position for the past nine years.

Bruce has taught school from grade one to senior high. He also served a five-year period as Superintendent of Schools in Killam.

While in the area previously, Bruce served on the Tofield Town Council for three years and served as secretary-treasurer for the Ag Society for four years during the time the arena was being built.

Bruce received his education at the University of Alberta and his Masters degree from the University of Oregon.

Bruce is married and has three daughters. He will start work on November 1st.

its decision.

The delegation spokesman, Bobbie Schweitzer, told the board of the decision that had been made at the meeting of parents.

Schweitzer said parents were concerned that, by splitting classes the quality of education would suffer, the grade six class would lose its identity and that a stigma could be attached to students who would be assigned to the lower grade.

Another concern raised by the delegation was the apparent intention of the school board to close the Holden School.

The School Board assured the delegation that they did not have any intention of closing the Holden School.

Another delegation from the staff of the Holden School, represented by Oleh Stykora, met in an in camera session. The closed session was requested by the delegation because they felt it was an internal problem between the board and the staff.

After listening to the delegations and after some discussion, the board voted in favor of leaving the split grade in Holden and hiring a teacher for two periods a day.

That night, Holden parents met once again and decided to withhold their children from school until the matter had been resolved.

In the meeting, the Future of Holden School Committee was authorized by the parents to contact the Minister of Education, David King.

After the Board had reversed its decision last Thursday, another meeting was called. One hundred and seventy parents showed up to be informed of the decision.

Bobbie Schweitzer, committee spokesman, said parents were pleased.

They also gave the board a lot of credit for going back and making the decision to reverse their action.

"It was a relief to parents that their concerns were heard by the Board of Education."

Children from Holden and surrounding areas were back in school on Friday morning.

At the Ladies' Club meeting last week, plans for the annual turkey supper were discussed, and it was decided to hold it on November 9th, which is also celebrated by some folks as Guy Fawkes' Day. Details will be published later.

The Pre-school Parents' meeting last week was very successful, and the Playgroup has already received practically a maximum enrolment. Half the children will be starting on September 20th and the other half on September 27th, co-ordinated by Ruth Kleinsorge.

Irene Salisbery (663-3868) is taking registrations for the fall courses, including children's haircutting, fall pruning and landscape planning, cake decorating and furniture refinishing. A Ladies' Morning Out, which will include a light exercise program is scheduled for Wednesdays, starting October 19

The Painting Party at the Hall was cancelled on Saturday owing to the cold damp weather, and is to be held this Saturday instead. The Community Association monthly meeting will be held on Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Hall, and in attendance will be Helen Lavendar, a candidate in the next election for Strathcona County Council.

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS

No one has to tell farmers that they have Canada and Sow Thistle problems. They already know that, because of conditions over the past two years, these two weeds have plagued their fields and reduced their yields. They are reminded of this fact every time they have to clean their radiator screens or have their engines overheat. They are probably also reminded by their neighbors, if their neighbors don't have the problem.

What many farmers do not realize, however, is that this fall presents a prime opportunity to gain headway in controlling these two weeds. Effective control of thistle is an exercise in persistance and this continued persistance is extremely important in achieving any results. Before attempting any control measures, it helps to know a few facts about the biology of the weed:

1) Reproduction from seed is much less important than by vegetative reproduction.

2) Vegetative reproduction is the ability of the plant to generate new shoots from buds on the root system.

3) Emergence of new shoots from the root system reduces the plants root reserves and it is this process that can be used to the farmer's advantage in controlling the weed.

4) Every time an above ground portion is destroyed it generates new growth, thereby reducing the root food reserves and reducing the plants ability to survive. Here, is where persistance comes in. Each time the new growth is destroyed, and if conditions are favorable for growth, root food reserves are reduced to generate more new growth. The oftener this happens, the easier it is to completely kill the plant.

5) Killing new growth can be done in a variety of ways. Cutting, tillage or chemical control are possibilities. Timely cultivation in combination with chemical spraying and late fall frosts can result in some control.

6) Control practices cannot stop this fall. Followup the following spring is a necessity or the problem only gets worse. For example, after swathing a field, then combining, chances are that the regrowth of the thistle will be thicker than it was during the summer. If one plant is cut, 2 or 3 shoots may emerge in its place. Therefore, don't get upset if, after swathing, cultivating or spraying, you seem to have more thistle than when you started. The thicker the emergence of new shoots, the more root food reserves are used and the next control measure puts even more stress on the plant. However, if you should not follow through with the next control measure, chances are that these plants will survive the winter and produce 2 or 3 times the problem next year.

7) Very good results can be obtained with a combination of chemical and cultivation. After combining, the field is sprayed. Allow a few days (5 or more) for the chemical to translocate to the root system. Then cultivate. If you spray while the plants are actively growing, you should get fairly good control. Results will not be very good if sprayed after the end of September. Information on chemical mixtures can be obtained from our office.

Remember, thistle control is not a "one-shot" deal. Persistance is the key to good control. Don't miss your chance to clean up your thistle problem.

Computer is used for school marks

The school marks reporting system is a microcomputer system for use in the schools in Alberta.

The system involves the registration of students, recording of marks and the printing of result statements.

Although the system is designed primarily for use in high school, it may be used in both elementary and junior high.

The system is designed to operate on the Apple 2 (48k) machine and printer. The primary purpose of the system is to provide a convenient method of registering students, recording students achievements and producing mid-term and final results statements.

Tofield School is one of the pilot schools designated for this program.

Next Friday, a photographer will be at the Tofield School to take individual pictures of students.

Flag football practices start next week. There are three teams in the league in this area.

Enrollment for the Tofield School is at 515 although it is expected to climb to 530 with 15 or more students expected.

Farmers need sunshine

Farmers are hoping for a return to good weather this week so that harvesting operations may resume.

Only about one-third of all crops have been removed from the fields, according to reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool.

Cutting and threshing came to a complete standstill last week because of rain and in some instances, fields are so wet that it won't be until later this week that farmers can resume harvesting operations, at least in some regions.

Rye in the Daysland and New Norway areas has been harvested with canola at the mid-way mark.

Nearly forty percent of barley has been harvested along with about thirty percent of oats and less than ten percent of wheat has been taken from the fields.

Rosalind is the only area with flax growing and cutting of this crop has yet to start.

Farmers in the New Norway area are best off with about sixty percent of threshing operations having been completed to date. Eighty percent of canola has been done along with 55 percent of barley, forty percent of oats and just under ten percent of wheat.

The mid-way mark has been reached around Daysland where sixty percent of canola and one-half of barley has been threshed along with twenty percent of oats and wheat.

Forty percent of all crops have been harvested in the Rosalind region where farmers are three-quarters done with canola, have reached the half-way point with oats and barley and one-quarter of the wheat crop has been threshed.

Camrose area farmers are just a step behind with about sixty percent of canola and barley removed along with thirty percent of oats and a start has been made with wheat.

Farmers around Holden have passed the thirty percent mark with canola, oats and barley at about forty percent threshed and a start has been made with wheat.

One quarter of threshing operations around Hay Lakes has been completed with farmers processing forty percent of oats and barley and one-quarter of the canola crop. Wheat is yet to be started.

Tofield, Ryley and Round Hill farmers have been hardest hit by the bad weather with only fifteen to eighteen percent of all crops having been threshed to date.

Around Tofield, forty percent of canola has been threshed along with twenty percent of barley and ten percent of oats.

Ryley area farmers have threshed forty percent of canola and twenty percent of barley and ten percent of oats.

Ryley area farmers have threshed forty percent of canola and twenty percent of barley with a start having been made with oats and wheat.

In the Round Hill region, forty percent of canola has been harvested along with ten percent of barley and a start has been made with oats and wheat.

Cutting operations are in the final stages around Daysland, New Norway, Camrose, Holden and Rosalind. In the Hay Lakes area, cutting has reached the three-quarter-mark with about sixty percent done in the Ryley, Round Hill and Tofield areas.

A report from Bawlf has not been received at presstime.

Wheat threshed to date is being rated at about one-half of #2CWRS and about one-third in the next grade, while nearly sixty percent of barley is getting a number one feed rating and about eighty percent of canola is listed as number one.

Wheat, barley and rye is averaging nearly 900 kilograms to the acre while oats is coming in at 775 kilograms and canola is yielding 380 kilograms per acre.

Ducks Unlimited to check dams

by Ken Kroetsch

A letter was received by the County of Beaver Council saying that Ducks Unlimited would be doing a study to look into the problems caused by Ducks Unlimited dams.

In the letter, it was requested that the specific problems of each dam in question be forwarded to them.

It was suggested that each farmer involved be contacted for this information as they were more aware of the problems in their areas.

Ducks Unlimited has said it is prepared to go and review the problem to come to a solution.

Gravel hauler G. Suchy was in to see council on behalf of truckers, to make further suggestions regarding gravel hauling in the county.

Suggestions made by the truckers included divided the county into two parts, part one consisting of Division 1, 2 and 3, and part two consisting of Division 4, 5, 6 and 7; trucks would be owner-operated; they would have to have worked in the county for a minimum of five years; and that truckers not eligible for a number would have to go on a waiting list until one was available.

Reeve George Knudslien made mention of the fact that the list of names did not include the bigger trucking outfits in the county.

He told Suchy that the biggest opposition to this proposal would probably come from them.

Knudslien said that all of these matters would have to be considered before a solution could be found.

A motion was made to receive and file the truckers' suggestions. It was also asked that the gravel committee do further investigation on the matter.

Recent knowledge of a Health Unit regulation conflicting with the County of Beaver land use bylaw was discussed by council.

The knowledge came to council through Sid Harley of Tofield.

Harley had been given a permit to build a cattle shed on his property north of Tofield by the County of Beaver.

After he commenced building the cattle shed, he was informed by the Health Unit that he couldn't build the building as it constituted a feedlot.

As far as the council was concerned, said one councillor, it was a valid permit and is approved.

Councillor John Warner said he didn't see how one animal in a cattleshed constituted a feedlot, and that according to the land use bylaw the cattle shed was not a feedlot.

It was pointed out that the regulation was vague and needed clarification.

A motion was passed that the development officer Victor Istace meet with Health Unit officials to clarify the situation.

Location of polling boothes were discussed and set. There will be two poll boothes in Division 1; one poll booth in Division 2; one poll booth in Division 3; two poll boothes in Division 4; two poll boothes in Division 5; two poll boothes in Division 6; and three poll boothes in Division 7.

A by-law received third and final reading and regulates and controls vehicle and pedestrian use of highways in the County of Beaver.

The new bylaw repeals all previous county bylaws respecting the regulating and control of vehicles and pedestrian traffic.

In other business council moved that, effective immediately, service pins be given to county employees.

Under the new policy there would be 5, 10, 15, 20, and 25 year pins awarded.

Further discussion concerning the Tofield Library was tabled until after the Library committee had met with the Tofield Library Board.

Council was informed that the total expenditures for graveling and patch jobs, and road construction for the 1983 year is $750,000 to date.

Medically Speaking

by Dr Bob Young

Margaret, one of my earliest maternity patients, reminded me recently of the fiasco that was her first prenatal visit.

We had been childhood friends, making her a little reluctant to come to me for something as intimate as obstetrical care. She also, bless her, did not want anyone but me to look after her. So there she was, blushing and giggling, but ready for anything!

Things were a little unsettled in the office that day. My wife, who is not a nurse, was subbing for the regular receptionist. She and Margaret were trying to decide how far Margaret should strip, eventually opting for bra and panties. Margaret, not wanting my wife to know of the pregnancy, did not argue.

My wife had forgotten about covering the patient with a sheet, so Marg was lying shivering in her underwear when I entered the examining room. She whispered that she was pregnant and guessed that I would have to do to a pelvic, so she jumped off the table and stripped completely. My wife had wandered off with the sheet, which I had to retrieve.

Working through and around the sheet, I eventually got the general examination done. Time for the pelvic.

No disposable gloves in those days. Instead, rubber gloves were carefully washed, placed in canvas envelopes and sterilized in a pressure cooker after each use. Finally, after getting a laughing Margaret into the stirrups (I was embarrassed, not she), I washed my hands and proceeded, in my most professional manner, to don the gloves.

They had been sterilized for too long. My hand entered the glove and kept going — the white fingers looking ridiculous as they poked through the dark brown, perished rubber. This broke Margaret up completely. Laughing with tears in her eyes, she almost fell from the table and, barely clad in the sheet, hugged me.

I couldn't remain professional any longer and started laughing too.

It was about then, I think, that my wife came in to see what was going on!

Medically Speaking is published in cooperation with this newspaper and the Alberta Medical Association.

Patricia Young Says . . . . . .

Edmund Burke spoke a profound truth when he observed: "Example is the school of mankind; he will learn no other way." And while we try to be something of an example to our children, we rarely demand an example of government. Thus we have an example of government arrogance, government lies and weaseling; foolish government waste of taxpayers money. Seemingly, citizens assume the pose that what government can do, so the taxpayer can do, be it a double-shuffle in bookkeeping or a padding of the expense account.

What we need of government then is less government and more freedom from bureaucratic domination. We need politicians who will refrain from campaigns of what they will give us, but what they can save us; who will direct themselves to cutting red tape rather than employing more civil servants to manufacture it!

What we need is not more philosophical sermons, but men who will practice what they preach instead of having to reach for our wallets every time a politician opens his mouth, we should elect men and women who tell it like it is, who are not afraid to call a spade a spade and who can help us face an economic truth without sticking a welfare lollipop in our mouth to make it more palatable. Little wonder that Edmund Burke once observed dryly that free men were in jeopardy every time Parliament was in session!

Basically, it is an insult to the intelligence of the voter when politicians assure us that things were never better. It is an insult to citizens when politicians go from group to group informing them of how big a slice of the pie this or that Party will give them. It is equally dishonest to threaten the voter that the "opposition" Party would duplicate the mistakes of the party in power! Better by far that politicians make the campaign promise to "leave us alone" except in those areas of desirable government participation. Since I am not looking for a Big Brother and am capable of being my own Big Spender, I'll vote for the man who promises me least government and the most protection of my individual accountability, freedom of choice and right to make a wrong choice at my own risk. This is the essence of freedom — something we must fight for lest the do-gooders succeed in legislating what is best for us — a la the captive slave nations of the world. So take notice, Mr. Politician — sing not about how you'll spend my money for me, but how you plan on saving me a buck or two!

Home and School planned in Holden

by Ken Kroetsch

At a public meeting in Holden last Thursday night, the Future of Holden School Committee recommended the immediate formation of the Holden Home and School Association, said committee spokesman, Bobbie Schwietzer.

Schwietzer said of the 170 people present at the meeting, there was almost unanimous consent in favor of a Home and School Association.

The association will replace the Future of Holden School Committee which was designed as a "one-time committee".

The organization of the new association will take place in three weeks' time.

The Holden Home and School Association will be part of the Alberta Federation of Home and Schools.

The concerns of the AFHS is to educate and inform the parents about the educational system and to foster a better understanding between home and school.

The AFHS meets once every year to discuss the various issues and to pass resolutions to pass on to the Provincial Government.

Pesticide containers

Getting rid of pesticide containers can be a problem. What do you do with yours?

According to Alberta Agriculture's pesticide issues coordinator, Dr. Moe Hussain, there are about 53 permanent pesticide container disposal sites in the province and quite a number of temporary ones. He says anybody who does not know where they are should contact his agricultural fieldman or district agriculturist.

Dr. Hussain also says that all pesticide containers should be rinsed out three times with clean water as soon as they have been emptied and that the rinse water should be emptied into the sprayer tank. After that the containers can be disposed of.

The metal containers that are taken to a disposal site will be collected later in the season and crushed for recycling. The plastic containers will be collected and shredded.

Board to hold line

by Ken Kroetsch

The County of Beaver Board of Education will be taking a hard-line approach on overspending for the remainder of the year.

It was moved by John Warner that schools not be allowed to be in a deficit position and that emergency items must have prior approval from the superintendent of schools.

The board also tabled any additional expenditures until a budget review meeting, set for September 19, could be held.

In an overview of revenue and expenditures, it was indicated that in the area of capital expenditures, the board is over budget.

Another concern to the budget was the loss of students in the County. The predicted enrollment for September was 1,851. There is a loss of 37 students with the enrollment down to 1,814.

This could mean a loss of $32,000 from the 1983 budget through the School Foundation funds, if the enrollment doesn't increase.

The board was informed that if it hoped to "finish in the black this year", then the capital expenditures would have to be curbed.

Last year, the school board was in a deficit situation, causing budget cutbacks in [illegible].

SEWING MACHINES
PART I

"As ye sew, so shall ye rip".
—Seamstress' Old Adage

As any seamstress or tailor will agree, the rewards of sewing are all too often reaped after stormy sessions spent in st...-ripping frustration. To avoid some of the snags that seem to be woven into the fabric of sewing, the wise seamstress chooses a machine tailored to her individual needs.

Although most sewing machines appear similar and simple to operate, there are important functional differences between models. You should be familiar with the four basic types of machines to be able to decide which will fulfill your needs.

A straight stitch is the easiest machine to operate (as well as the least expensive). Used for simple sewing jobs, darning, mending and patching, it does only straight forward and backward. However, attachments can be purchased for zigzagging, buttonholing, overcasting and blind hemming. Together, the straight stitch machine and attachments may cost more than a machine with built-in features.

The basic zigzag machine stitches from side to side. Its stitch is longer than the straight stitch and is used for overcasting, blindstitching, buttonholing and sewing on buttons. The complete zigzag offers this basic feature, plus a number of decorative stitches. The side-to-side motion of the needle is controlled by either built-in or drop-in cams. With these machines, you feed the fabric manually.

The automatic machine includes all the features of the complete zigzag model, plus cams (built-in or drop-in) that automatically control stitch width and length. It automatically feeds fabric forward or backward, making possible a new range of stitches, including those for sewing stretch fabrics.

The electronic sewing machine is the most versatile and costly. Every stitch is built-in; therefore, stitches may be selected electronically, by pushing a button. These machines usually have a wider range and a greater combination of stitches. Speed can be controlled electronically, making it easier to maintain a constant force behind the needle, important when sewing thick fabrics and layers.

Run goes Sunday

by Ken Kroetsch

The route for the Terry Fox Run has been set within the boundaries of Tofield and is set to go this Sunday, at 9 a.m., said run organizer, John Blades.

Blades said runners can start from in front of the gym doors of the Tofield School, anytime between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

The course will be run through the streets of Tofield with few points of the course intersecting, said Blades.

One hundred and fifty pledge sheets have been made available through the area for anyone wishing to participate in the run.

Blades said it is also possible to show up on Sunday to either sponsor a person, or to make a donation and then run the course.

Everyone who completes the course of 10 km, whether they "crawl it, walk it, or run it," will be given a Terry Fox certificate.

If anyone is interested in sponsoring a runner or is interested in running themselves, they can contact either the Tofield School, or John Blades at 662-4945.

Landfill site is suitable

...says Environment

by Ken Kroetsch

The Department of Alberta Environment has sent a letter to Tofield Town Councils stating the hydro geological study on the regional sanitary landfill site at Ryley is suitable for development of a landfill site.

The letter said that the consultant should consider this property for regional landfill as a potential site along with other sites. There will be a meeting with the consultant by the groups involved on September 29.

Council was informed that RSTV cable has estimated its construction date to be finished December of this year if a suitable site could be found.

The cable company would like to lease land from the town. They suggested the site by the Fire Hall as one spot preferred for the location of the building, dish and tower. An alternative site, RSTV suggested, would be by the Sewer Lift Station.

Because the land is jointly owned by the County of Beaver and the Town of Tofield, the Fire Hall site was ruled out as a spot for the cable system.

The sewer lift station site is the one preferred by council. Another concern of council is that the property be fenced when erected.

RSTV was notified by the Town of Tofield of the problems created by another cable company that had been scheduled to come into Tofield, but had not.

RSTV will be holding a public meeting October 5 at 8 p.m. to inform people of what is going on with cable in Tofield. RSTV also have a toll free number on the back of their brochure for anyone seeking additional information.

Council received a 38 signature petition asking for cross guards during school hours at 55 Ave. and 834 for children from the Belvedere subdivision who have to cross the road to go to school.

Council indicated that this was a school responsibility. Town administrator Niel Brodie said he had contacted C.W. Sears principal Dave Smith and had been informed that Smith would be pursuing the matter.

Council acknowledged the need for putting in painted crosswalks across the road and have planned to do this in the near future.

Council was also informed that the provincial government will be putting traffic signs along 834 in the near future.

Farmers holds few cards in railway bargaining

Sultran Ltd., a company owned by 20 sulphur producers, responsible for supervising collection and transport of sulphur in western Canada, described the bulk commodity producers' problems rather well when it made a presentation to the Canadian Transport Commission in Ottawa on March 23rd. K.B. Doyle and W.A. Tett appeared for Sultran. Their summary of the rate negotiation process and railway attitude toward captive cargo is especially interesting. The Sultran presentation consisted of 20 pages, much too long for complete summary here. The 'Budget' will concentrate on the two areas already mentioned.

Having noted that between 1967 and 1983, Canadian west coast coal exports increased 1300 per cent whiled sulphur increased 520 per cent in the same period and grain increased by 131 per cent, Sultran notes that grain still represents about 30 per cent of total bulk shipments. Sultran also points out that coal, grain, sulphur and potash are all seen by the railways as captive cargo. Sultran also points out that Canada's bulk commodities have been subjected to growing competition from other countries, for offshore markets. Sultran explains that at the same time as export competition has intensified, the cost of bringing new production onstream for coal, sulphur, potash and other commodities has skyrocketed. The 'Budget' presumes the term "other commodities" here means [illegible].

Western Canadains should all be grateful for the description of railway performance and rate setting. They point out that as a result of increases in noncompetitive traffic carried by the railways, i.e., bulk commodities over long distances, the reliance on competition to ensure reasonableness in rates has become less and less applicable to the railways' business. Sultran further points out that in the commercial marketplace, the railways will react to only two things.

1. Intermodal competition.
2. Product market competition

Sultran deals with these two [illegible]

1. "Intermodal competition does not exist for most bulk commodities in Western Canada by virtue of the distances and large volumes involved. These conditions [illegible] sulphur captive to the rail mode."

2. "The railways will perceive market competition to be competition from other sources such as the U.S.A., Poland or France on sulphur and would only respond when a shipper can show that the rates they are charging are having the effect of constraining shipments, thereby causing loss of railway traffic. Even in this situation, the governing perception of market competition is that of the carrier. He has the right to decide not only whether the market competition is of sufficient importance to his interests to respond, but also to decide finally how much of the profits on the sale of a commodity should accrue to the transportation of that commodity and how much goes to the producer. Market competition for the captive shipper is unlikely to effectively constrain railway freight rates in any meaningful way."

Grain producers should note what Sultran says about the process of negotiating a rate. "Rates negotiations between the parties in captive situations is a process where the carrier indicates a percentage increase it wishes to apply or which carriers jointly wish to apply and which is usually higher than they expect to get. It is then up to the shipper to ascertain the actual increase the carrier really want. The railways are in complete control of the process, provide little or no meaningful information [illegible] costs. The shippers never get a complete picture."

Sultran notes that it is the railways unilateral power to set freight rates without real restraint that is objectionable. Every farmer who thinks he can deal with the railways individually should read these paragraphs very carefully.

Sultran recommended a centralized agency for agriculture. The brief states that the grain transport problem must be managed by one agency with the proper authority and responsibility.

Sultran evidently sees grain as inherently inefficient from a transport viewpoint. We know that the railways view grain in a similar way. It has always been a problem when reducing [illegible] transportation inefficiency to recognize that the costs of improvement are often being transferred to [illegible] deal with this problem and we suggest it should not. This does remain a serious problem for farmers and their organizations however.

Emergency rescue training is set for Tofield firemen

The Tofield Fire Department has recently received approval from both town and county councils to undertake emergency rescue training.

It is the feeling of the members of the department that an increase in population and traffic in the area increases the risk of highway and industrial accidents.

To date, the fire department has confined it service to fire suppression.

Agricultural, industrial and motor vehicle accidents have occurred in the past with no local organization being trained and equipped to deal with such incidents.

The rescue service will operate on a totally volunteer basis with no funds being billed to the county, town, or user.

Existing equipment will be utilized with the understanding that additional equipment may be procured through community fund-raising activities.

A two-day vehicle rescue course is planned for October 8 and 9 in Tofield. The course is designed for emergency personnel in East Central Alberta. Instructor for the course is Mark O'Flannagan, a firefighter and paramedic from Edmonton.

An evening dinner on Saturday is open to the public and invited guests at which time Dr. David Schragg an emergency physician from the Misericordia Hospital in Edmonton will be guest speaker.

Tickets to the dinner are available by calling 662-[illegible], or 662-3382 or 662-2780.

Skaters plan season

The Tofield Skating Club will be starting its 11th season of skating on Oct. 18th. This year will see some changes in the Learn to Skate Program and Junior Program.

For well over a year now, the C.P.S.A. National Skating test committee has been working on major revisions to the existing Learn to Skate program. Participation is the main aim of a basic learn to skate program. Skaters are encouraged to participate at their own level of interest and skill. The essential ingredient of all activities is fun.

The Can Skate program is to be fun and enjoyable thus creating an enjoyable learning atmosphere. This year the senior professional will be in charge of the Can Skate program.

The club also offers the senior program. Those skaters receive ten hours per week of ice time with private instruction. Last year, most members of the senior group skated in competitions at Sherwood Park.

If you have any questions concerning the club programs, please phone Grace Wallilans or Vickey Seter.

figure skating skills. All aspects of this program can be taught and practised simultaneously. The intent is to teach the basic introductory skills of figure skating keeping the cost as low as possible to give everyone the opportunity to participate in the sport of figure skating.

Thus year, the Junior program will be called Can Figure Skate and will introduce the skater to basic

Keep Canada Beautiful

Wideman reunion held in Ontario

About 660 Wideman relatives gathered at the Markham, Ont. Fairgrounds on Aug. 27 to remember the 150th anniversary of the arrival of their ancestor, Mathias Martin Wideman, to Pennsylvania in 1733.

Later in 1805, his great-grandson, Henry Wideman, came to Canada and settled in Markham Township.

Family members travelled from as far away as Australia, Oregon, Michigan and Alberta.

Those from this province included John and Edna Wideman from Tofield, Garnet and Ella May Bernstad and Noah and Margaret Wideman from Camrose, also Harvey Widemans from Castor. Most spent three days in the Kitchener area visiting cousins and an aunt, Gertie Yeske.

On sale at the reunion were commemorative plates bearing a picture of the ship, Elizabeth, which brought the family's ancestors to North America.

ELECTION

The date for elections has been set for Oct. 17.

Bruce resigns

by Ken Knostsch

Marvin Bruce, accepted for the job of Superintendent for the County of Beaver, has decided not to accept the position, said School Board Chairman, Hjordis Armitage.

Armitage said Bruce turned down the job due to health reasons. She said Bruce had informed the board that he would be going into the hospital for tests and had been advised by his doctor not to be changing jobs at the present time.

Armitage said it was a real loss for the county as Bruce was well respected in the area and would have been a definite benefit to the school system.

The School Board will be going back to the short list to decide who will be the new superintendent of schools. The decision should be made in the next week or so, said Armitage.

Until a new superintendent is chosen, Don Kondrat will continue as Acting Superintendent for the County of Beaver.

Fox runs held

by Ken Knostsch

Between the communities of Tofield and Holden, $3,850 was raised for cancer research as 130 people participated to honor a Canadian hero, Terry Fox.

TOFIELD

In Tofield, 65 people participated in the run, raising $1,300 through pledges.

John Binden, run organizer in Tofield, said it was difficult this year. He said there were actually more people who actually ran the course.

"Maybe it was an indicator that it was cold out," said Binden.

One exception to this however, was a woman from Holden, participating in Tofield, who walked the entire course pulling her children in a wagon.

All participants in Tofield finished the course.

HOLDEN

In Holden, there were 65 people participating in the run, raising a total of $1,950 through pledges.

Charles Mathews, run organizer for Holden, said they did a little better than last year.

The youngest person to finish the course was four-year-old Kyla Mathews.

The fastest to finish the course was Charles Mathews with a time of 47 min. 40 sec.

The second fastest time was made by Michael Lutz.

Everyone finished the course, whether they jogged, walked or rode a bicycle

Sod turning planned for Tofield hospital

by Ken Knostsch

The new Tofield Hospital will soon move of a reality to the people of Tofield and area after the sod turning ceremony scheduled for this Friday at 2 p.m.

The ceremony will take place on the new hospital site in the Belvedere area, east of the C.W. Sears School.

Present for the ceremony will be MP Don Mazankowski, MLA Walter Buck and Deputy Minister of Hospitals and Medical Care, Lloyd Gradale. Also present will be Tofield Mayor Dr. W.H. Freebury and members of his council.

The councils of municipalities within the hospital district have also been invited to attend the ceremony.

On hand also will be the architects and consultants who have worked on the project for the last three years.

The public is welcome to attend with refreshments being served in the Community Hall afterwards.

Shortly after the sod turning ceremony, construction will begin. The work for phase one of the project has been tendered. The tenders have been received and opened. The tender for the project should be known later on this week.

The clerk of the works has been appointed to oversee the project on behalf of the Hospital Board. Roy Whittaker has been appointed to this position.

Some of the projects he has worked on include hospitals in Ontario and Alberta. Toronto's CN Tower and the Sidney Opera House in Australia.

Whittaker will be moving from Grande Prairie to Tofield in the near future to oversee the work of the new hospital. He is married with three children.

The Tofield Health Centre, constructed in cost $10,976,000 will be completed by Sun Time in 1985.

The new hospital will house 90 beds: 40 for acute care, 30 for nursing home patients and 20 beds for ambulary patients.

Bundled up

Due to the cold weather runners in the Terry Fox Run had to bundle up warm last Sunday to complete the 10 km course. Sixty-five participated in the run in Holden raising $1,950 through pledges photo by Kroetsch

School strike

Students in one school region in the province are out of school today because of disagreement between teachers and trustees over salary levels, and several more face very difficult bargaining over the next several weeks.

It's probable that no others will move to the strike stage in the immediate future, since most negotiations will probably be held back for a short time waiting for the outcome of the present strike situation in the North East Central region of the province. The strike might last a couple of weeks, even three, possibly. But it's highly unlikely it will be allowed to go much beyond that, without being forced by public pressure to come to some sort of arbitrated settlement.

And such a settlement, whichever way it goes, may well turn out to be the pattern for many of those still pending.

Roughly half of the jurisdictions are already settled, as we understand it, with increases ranging from five to almost six percent, well below the ridulous starting point of fourteen percent initially launched by the ATA.

It has been highly publicized that the North East Central School Bargaining Authorities have raised their offer, under much duress, to two and a half percent, only half of what the teachers would willingly accept. What is not so generally publicized is they've offered almost another two and a half percent in fringe benefits.

To the taxpayer meeting the assessment it doesn't much matter whether the budget increases by way of direct salary, or fringe benefits, or special allowances or whatever. Higher costs are higher costs and have to be paid for in dollars. Especially do they find this a problem in the face of drastic increases in other costs, such as fuel, machinery, chemicals and so on, even while revenues tend to be lagging, due to lower prices, lower yields, lower quotas, and lower sales.

This is one time we think that ATA has mistaken its opposition. It was given months of warning in advance that farmers are in trouble . . . we think it would have been wiser to listen to boards which said they were over their heads.

Double standard

Consumers this month learned with a little dismay, we're sure, that egg prices went up two cents a dozen in stores across the country, following the most recent survey of the federal government board which monitors costs of egg production.

Producer prices since June 28, 1982 have been monitored by the agency to ensure that changes in farm costs are reflected in the price farmers receive.

Over the months that have followed, prices have both risen and fallen, as input costs have changed.

So it was more than a little disconcerting to find that the Canadian Egg Marketing Board intervened in what should have been a four cent per dozen increase, and allowed only two cents of it. The further increase, called for by the review of input costs, will be postponed until reviewed by the federal Cabinet committee on the 6/5 program which probably will meet after the minister, Eugene Whelan, returns from Latin America.

It seems most interesting that 6 and 5 has no bearing on the price of eggs dropping . . . it's only when costs soar, and there's a price increase that action has to be taken to protect the consumer. But we don't have to protect the farmer in the same way.

The agency agrees that the price of feed has increased dramatically due to the American crop reduction program and weather conditions in most Canadian and U.S. grain growing areas. But the best we can do to recognize this increase is meet half of it, and defer the rest for political action.

At a time when teachers are demanding five percent or strike, it's interesting to note that farmers received 1.4 percent more for eggs this June than last. From June till the present, producer prices have risen a tenth of one percent.

More tricks

Declaring he isn't in the slightest trying to trick the new Tory leader, but to learn from him, Liberal spokesman Michael Roberts has publicly demanded to know where Brian Mulroney and the Conservatives stand on a number of policy matters. "The public has a right to know" declares Mr. Roberts, suggesting that it's not the Liberals who want to know.

His actions seem so transparent it's hardly necessary to point it out.

Most of the public couldn't care less what the Tories stand for at this moment, because they're not in power, and their ideas really don't count very much in the present strongly Liberal-dominated Parliament.

Any actions taken by this Parliament will be those initiated by Liberals, and Conservative policies advanced by Mr. Mulroney would simply serve to afford the Liberals a chance to defeat the Tories before the election takes place.

The time to come up with ideas is when the election has been called, and the voters really might be concerned about how to choose (though we doubt that would be hard.) But Mr. Roberts' demand seems to indicate either one of two possibilities . . . either the Liberals are trying to lay the traps Mulroney was warned about, or they have completely run out of ideas of their own, and are trying to figure out some they might adopt from the other parties.

VIEWPOINT

Nuts
to those people who have written off Alberta

Stosie Curry has some hard things to say about people who have written off Alberta. President of Revelstoke Companies Ltd., Mr. Curry wrote the following straight talking editorial for Revelog, a company publication for employees.

Nuts
To Those People Who Have Written Off Alberta!

As someone whose company does two-thirds of its sales in Alberta, I am getting sick of hearing Canadians run down the economic future of our province. "Too bad you blew it," they say, often with a large dose of satisfaction. "You had your brief time of great growth and prosperity but it's now gone forever" appears to be the generally accepted assessment of Alberta, particularly by people in eastern Canada.

Making matters even worse is the large number of Albertans themselves, particularly in Calgary, who have adopted a highly pessimistic frame of mind. People obsessed with bad news are like a plague even when their outlook is inaccurate.

Surprise! There is more to Alberta then just the conventional petroleum and construction industries. Agriculture, forestry and coal mining are also major forces in the province's economy.

Surprise! There is more to Alberta than just Calgary. Two-thirds of the province's population lives somewhere else than in this high profile city. Most of the small and medium sized communities in Alberta are currently experiencing as good recovery, including in the construction industry.

Surprise! The current surplus of world-wide petroleum products could evaporate overnight with an outbreak of war involving two or three major producers which just happen to be located in the world's most politically unstable region.

Surprise! The current cooling off of the Alberta economy is beneficial to the long-term viability of the province's economy. The growth rate of three and four years ago carried with it too high a price tag in terms of excessive inflationary pressures, heavy demands for all types of government services, and a serious fallout from the creation of unachievable expectations on the part of everyone.

Yes, the downturn in the provincial economy was severe. When it came, there was an understandably large element of bitterness in the reaction of Albertans over the major role of the federal government's policies played in the collapse of the province's petroleum industry. People can accept adverse circumstances caused by a drop in international oil prices. Self-inflicted pain is another matter.

Having said all this, it is high time that people within Alberta and in the rest of Canada stopped ignoring the fundamentally strong position of the province and its favored long-term outlook. Few regional governments in the world can match the financial reserves or stable political environment possessed by Alberta. Unlike most other large regions in Canada, Alberta will be far more secure operating in "the world economy," especially compared with Ontario and Quebec which have an enormous amount of employment dependent upon inefficient smokestack industries. In short, within three years, Alberta's economy should once again be experiencing above average growth and prosperity relative to the rest of Canada, only this time at a much more manageable pace.

What surprises me is that so many individuals within the province itself are selling Alberta short by being obsessed with what I call a "doom and gloom forever" mentality. History teaches us that nothing is ever as good as it seems at the top nor as bad as it seems at the bottom. Often one's greatest opportunities are found at the bottom of the cycle. Just as the downturn came suddenly, so can recovery occur before most people anticipate it.

Medically Speaking

by Dr. Bob Young

Definitions of mental retardation vary considerably and, for this reason, the number of people affected is difficult to determine. One source states that about three percent of the population is retarded; 3.5 children in every thousand have I.Q.'s less than 50 (100 is normal).

Study of mental retardation is important, as some causes are preventable. Indeed, considerable progress has been made in avoiding the birth of retarded children in recent years.

Prevention depends upon knowledge of causes. Various abnormal chromosomal configurations (Down's syndrome, etc.) affect intelligence and, while these cannot be prevented, some can be diagnosed early in gestation using amniocentesis.

Several genetic metabolic disorders affect the baby's internal chemistry. In some cases, mental damage can be minimized if diagnosis is made early and appropriate treatment given.

Infection during intrauterine life or at birth can affect the brain. Rubella (German measles) and the cytomegalovirus are examples. Immunization of young girls against measles has decreased the former.

Drug use by the mother during her pregnancy may adversely affect her child. Alcohol is a major culprit (fetal alcohol syndrome) and some drugs used for epilepsy also cause problems. Street drugs are also suspect.

Not surprisingly, difficulties during the birth process may affect intelligence. Prematurity itself may cause problems. Bleeding into the brain during a difficult delivery, partial asphyxia or oxygen starvation, forceps or breech deliveries, twin births and an eclamptic or toxic mother are causes that can be minimized with good obstetrical care.

Mental retardation may occur following birth. Meningitis and other infections and poisoning with lead or mercury are relatively rare causes. Malnutrition is probably the most common cause of mental retardation if the worldwide scene is considered.

Considerable progress has been made in diagnosing and treating mentally retarded children. Intelligence tests are better and educational methods are more effective and productive. Many afflicted individuals can find their place in life, but prevention is still preferable.

Medically Speaking is published in cooperation with this newspaper and the Alberta Medical Association.

Holden defers work

by Ken Krawetz

Residents in Holden, from 48 St. to 50 St. along 51 Ave., will have to wait until next spring for curbs, sidewalks and monolithic sidewalks.

At the regular meeting of the Village of Holden Council members were informed that of the two tenders received, the lowest tender was $20,000 over the budgeted amount.

According to the engineer for the project, these tenders were considerably higher than if the project had been tendered in the spring.

Council decided not to accept either of the tenders, but would be retendering the project in the spring.

Council has expressed that they are not in favor of overtime for village employees. This statement came after some misuse of overtime.

A motion was passed by council there should be no overtime worked except in an emergency and if overtime was necessary, it would have to be authorized by the administrator for the first hour, and by the councillor involved for any time after that.

It was also pointed out that they should not be paying overtime for someone who had put in 15 or 20 minutes overtime. One councillor pointed out it was a two-way street.

In other business, council approved a request from the Chamber of Commerce to proclaim Small Business Week, Oct. 24-30, in the Village of Holden.

Rates for use of power at the campgrounds have been set by council.

The first day of service is free to users. Additional days of use, users will be charged two dollars a day, payable at the Village Office.

Fire rates for use of the Holden fire truck have been set, comparible to the county charge, at a flat rate of $200 plus $100 an hour.

In discussion on the matter there was some concerns expressed about leaving Holden vulnerable during the event the truck was out of town.

In this case, it was pointed out, the fire truck in Bruce would be put on stand-by for the Village of Holden.

Guides completed

Scouts to register

by Ken Krawetz

Registration will take place this evening (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. at the C.W. Sears School for Boy Scouts, Cubs and Beavers.

Don Kondrat, Scoutmaster, said they are expecting the registration to be equal to last year, with the exception being the Cubs. The Cubs are expected to be down this year because of a recent split with the formation of the Spilstead troop.

There are a full slate of leaders this year.

Kondrat said that as for himself he had indicated to the Boy Scouts committee he would like to step down into a less active role because of his increased job committment.

Kondrat said he would like to see one of the present leaders fill the position with himself in more of an advisory capacity.

The activities for this year include camping, canoeing and Scout crafts. The Scouts are not looking to attend any major jamborees this year.

In Beavers, the leaders have indicated to Kondrat they will be expanding the program in Tofield.

The Boy Scouts paper drive, scheduled for last weekend, has been postponed to a future date.

SEWING MACHINES
PART II

The following features are optional for most sewing machines:

While most sewing machines are equipped with a flat sewing surface, a "free" or "open arm" is an optional feature, which makes sewing circular pieces like sleeves and pant legs an easy task. The open arm is unlike the regular sewing surface because the sewing platform opens all the way around.

The advantage of using a cabinet for storage and support of the machine is convenience: the machine is always ready for use. Be sure to check that the cabinet's sewing surface is even with the sewing machine when it is set up. Don't choose a cabinet for its appearance only; sturdiness and convenience are of primary importance.

If you lack for space or money, a portable model will appeal to you. The major consideration in choosing a portable is weight. A machine that is too light will move around when you are working with heavy fabrics. However, a very heavy machine may be impossible to lift.

Sizing Up The Machine Of Your Choice

How quiet is the machine — are the running vibration and noise acceptable?

Does the machine speed adjust smoothly?

Is the machine speed comfortable?

How well does the presser foot adjust from thin to thick fabrics?

Do two unlike or like fabrics feed at the same rate when they are sewn together?

How comfortable is the knee or foot peddle to use?

Are lessons for operating the machine offered by the retailer?

Does the machine perform well on a variety of fabrics?

Is there enough light for threading the machine?

Will the light bulb burn you when threading the machine or raising the presser foot?

How easily does the [illegible]

Is the bobbin in a convenient position?

Is the stitch length control simple to set and use?

How easy is it to adjust the upper and lower tension?

Is the machine's reverse stitch even in length and tension?

Does the presser foot pressure adjust quickly?

Is there a quick feed dog and presser bar release mechanism for darning and embroidery?

Are buttonholes easy to make?

Are the parts easily removed for cleaning and lubricating?

Is the light bulb accessible for replacement?

Can the sewing machine be serviced conveniently?

Does the warranty protect you for a reasonable length of time?

Harvest shutdown

Harvest has had to be put on hold throughout the area due to rain and some snow. With warm weather hopefully around the corner, it shouldn't be too long before harvest is in full swing again. The brief pause in the harvesting gives the farmer time to repair machinery before resuming the harvest.

"DIGGING A DUGOUT OR WELL?"

Farmers who are considering developing on-farm water sources are eligible for both technical and financial assistance. The Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Association provides this assistance through the Rural Water Development Program.

Farm wells and dugouts are the two main projects which farmers commonly inquire about. To be eligible for assistance with these projects the applicant must be a "bonafide" farmer. The farmer must make application or contact the PFRA office prior to having the work done. The project which is being undertaken should be constructed according to PFRA specifications. Any project which requires the authorization of a provincial Water Rights Branch must be approved by the branch before being eligible for financial assistance.

As mentioned, the projects must follow certain specifications. Dugouts should be at least 2500 cubic yards in size to qualify for financial assistance. This is the approximate volume of a dugout 12 feet in depth, 140 feet long and 80 feet wide. Dugout Excavation Tables are available through the D.A.'s office or PFRA which give the volume of dugouts of certain dimensions. A dugout for pasture use only must have a minimum dept of 12 feet. Dugouts for year round farm supply should be 14 feet in depth. Where water must be transported by pipeline from the source to the farmstead, the cost of the intake structure, the pipeline and installation costs to the point of use, are eligible for assistance. Costs related to treatment or distribution works are not eligible. The preferred source of water to be piped from is a river or lake.

The specifications necessary for assistance in digging a dugout are as follows. An acceptable groundwater source must have been identified. The proposed water source must be of suitable quantity and quality and produce a minimum of 4.5 L/minute (one gallon per minute). Repairs of existing wells does not qualify, but deepening into another aquifer may qualify.

The financial assistance available on dugouts is up to one-third of the total cost of the project. The maximum assistance for a dugout is $1650. Small diameter wells are eligible for one-third of the costs or $30 per meter ($9.10 per foot) of cased depth, whichever is less. Small wells are normally rotary drilled, jetted or cable tool. A large diameter well, normally bored or excavated, is eligible for the lesser of one-third of the total costs or $48 per meter ($14.63 per foot) of cribbed depth, plus one-third of the cost of a large diameter screen. The maximum assistance for any well is again $1650. Invoices for all labour and materials are required.

Information on PFRA's assistance in water development can be obtained from our office. To contact PFRA directly, call the Vegreville office at 632-2919.

LIVING WITH DYING This is a course for those who wish to overcome their fears, speak openly, share concerns, and understand their attitudes towards death. Since society places a taboo on death and treats it as something morbid or obscene, each of us is left to imagine the worst in an atmosphere of fear and isolation. Committee bumbles through Crow hearings

by Don Raymer
In The Alberta Cattle Feeders
"CORRAL-83"

With the Standing Committee on Transport hearings on the Crow almost complete, western Canadians are left with the aching questions of what has been lost and what amendments, if any, the committee will see fit to make to Bill C155.

If the way in which the hearings were set up and blatantly mishandled is indicative of the attention westerners will receive when the Committee reports to the House, then it is safe to say that Bill 155 will be getting the old rubber stamp and be whistled through third reading before new transport minister Axworthy has time to recover from summer recess.

One is led to this conclusion by the way westerners have been regarded by the Committee. First, the clerk of the Standing Committee in charge of organizing the hearings didn't respond to the A.C.F.A.'s telexes and phone calls about an appearance for nine weeks and then only at the last possible moment.

Two working days before the hearings were to take place in Edmonton, the assistant clerk contacted this office and a number of other associations to confirm that their associations were on the agenda and their requests for a hearing were acknowledged. The committee clerk was told that it was only polite and reasonable to allow people sufficient advance time to make arrangements.

Secondly, what the clerk did not explain to the A.C.F.A.'s satisfaction was why all the major Alberta cattle groups were grouped together to appear sometime around 2 p.m. on Aug. 2nd. As if they represented the same constituents or the same views, the Alberta Cattle Feeders', the Alberta Cattle Commission, the Western Stock Growers' and the Alberta Feed Grain Users' Associations were denied the right to present their individual briefs in full because of an intended shortage of time and thereby were restricted in making all of their views known.

Robin Elofson, A.C.F.A. vice president, pointed out to the Committee that the irregular grouping of different associations, in addition to the scheduling of 32 groups to appear in two short days on such an important issue, was nothing short of an insult, making a mockery of the hearing process.

Thirdly, if the preceding disregard wasn't insult enough, the Committee gave a separate hearing (individual time slot) to such groups as the Alberta Chapter of the Communist Party of Canada, which leads one to question why the major livestock sectors were lumped together and this group, which up to now has not participated in the Crow debate and has almost nothing at stake in the discussion, could be allowed to appear with what seemed unrestricted time.

If it was to be expected that the cattle groups should not be offended by a grouping according to philosophy, then a good case could be made to force all the co-operative organizations into one time slot along with the Communist Party.

What became evident during the first day of the hearings was the Committee's interest in establishing the lack of concensus among westerners on this issue. This ploy, to turn the argument away from why Pepin and the liberal government betrayed their own principles as set down prior to Gilson and put the entire blame for a pay-the-railroad determination on a fragmented West, just doesn't ring true!

Concensus . . . what does it mean to the federal government? According to their actions, very little. As it was pointed out to the Committee, there was a concensus in the West on the Crow; and that concensus was 'Gilson'. By the government's own admission the Gilson process and its report were the concensus of diverse western views; but now they argue there is a lack of concensus.

On this point, the government puts little stock in concensus anyway, for not long ago they passed Bill C85 — the Canagrex Bill — against the majority views of their agricultural constituents. With the enactment of Canagrex, the liberal government virtually ignored the concensus of opinion in the West, and in Canada as a whole, which unanimously opposed the bill. So it is apparent that the Liberals use the concensus argument when it is convenient and abandon it when it is not!

Therefore, before the end results of the Crow hearings become history, it is fair to assume that the efforts of the travelling Committee largely have been a public relations stunt, so the government can stand up in the House and say everyone was consulted but, being that there is no concensus, the bill will not be meaningfully revamped.

So ends the plot. And with it ends the aspirations of westerners who took Prime Minister's recognition of their reasonable 'Crow' expectations as literal when he stated at the '73 Western Economic Opportunities Conference in Calgary:

"What the West now asks of us, their government, is not subsidies to survive. It is not a charter to go its own way, regardless of the national good. Rather, what the West wants, is a fair deal – wider choice and opportunity within the West, and a fair chance to build a West which will be an integral part of a stronger and more progressive Canada" P.E. Trudeau

We're still waiting for that fair deal, Mr. Trudeau!

"Sometimes we have three crews working 24 hours a day, seven days a week." For Doug Dedora and partner Brian Sammerton, steam-cleaning gas plants and oil rigs keeps them on the go most of the year.

"When it gets that busy, I'm lucky to find six hours of sleep in a night," Doug says.

Business has been good for Alberta Steam Cleaners Ltd. of Innisfail. Without the Alberta Opportunity Company, though, it might have been a different story.

A few years ago, Brian and Doug realized they needed additional equipment to keep going. But, because of their company's tight equity position, regular lenders weren't able to finance them. That's why Doug and Brian turned to the AOC.

The AOC carefully examined their past business performance, and because it seemed viable, granted the two partners the loan they had requested.

Today, with prospects for the future looking bright, it's full steam ahead for Alberta Steam Cleaners, another AOC success story.

If you have a sound business idea, but you're unable to obtain financing through regular sources, call or visit your nearest AOC office and ask for the brochure, Financing Alberta Business.

Save-A-Life (animal)

Many people who drive a car have struck an animal which is crossing the road in front of them, often with disastrous results to both the animal and the car. Now there is a gadget on the market that will reduce the chances of such a mishap occurring.

Arnold Saarmaa of Alberta Agriculture reports that the March 1982 issue of the "Society for Range Management Newsletter" contains an article that describes the gadget, which is called Sav-A-Life and which was recently introduced into the United States from Australia.

It is a 5-cm long, bullet-shaped object that is mounted on the front of the car. At speeds of more than 50 km/hr., air rushing through the cylinder produces a sound that is audible to most animal species for a distance of [illegible] half a kilometer. The sound is ultrasonic and inaudible to human beings, but it apparently frightens off most animals. For some reason sheep and camels are less responsive than other animal species.

As far as is known there is no outlet in Canada for this gadget, but it can be obtained from Marcels Sales Inc., Suite 10 M, 302 Central Park West, New York, NY. 10005, U.S.A. Sav-A-Life costs $35.95 plus $1.35 for mailing - US funds.

Ministik and district news

A miscellaneous shower was held in the Community Hall on September 10th for Marie Williams.

Her gifts were many and varied, for which Marie graciously thanked each giver.

The hall was gaily [illegible] for the occasion.

Seated at the head table with Marie were her mother Betty Williams, her matron of honor, Jo-Anne Young and the groom's mother, Arleigh Tanner. She was assisted in opening her gifts by Norma Chalmers and Cheryl Bakaliuk.

Hostesses were Barbara Horricks, Gladys and Laurie Swaher, Delsie Holmes, Lil Leach and Margaret Jeak.

Marie became the bride of Rob Tanner on Saturday. Two aunts were also present for the shower, Dorothy Dick and Edna Giles, an aunt of Rob's.

Elmer and Katie Haney from White Rock, B.C. were visiting in the area last Friday, calling on the Clifford Horricks family, Shirley being a cousin.

Jean and George Kleinschroth attended the wedding in Sedgewick of Jean's cousin, Dallas Love of Lougheed to Cheryl Kroetsch, on August 27th. They also were guests at the reception in the Lougheed Community Hall.

Eva, Joe and Doris Davenport along with Mrs. Angeline [illegible] of Edmonton, were last weekend guests of Eva's brother, Ray Blackburn, in Niton.

Margaret and George Harris of Biggar, Sask., were recent guests for four days of Dolly Reddick, and Edna and Glenn Ferguson. While here, they were all joined by Johnnie Dyke and enjoyed an evening of Trivial Pursuit.

Last weekend George and Jean Kleinschroth drove to Lac La Biche where they visited George's cousins, Betty, Lonie and Walter Kodrowski, and did some fishing. On their return they stopped in at the Eddie Weingrel home in Caslan. Eddie was employed by Frank Keding in this district many years ago and was very active in community affairs.

They motored over to Barrhead where they visited with Bob Barber, who also lived here for many years.

Those who attend the United Church were back in attendance on Sunday after a recess in July and August.

The Community League meeting for September was held recently.

It was decided to have the annual Halloween dance and those in charge of it will be Olivine Sears, Margaret Paterson, Barbara Horricks, Carol Detander and Margaret Jeake. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes. For any information contact any of these ladies. The date for this affair is on October 29th.

The October league meeting will be held on the 12th due to the meeting night being on Thanksgiving. This change is for October only.

Jean Ferguson was a guest of Doreen and J.D. Morrow of Deville on Sunday, the occasion being her 84th birthday.

Bruce and Rhonda Ratcliffe have left the district and now make their home in the Leoma area.

Violet Nasichuk won many prizes at the Tofield Fair, held recently.

The Ministik Ladies Club are going to have meetings at homes for a while. The September meeting will be hosted by Barbara Horricks.

Recess

During recess at the Holden School the students in elementary take full advantage of the new playground built by the community this summer. The playground is estimated to have cost $15,000 which was raised through a provincial grant, donations of labor, material and time. The grand opening of the playground is scheduled this fall.

Rain stops harvesting

Harvesting of the 1983 crop has come to a complete standstill because of the wet weather that has prevailed throughout the area.

Some farmers are hoping to be able to get back in their fields towards the end of this week while others don't expect to be able to resume harvesting until the middle of next week.

Regular nightly frost has added to the problems of the farming communities with overnight lows going below zero just about every night during the past week.

About thirty-eight percent of all crops have now been removed from the fields, according to reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool.

While that might seem to be slow progress, it is much better than the rate of last year when only nine percent of all crops had been threshed at this time in the fall season.

About fifty-eight percent of all canola crops have been threshed to date along with forty-three percent of barley, one-third of the oats crop and only ten percent of wheat.

Some areas have done much better than others.

Over one-half of the crops have been threshed around Bawlf, New Norway and Daysland with Camrose at about the mid-way mark.

The most extreme is found in the Round Hill, Ryley and Tofield regions where less than twenty percent of all crops have been taken from the fields.

There is still cutting to do. One-quarter of all wheat crops [illegible] crops around the ninety percent completion mark.

Sixty percent of all crops around Bawlf have been threshed. That includes ninety percent of canola, seventy percent of barley and oats and only ten percent of wheat.

Farmers in the New Norway area are just a step behind with eighty percent of canola threshed along with fifty-five percent of barley, forty percent of oats and eight percent of wheat with rye having been completed some time ago.

Daysland has passed the midway mark with sixty-five percent of canola threshed along with fifty-five percent of barley and nearly one-quarter of oats and wheat while rye was threshed weeks ago.

Three-quarters of canola has been harvested near Camrose with barley at sixty percent while oats is thirty-five percent done and what is twenty percent completed.

In the Rosalind area, farmers are forty percent done with canola at the three-quarters mark, oats and barley are half-done and wheat is one-quarter threshed and a start is yet to be made with flax.

Holden farmers are just a step behind Rosalind with oats, barley and canola at the half-way mark while about five percent of wheat has been threshed.

Farmers in the Hay Lakes area are about one-quarter done with forty percent of oats and barley having been threshed along with twenty-five percent of the canola crop and a start with wheat is still to be made.

Tofield farmers are at the nineteen percent mark. Forty percent of canola has been threshed along with nearly twenty percent of oats and barley. Wheat has yet to be started.

Ryley farmers are slightly behind with forty percent of canola threshed along with twenty percent of barley and a start has been made with oats and wheat.

The Round Hill area is off to the slowest start with only fifteen percent of all crops threshed to date including forty percent of canola, ten percent of barley and a start has been made with wheat and oats.

Why TransAlta is helping your child become a meter reader

At TransAlta Utilities, we believe that knowing how to manage electrical energy is important to Albertans.

Important enough that it should be available to children in the classroom.

That's the reason for the colourful energy management teaching material now being used in many of Alberta's schools.

We designed, produced and distribute it as part of our continuing commitment to the better management of electrical energy in our province.

We're helping your children become meter readers because it could lead to better use of Alberta's energy resources, and that benefits us all.

For a free copy of the children's workbook, or any of our other energy management publications, call or write us indicating your type of electrical consumption (i.e. home, business, etc.). TransAlta Utilities Energy Management, Box 1900, Calgary, Alberta T2P 2M1. Phone 267-7194.

Golf course proposed for old Ryley lagoon

by Ken Kroetsch

The Village of Ryley is proposing to build a miniature golf course on the site of the old sewage lagoon.

The present lagoon site, north of the village, is now an environmental reclamation project by the Department of Environment.

The proposed course would be 1600 yards, where a normal course is 3600 yards. It would be a par 27 course with 9 holes. The area of the course would be [illegible] acres.

Work has started on the reclamation project, but whether or not there will be a golf course will be decided at a later meeting.

The position for secretary for the Village of Ryley will be advertised in the paper this week after the resignation of Marie Bricks, effective October 31.

Bricks has been employed by the Village of Ryley since the summer of 1977.

The next regular council meeting will be held on October 11th.

Beware of blackleg

Have you vaccinated your calves against blackleg? This disease was recently diagnosed by Alberta Agriculture's diagnostic laboratory in Edmonton in a 13-month old steer, a 10-month old steer and a yearling bull.

According to the director of the department's animal health division, Dr. R.G. Christian, the main method of controlling blackleg is to build up resistance in the cattle by vaccinating them with a bacterin or vaccine because it is practically impossible to prevent them from coming in contact with the disease.

He recommends vaccinating all calves between the ages of one month and three months with what is called a mixed bacterin. This bacterin is recommended because it will protect the cattle against both blackleg and malignant edema. Malignant edema is similar to blackleg and is often present in an outbreak of the latter.

Calves should be given a second vaccination when they are six months old, Dr. Christian says. If the disease has previously occurred on the premises, he recommends vaccinating cattle that are three years old or less every year.

In the event of an outbreak [illegible]

[illegible] bacterin should be rapidly [illegible] because it can deteriorate rapidly under unfavorable conditions. And any bacterin that is left over after the cattle have been vaccinated should be discarded.

Information on the symptoms of blackleg in cattle, its diagnosis and treatment is contained in a publication entitled "Blackleg and Allied Diseases." This publication also contains information on redwater disease in cattle as well as information on blackleg, malignant edema, enterotoxemia and black disease in sheep.

"Blackleg and Allied Diseases" (Agdex 400/663-1) can be obtained from district agriculturists and the Print Media Branch, Alberta Agriculture, 7000 - 113 Street, Edmonton, Alberta, T6H 5T6.

SMOCKING TIPS

Smocking is a decorative surface embroidery and is used to hold uniform pleats in place. Historically, it was utilized to give warmth and shape as well as control fullness in loose fitting garment such as smock.

It is one of the simplest forms of stitchery, and if you use pre-pleated material, is easy to do.

Because the stitching is done only on the surface of the pleats, the finished garment has elasticity, allowing for a better fit.

Points to keep in mind:

1. Sink each smocking stitch using back stitch, start on the left side of the fabric. Reverse directions if you are left handed.

2. Pull each thread snug and keep stitches a uniform tension.

3. Rule of thumb ratio of 3 inches (7.5 cm) to 1 inch (2.5 cm) of finished smocking is generally used. Heavy [illegible] corduroy, khaki, denim [illegible] than 2 inches (5 cm) of fabric to 1 inch (2.5 cm) of finished smocking.

4. Fabric to be smocked is always cut square and pre-washed.

5. Ruffled edges require 1 3 rows of back smocking spaced 4 inch (6 mm) apart to keep the ruffle from rolling outward.

If you would like to know more about smocking or take a look at this technique [illegible]

BETWEEN THE COVERS

On the New Fiction shelf this week, look for "Death in Zanzibar" by M.M. Kaye This popular writer of historical novels uses the setting of her previous book "Trade Wind", to frame a murder mystery.

In the modern style of disaster fiction, Crawford Kilian writes "Tsunami", describing the aftermath of huge tidal waves on the west coast of the US.

"A Sound Like Laughter" is a novel by David Helwig, the Canadian author of "It Is Always Summer". It is described as a blend of humour, irony and character.

With the great increase in numbers of personal home computers, the demand for computer books has risen lately. We now have a number of new books on this topic, including: "Everyone's Guide to Personal Computers" by Howard Blumenthal; "Microcomputers Can Be Kidstuff" by Anna Mae Burke; "Your First BASIC Program" by Rodney Zaks; "BASIC Computer Programs for the Home" by Charles D. Sternberg; "Computer Games for Businesses, Schools and Homes" by William S. Hedges; and "The Electronic Cottage" by Joseph Deken. These books vary in the level of complexity and technology from very simple to advanced, and most have programming information applicable to many models of computers. No doubt you will find them useful, as a backup to the owner's manual for your own particular machine, or as an introduction to the usefulness of computers in our lives.

Don't forget the Preschool Story Hour on Tuesday mornings from 10 to 11 o'clock. This program is designed for three and four-year-olds, and library membership is not required. Pick up a brochure at the library, or call 662-3838 for further information.

The Library is on Fall/Winter Hours now, as follows: Tuesday 1-5, Thursday 3-5 and 6-8; Friday and Saturday 10-12 and 1-5.

Vegetable storage hints

Anyone who plans to store his or her vegetables this winter, and who has not stored vegetables before, will find the following information, compiled by Paul Ragan of Alberta Horticultural Research Center in Brooks, very useful

The first thing to remember is to harvest the vegetables during the coolest part of the day, which is usually in the early morning Because they contain less field heat at this time, they will not heat up the storage area

Carrots, beets, parsnips and rutabagas should all be stored at a temperature that is as close to 0° C as possible and at a high relative humidity. They can be put into perforated plastic bags or into garbage bags that have been perforated to keep the humidity high or they can be buried in moist sand or slightly moistened vermiculite. Parsnips can even be left in the ground all winter and dug the following spring, providing that they are well mulched with straw or leaves. This practice increases their sugar content.

Cabbage, cauliflower, celery and chinese cabbage should be stored at 0° C and a high relative humidity. Cabbages store best when they are pulled up and replanted in sand. However, since they have a peculiar odor, it would probably be best not to store them in the house.

Onions should be stored at 4° to 8° C and at a low relative humidity. If the humidity is too high, the onions will start to root and sprout.

Pumpkins and winter squash should be stored at from 10° to 18° C and at a low relative humidity If they are stored at a lower temperature than that recommended they will deteriorate and rot.

Green tomatoes should also be stored at a temperature of from 10° to 18° C and at high relative humidity If they are stored at a lower temperature than 10° C, they will ripen abnormally and rot Ripening can be hastened by bringing a few tomatoes at a time into room temperature.

Potatoes should be stored at a temperature of from 4° to 7° C and at a high relative humidity. The storage area should be dark to prevent the potatoes from turning green and to prevent the starch from turning into sugar.

Finally, never store apples or pears with vegetables because they give off a chemical that may reduce the quality of the vegetables and may even cause them to spoil.

Hay Lakes scouts, cubs to register next week

by Mrs. A. Amston

Registration night for the Beavers, Cubs and Scouts will be held on Sept. 21 at 8 p.m. in the basement of Our Savior Lutheran Church in Hay Lakes. Parents are urged to attend and enrol their boys in this program.

The District Health nurse will visit the Senior Citizens Center on Oct. 4.

COUPLE WELCOMED

Russell and Anne Roper were surprised to find a large number of neighbors at their door one evening recently. They had come to welcome the couple to the community and to spend a social evening with them. An abundance of food was brought for lunch and the visitors even brought their own dishes. On behalf of those present, James Gallaher gave a gift of welcome to the honored couple

Last Friday evening Russell and Anne were again surprised when their relatives all came and held a housewarming for them.

Otto Mittelstadt is presently a patient at St. Mary's Hospital in Camrose. Evelyn Gallaher is also a hospital patient.

Tara and Bill Thoss recently moved into their new home in the village.

The new home being constructed for Everett and Bonnie Reimer is also near completion.

A meeting for those interested in taking ceramics this fall will be held in the Rec Center on Sept. 22 at 7:30 p.m.

Principal of Hay Lakes School, Rudi Grab attended the ATA Provincial Education Finance Committee meeting held in Edmonton on Sept. 15. Mr. Grab was one of seven teachers chosen from the province to participate in the meeting.

The Hay Lakes Senior Citizens will hold a meeting in the Drop-in Center on Sept. 28. After recessing for the summer months, the group will resume their regular activities.

The Municipal Library will observe Alberta Book Week and promote Alberta authors during the week Oct. 1 to 8. Book displays by Alberta authors will be set up and there will be a contest with prizes for the children.

Thirty large print books have been sent on loan by Alberta Culture and it is hoped the public will make use of these.

The Hay Lakes History Committee will meet on Oct. 4 at 8 p.m. Fund raising activities will be planned for the winter months.

The Ladies Circle "S" Club will meet at the home of Bonnie Fuernkranz on the evening of Oct. 6. The group will commence working on crafts for their annual bazaar held in November.

The regular Hay Lakes and District Recreation meeting will be held on Sept. 26 at 8 p.m.

Bethany news

by Allan Sorenson

MEET THE RESIDENTS

One of our residents, Agnes Campbell, recently celebrated her 89th birthday She was born in South Dakota and came with her family to Wetaskiwin in 1901. In 1902 the family came by horse and wagon to Round Hill. Mrs. Campbell lived in the Round Hill district until she came to Bethany in 1977. The Campbells lived on a farm north of Round Hill and raised a family of eight sons and three daughters. The family had a gathering in our sun porch to celebrate her birthday If all of the family could have come they would have needed a much larger place as there are now 46 grandchildren, 52 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild. Mrs. Campbell enjoys visiting with family and friends.

Our ladies have been making use of their kitchen skills. Last week a group made crabapple jelly. They also baked zucchini muffins and churned butter so they could have a treat for morning coffee.

Sally Capusy and Margaret Lachmann have been here and led in a sing-a-long. Seven of our ladies attended the meeting last week of the Christian Women's Club held at the Norseman Inn.

Saturdays are usually quiet so arrangements have been made that Laurence Hanson will come and play tapes for afternoon entertainment.

IN MEMORIAM

FOSHAUG— In loving memory of Olive, our wife, mother & grandmother, who passed away Sept 23/82

My work is finished that Thou gavest me to do
She has lived her life of beauty,
Now her tasks on earth are through
She is gone, how we miss her,
Now we find our lives bereft,
Tis not she that we grieve for,
But the empty place she left
She is gone but she's still with us
In our hearts we hold her dear,
Our lives are fuller gentler nobler
For her presence here

—Ever remembered by husband Ivan & family 4p 6639

EATON— In loving memory of a dearly beloved husband, father and grandfather Owen Richard Eaton, who passed away twenty five years ago on Sept 24, 1958

Twenty five years have come and gone
Since Owen left us alone
A heart of gold stopped beating
Hard working hands at rest
God broke our hearts to prove to us,
He only takes the best
How much we miss you Owen every day
No words or tears can ever say
He gave us his love in fullest measure
And beautiful memories we will always treasure
We think of you in silence
And often speak your name
But all we have are memories
And your picture in a frame
Owen shared our hopes, our joys and tears,
We can only recall those precious years

—Ever remembered and sadly missed by his loving wife Ellen, his two sons Walter & Evelyn Eaton & family, Leroy & Shirley Eaton & family and his daughter Rita Powel & 2 daughters, Linda & Sherry Niemetz 4nc

IN MEMORIAM

HUELTER Ole B In loving memory of our dear husband father grandfather great grandfather who passed away September 20th, 1976.

We hold our tears when
We speak your name.
But the aches in our heart
Remain the same
No one knows the sorrow
We share
When the family meets
And you are not there
Memory lane is a lovely lane
Where thoughts dear
Father are tender and true,
Again and again we travel
That lane.
Because it leads to you

—Forever remembered by wife Lena, children & families 4p-5741

Sod-turning starts hospital

by Ken Kroetsch

Phase 1 of construction for the Tofield Health Centre should begin sometime in October, said Hospital Board Chairman, C.W. Sears.

Speaking to approximately 150 people, who had gathered for the sod-turning ceremony on Friday, Sears said the tender for phase 1 has been accepted by the Hospital Board but, is pending approval by the Department of Hospitals and Medical Care.

The approval for the $1.5 million project is expected to be received within the next week or so.

If everything goes well, said Sears, Phase 2 of the construction could go to tender as early as November of this year.

This phase would include everything else to be done, except for equipment and furnishings within the hospital.

Phase 2 is estimated to cost approximately $10 million, with the completion date for sometime in 1985.

Remarks were given at the sod-turning ceremony by Dr. W.H. Freebury, Mayor of Tofield; George Koudelien, County of Beaver Reeve; Rod Krips of the Alberta Hospital Association; Lloyd Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Hospitals and Medical Care; Walter Buck, M.L.A.; and Donald Roth, Tofield Hospital Administrator.

The invocation for the ceremony was given by Rev. Dan Newell.

MP Don Mazankowski was unable to attend the sod-turning ceremony.

In his remarks, Dr. W.H. Freebury related that this was the second hospital he had seen built in Tofield. Freebury said he had been on hand in 1947 to see the present hospital built.

Dr. Freebury is currently Chief of Medical Staff at the Tofield Hospital as well as the Mayor of Tofield.

George Koudelien said that as a county level, the councillors had talked about this day 16 years ago.

"After 16 years, it is hard to believe it's a reality," he said.

Rod Krips said with the planning that has gone into this new hospital, the complex will be a facility the residents of Tofield and surrounding area will be proud of.

He said the dedication of all those people involved has brought about this event.

Lloyd Grisdale said it was only three years ago in March, 1980, that the government had given approval for the hospital to go forward. He said a tremendous amount of work has been done in three years.

"It's a great thing for you to have a health facility that also has auxiliary and nursing home units as well," he said.

Walter Buck brought congratulations for the new hospital on behalf of the Provincial Government. He said the Minister of Hospitals and Medical Care was pleased with the project.

In closing, Donald Roth expressed to everyone present the number of people it had taken to design the hospital.

He said there were eight program consultants, 10 architects, 12 engineers, six structural engineers, eight people from the Department of Hospitals and Medical Care and nine other consultants for lab, X-ray, physiology, dietary and laundry, making the total number 45 people.

Add this to the hospital staff, the majority having been interviewed regarding planning.

White hat brigade

White hats were provided by the architect for all of the officials present for the sod-turning ceremony of the new Tofield Hospital. The Tofield Health Centre. Each hat had the name of the person wearing it printed across the front. Mayor Dr. W.H. Freebury and Hospital Board Chairman C.W. Sears turned the first sod of the new hospital.

Budget is on target . . . for school costs

by Ken Kroetsch

If the School Board of Education for the County of Beaver continues on its present course of budgetary restraints, as they have to date, they should be within 1% of the planned budget.

After the budget review meeting last week, Hjordis Armitage, school board chairman, said she is pleased with the results so far, but is not being optimistic.

"We might be in for a few surprises yet," she said.

One example, she said, that could change the present situation could be the teachers' salary negotiations, presently in progress.

She said that, however, barring all this the school board "may even have a few capital dollars left over" at the end of the year.

Meanwhile, two budgetary cutbacks have been lifted.

The library clerk's hours for C.W. Sears School in Tofield have been increased to 30 hours per week to meet the need of additional help to the children at the school.

Also, as proposed by the Superintendents Advisory Committee (SAC), flag football and soccer have been eliminated from the sport's program.

The funds from these two programs will be used for out-of-county expenses, such as zones and provincials, in other sports.

In earlier budget cutbacks this spring, the board had decided not to fund out-of-county participation for students.

New super hired

by Ken Kroetsch

Another superintendent of schools for the County of Beaver has been appointed, after the resignation of Marcus Erwin.

The new superintendent is William Schoeman of Whitehorse, Yukon, where he is presently employed by the Territorial Government as Deputy Minister of Education.

"We're happy with the choice we've made. His qualifications are good," said Hjordis Armitage, school chairman.

Schoeman will start work on November 1.

Schoeman received his Master of Arts Degree in Faculty of Administration at the University of Alberta. He also attended McMasters University, majoring in history and philosophy.

He has taught every grade in school from grade one to grade 12. He has worked as regional superintendent, as well as principal of the Yukon Vocational and Technical Training Centre.

He is married with two older children. He enjoys curling, music and soccer.

He is also community minded. He has been the director of Family Services Association, president of the Lions, a member of the Whitehorse Planning Board and secretary-treasurer of the Local Improvement District.

Young dancers

These young ladies are part of the Tofield Dance School, taking lessons every week from now until the end of May. During the year they will have many opportunities to show their new talents in front of an audience. Three of the big events planned for this dance year are the tea and fashion show, the Krazy Kwarter Karnival and the Dance concert in the spring.

Out of proportion

The furore which is developing over the force-feeding of some Doukhobor women jailed in British Columbia has developed to the point they have become a cause celebre, giving them far more impact than they ever gained from their initial infraction.

After being convicted and jailed on the more or less standard Doukhobor protest, of releasing sin by burning, they decided to continue their protest by going on a hunger strike.

And even though he has no authority in the situation, the Hon. Robert Kaplan from Ottawa appealed for a doctor willing to force feed them to keep them alive. To nullify their hunger strike. He found one . . . although the great majority of B.C. doctors are up in arms over the insistence on forcing treatment on patients who would reject it if they could.

So what could have passed relatively unnoticed, even if the women did starve themselves into a coma, and then death, has gained an unwarranted prominence.

It's considered an assault on persons if we take blood samples from hospitalized motorists suspended of drinking, without their consent, and an invasion of the Charter of Rights, even if they are suspected of responsibility for a number of deaths. Yet it's not an assault to demand that people be kept alive by force feeding them, over their bitter protest, when they refuse food. At least, so says Mr. Kaplan. Most doctors disagree — patients have the right to choose.

How silly can we become? How clouded can our judgement become?

The Iron Lady

Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher meets tomorrow with Premier Peter Lougheed to discuss a number of questions relative to the future pricing of oil on world markets, and how they will come out is anybody's guess.

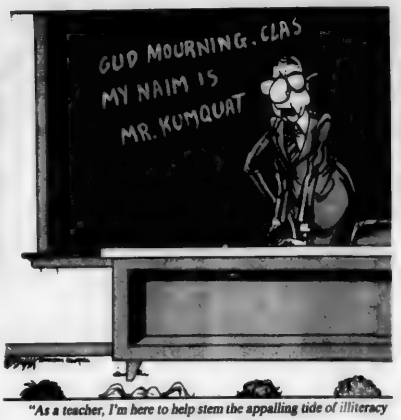
Earlier this week, she already appeared in Canada's Parliament, addressing both the Commons and the Senate, and debated with Prime Minister Trudeau the question of national security and armaments. It wasn't billed as a debate, really, but Mr. Trudeau addressed his people in his traditional way of hoping that the arms race could be overcome by sensible, peaceful negotiations, by discussion and persuasion, and all his arsenal of methods of influencing and persuading others.

Mrs. Thatcher, on the other hand, and quite logically, was suggesting this may all be very nice in theory, but it just doesn't work out in practice. And faced with the realities of the past few months, in the relatively short time she has been Prime Minister of Britain, (far less than Mr. Trudeau) she has seen her own nation engaged in unexpected but nonetheless real war over the Falklands, a bloody and expensive business, and just days ago a Korean plane shot out of the skies.

At the same time, the war goss in several South American countries, in African countries, in Asian countries, in Mid-East countries, in Israel and Lebanon, and so on.

We'd love to be able to agree with Mr. Trudeau. We'd be delighted if we could be persuaded the "ban-the-bomb" or "the Cruise" protesters were right. But how can any sensible person be persuaded that unilateral disarmament will work, that Russians will put all their cards up front (even that the West will, for that matter) in the face of moves such as Afghanistan, of the Korean 007 plane, of the Russian moves in Cuba, aborted only when President Kennedy showed his own muscle, of the Argentinians in the Falklands, with their famous Exocet missile, of an Arafat, or a Khomeini, or a Sardos, or a Mobuto?

Surely the words of the American general Patrick Henry, could hardly be any more appropriate when they were voiced than they are today "Trust in God! But keep your powder dry."



"As a teacher, I'm here to help stem the appalling tide of illiteracy in this country!"

Taxpayer money is not found money

6302 - 35 Ave.
Camrose, Alta.
Sept. 23, 1963

Dear Sir:

This letter is written to express any concern about financing of the Senior Citizen Complex. I am in favor of developing a center and I understand that a new building may take over the tasks of some old and inefficient buildings on the fairgrounds for certain activities.

My concern comes firstly with the price tag of this complex being over two million dollars. The second area of concern comes with the price of maintenance and staffing of the complex, which will be a large cost continuing from year to year.

At the September 10 meeting, a long-term member of city council mentioned that several hundred thousand dollars from one spot and several hundred thousand dollars from another spot were "found money" and would cut down the initial cost of the complex. I disagree with the concept of "found money", because it all comes from the local and provincial taxpayers originally.

Overall, I feel this Senior Citizen's Complex has a number of benefits and I hope it is workable. However, for the two thousand seniors in town, of whom half or less will actively use this center, a smaller building would cost less to build and less to maintain.

Sincerely yours,
Rod Relkie

Should have blood test

6803 Rom Street
Red Deer, Alberta
T4N 1X8
Sept. 8, 1963

Dear Sir:

We wish to commend Attorney General Neil Crawford for his proposed legislation which would make suspects of impaired driving subject to blood tests.

It is true that mandatory blood tests will not eliminate all drunken driving, but they could act as a deterrent if people know before they drink that a blood test could be used as evidence against them.

As for the issue of human rights, the suspect of impaired driving does have rights and they ought to be protected. But the public has rights too, one of them being the right to use public streets and highways without the danger of being killed or maimed by a drunken driver When an impaired person drives he puts his rights in jeopardy and may be arrested and even jailed. Some might interpret that as an infringement of human rights, but most people would consider it reasonable and necessary to protect the rights of others.

Some argue that a blood test is different, that is is an assault on the person and therefore contrary to the protection guaranteed by the Charter of Rights. The Charter does provide for the right to life, liberty and the security of the person. However, all the rights outlined in the Charter are subject to reasonable limits as prescribed by law. Considering the violation of the rights of those who are killed or injured by drinking drivers we consider a mandatory blood test a reasonable and [illegible] limit.

A blood test is an accurate measurement of the degree of intoxication. It provides reliable evidence to either convict the guilty or clear the innocent. Those who do not drink and drive have nothing to fear.

Yours truly,
Douglas H. Russell,

Patricia Young Says . . . . .

It is difficult for us to understand the poverty of some areas of the Third World for the simple reason that few of us have ever experienced real hunger or cold. It is even more ludicrous for us to talk about our "poverty wages" when it means little more than not being able to buy a new car, house or colour TV set. The closest some of us have come to real need is that experienced during the Great Depression.

You get an idea of poverty when you've shared four beds with seven other children; when you've fought like a tiger because some young bully wanted to steal your meal tickets, when you were clothed by hand-me-downs until you left school; when heating water was such a luxury that four children had to share the same bath water.

All children we knew had milk as their most basic preferences. We merely lined up like hungry birds with our mouths open! Young 'uns rated neither panties or shoes until they were seven or eight! The most generous thing an older sister could do was lend you a one time use of her favourite sweater.

You haven't known poverty until you've pawned a wedding ring or the bedsheets or enjoyed a banquet of fish and chips after a week of potato soup, until you've begged on the street or picked up cigarette ends from the gutter. For the rest, poverty is not so much what you don't have but making the best and most of what you do have.

Come to think of it, most of our childhood "punishments" stemmed from the accidental, or careless use of the family [illegible] of water — like breaking a fragile glass mantel when it still had an evening's light left in it, spilling a precious cup of milk or leaving a door open to the cold. Food was left on our plates at our own risk. There was no "gimme" in our vocabulary — just a scurry of helpfulness that might be rewarded sometime in the future!

In essence, we have much to learn from our oldtimers who survived the Depression. They alone are able to console grandma's old recipe books in order to cope with inflation. They alone can forego the fancy, packaged items, stretch the meat loaf and cook up a pot of soup from an old bone and scraps from the refrigerator. For the rest, we are a generation trapped by affluence and the economics of waste. The lucky ones are those whose parents and grandparents passed on a legacy of painting the pots down with vinegar and old newspaper; of saving crusts to make their own breadcrumbs.

For while we may no longer need know how to clean our whalebone corsets or clean our coloured ostrich feathers, grandma's book of handy hints and recipes offer much along the lines of thrift — a word we lost sight of as our standard of living improved. The truth is, thrift might well be the way out of our current dilemma of shortages and high prices. If we don't, we could well go down crying the blues about our "paradise lost" without making any effort to get things blooming again.

Dancers make changes

by Ken Kroetsch

The biggest event of the year for the Tofield Dance School, scheduled every year in the spring, has been changed to a Monday this year, instead of Sunday afternoon as in previous years, said Elaine Perisky, executive president.

"In previous years it has been held on a Sunday afternoon, which created a problem for some of our dancers," said Perisky.

She said a vote was held and it was decided to try a Monday evening this year to determine what changes it will make for the school.

Another change made was the date for the concert. It is scheduled for April 16, 1984, which is earlier than usual to give the dancers more time after the concert to prepare for tests.

The other two events planned are the tea and fashion show on Nov. 15 and the Krazy Kwarter Karnival, scheduled for February.

The tea and fashion show in previous years was only catered by the dance school. This year the dancers will be performing between intermission.

A general meeting of parents and executive is scheduled for Oct. 19 at the Tofield School to discuss the arrangements of the show.

The new executive for the dance school are: president — Elaine Perisky; vice-president — Anna Connelly; treasurer — Yvonne Brown; secretary — Debbie Cambell; and other board members are Phyllis Wood and Marilyn Hack.

There are 43 families with approximately 80 students in classes of either tap, ballet or jazz.

The children enrolled in the eleven classes range in age from four years old to 15 years of age.

Parents wishing to enroll their children in classes can do so by phoning Elaine MacDonell at 914-2126.

Tofield crossing to be replaced

by Ken Kroetsch

The track crossings on the main entrance to Tofield have to be replaced at a cost of $25,000, of which the Town of Tofield will be required to pay $7,500 for the labor, council was told at their regular meeting on Monday.

The new crossing will be concrete slabs between the rails rather than the wood planks used previously.

On Oct. 3-4, the main crossing will be closed to traffic from the hours of 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on both days, to install the new crossing.

Traffic will be detoured to the other entrance to town.

The other costs of the crossing will be taken care of by CNR.

Council approved a request from the Fire Department to store 13 wrecked vehicles at the water reserve site in town.

The vehicles will be used for the vehicle extrication training seminar to be held October 8-9.

Councillor Laurie Weatherill informed council they presently have eight cars for the seminar and are looking for an additional four cars. He also said there were 17 people enrolled in the two-day course.

Weatherill said the site would be cleaned up as best as possible after the seminar is completed.

Councillor Peggy Nabirniak reported to council that the Library Board had met with the county library committee to discuss funding from the county for library use by county residents.

She said the committee was very receptive, but the county committee had said they would have to check with the other libraries in the county before any decision would be made.

There was some pessimism by the Library Board, Nabirniak reported, that with the elections so close, the library board may have to start all over again with a new council.

Delegate, Don Kendrel, on behalf of concerned citizens in the Belvedere area, was in to see council about some of the problems facing the residents in this area.

The first concern was of the dust control along the road south of Belvedere. He commended council on the oil that had been put on last fall and this spring, but wanted to know what would be done next year.

Council said the road had been oiled last fall, with the assurance that this would last for some time.

This didn't prove to be the case, said councillor Ed Regehr. Another oiling was required this spring at an additional cost of $1,500.

Council said that in the near future the present road could be moved pending further development of the area. Council said they didn't feel they should be spending money on a road that might not be there.

Council said they would look at the problem in the spring and assess the problem from there.

Another concern raised by Kendrel was the buffer zone between his property and the road. He was concerned that other areas in the community had been maintained, but this one had not.

Kendrel suggested to council they fill in the buffer zone with dirt and seed it to grass. He also volunteered to mow the buffer zone behind his property.

Another concern was the park reserve area. Kendrel felt it should be seeded to grass and maintained on a regular basis.

Council said that the Tofield Parks and Recreation is presently planning the park for the Belvedere area. There is planned sometime in the near future a public meeting to get input on the project.

The new park could be developed as early as next year, Kendrel was informed, although council has not committed themselves to developing the area at this time.

It was also pointed out that the park reserve was jointly owned by the Town of Tofield and the County of Beaver and that an agreement between the two would have to be drawn up before the area could be developed.

Council approved a motion to buy the phone equipment used by the Town of Tofield office, rather than renting it.

The system would cost approximately $3,500 to buy, but the saving of $175 a month in rental charges, the equipment will be paid for with one year of savings.

Gym club starts

The Tofield Gym Club has started another year of operation.

The club purchased two balance beams at the end of last year and the gymnasts will be training in earnest on that new piece of equipment.

The pre-school program is as popular as ever and an additional class had to be added to meet the increased registration.

There are also classes being offered for children 6-10 years and 11 years and up and an advanced class.

There are still openings at all levels.

Guides organize

by Ken Kroetsch

The 41st Guides of Canada have organized in the Tofield area for another year.

There are three groups organized in the area, Brownies, Guides and Pathfinders in Spidsland.

Brownies meet once a week at the C.W. Sears School Gym, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. There are presently 21 Brownies enrolled, with five of these Brownies scheduled to 'fly-up' to Guides in October.

There are four Guides enrolled in Tofield. They meet every Thursday evening from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the drama room of the Tofield High School.

The Pathfinders, seven in number, meet at the Spidsland Community Hall every Wednesday evening from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Some of the events planned for the upcoming year in Girl Guides are the Rally in Camrose on Oct. 1, the birthday of the founder of Scouts and Guides celebrated Feb. 16, and in May, camping.

In the spring there will also be a district rally with four other communities in Beaumont.

Other activities for the individual groups will include planting flowers at the senior citizens home in May, a winter camp-out, hikes, and skating in Edmonton.

Anyone interested in registering their daughter in Brownies can phone May Korrobke at 662-2782, Geri Guides to Lynn Tiedemann, 662-2886; and for Pathfinders, Arleil Agrey at 662-3869.

Heads up

In a tournament last weekend in Coronation the Ryley High School girls finished strong, said Coach John Blades. This means, reading between the lines, that the girls won their last game, but had lost five games previous to this. The Ryley team last two games to Coronation, two to Brooks and split a match with Forestburg Blades said it's early in the season and he is not overly concerned. Given time to learn the basics, things should improve, he said

Harvesting resumes

Farmers are again putting in long hours.

A return to good weather last week enabled farmers to return to harvesting the 1983 crop.

While the date of actual return to work varied from one region to another because some areas had received more moisture than others, work had resumed in most regions by the weekend.

It is estimated that harvesting could be completed in two to three weeks, if favourable weather is maintained.

According to reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool (sent out each Thursday) early New Norway and Rosalind areas saw farmers return to the field prior to the issuance of the weekly report.

Farmers around New Norway are now about two-thirds completed with the harvesting operations with only five percent of canola still to be threshed.

Barley and oats are 70 and 60 percent threshed along with about twelve percent of wheat with rye having been threshed nearly a month ago. Only about five percent of the wheat crop remains to be cut.

Farmers in the Rosalind area passed the half-way mark last week with eighty percent of canola having been harvested along with one-half of oats and barley crops and one-quarter of the wheat. All crops have been cut.

NEW CANADA WORKS PROGRAM

A new Canada Works program has been announced by the Minister of Employment and Immigration which will help stimulate local employment in the Vegreville constituency.

Consistent with this objective, priority will be given to activities which — provide economic recovery and long-range development in the private sector

— clearly result in incremental continuing employment

— contribute to the improvement of community assets or of community services which are not going to cause a dependency upon termination of funding.

Application kits are available to the public at Canada Employment Centres and Employment Development Branch offices, as well as Mr. Mazankowski's constituency offices in Vegreville and Lloydminster. The application deadline is October 28, 1983, with a provision for earlier starts. Mr. Mazankowski encourages all those interested to submit their applications at the very earliest opportunity.

Education interests women over other elected offices

. . . in this region

Education, rather than other elected offices, are of more interest to women in this part of the province.

That's what shows up during an analysis following nomination day for all municipal offices.

With the exception of trustee positions, the local election scene is almost totally male dominated.

Included in the survey in the City of Camrose, Counties of Camrose and Beaver, five towns and fifteen villages.

The highest male dominance is noted at the county council level with only one female candidate running against a total of thirty-two men, for a male dominance factor of ninety-seven percent.

The ratio is somewhat lower in the City of Camrose where there is one female candidate running against fifteen male opponents.

The male-female ratio in five towns is 38-4 and is somewhat lower at the village level where eighty-six percent (25) of the seventy-six candidates are men.

The male-female ratio in the field of education is almost equal with men slightly ahead with fifty-five percent of the candidates. There are thirty-two male candidates seeking office with twenty-six females in the running.

Overall, when elections in this area are held next fall (October) eighty-one percent of all candidates [illegible] public office will be men.

There could be a lack of experience sitting around various elected officials' tables following the October vote.

Only forty-one percent of those seeking public office are incumbents (81 of the 198 candidates seeking 161 seats) with most of the others making their political debuts although there are a few (about six) who held municipal office some time in the past.

Incumbents could retain control, in the city (Camrose) and the two counties where a total of 18 returnees are trying to retain the 22 seats that are available.

The biggest change will occur among school trustees and on town councils where just under one-half of the candidates are incumbents.

Village councils could have the more experienced people (if elected) as thirty-six of the seventy-six candidates for the fifty-nine seats are incumbents.

and the board members and this brings the total to 114 persons.

Roth went on to say the new hospital was a new innovative and unique concept. He said the hospital would be less institutionalized, with more of a home atmosphere.

The new hospital will have 30 beds; 46 for acute care, 30 for nursing home care and twenty for ambulary patients.

Some of the new concepts to be included in the new hospital are day surgery, where the patient requiring minor surgery will check-in in the morning, receive surgery, and check out in the afternoon; physiotherapy; the expansion of use X-ray services to include fluoroscopy; dining room for long-term care; activities room for ambulatory [illegible] and [illegible] rooms for families of critically-ill patients in all wings of the hospital.

Another innovative concept is the new labor-delivery recovery room. The new room is connected to the delivery room by a sliding wall unit. When the mother is ready to deliver, the wall unit is moved and the patient's bed is wheeled into the delivery room.

Roth said this is a more pleasant atmosphere for the mother.

Following Roth's remarks, Dr. W.H. Freebery and C.W. Sears turned the first sod of the hospital. Everyone present gathered at the hall for refreshments following the ceremonies.

Recreation news

Fall Program Update — No recreation programs will be held on October 10th. Ladies Afternoon and Seniors Aerobics will begin on October 14th. All other programs will begin as originally scheduled. Registration fees can be paid on the first day. However, prior to the first day, contact the Recreation Office (662-[illegible]) to advance register. Persons can advance register in person at Tofield Community Hall from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Wednesday. Fall programs scheduled to date include: Ladies Afternoon Aerobics; Seniors Aerobics; Yoga; Bus-To-Rollerskate; and Dancercise.

Tofield Arena will be open for the 1983/84 Hockey Season on Oct. 9th. Increased public skating hours will be scheduled prior to the regular schedule beginning on Oct. 13th. Some late time slots are still available for the month of October. If interested, contact the Recreation Office at 662-[illegible].

Auxiliary meets

On Sept. 20, THA members met for the first fall meeting of 1983.

Iris Francis donated (on behalf of the THA) a number of handmade activity books, complete with crayons, to the Tofield Hospital.

These are to be given to children who are hospitalized for an extended stay. As well, two baby quilts, made by Anne Friesen, were donated to the children's ward.

Melita Wall and Jeannie Sears were responsible for the August tray favours. These small favours have become a regular part of the hospital routine and are enjoyed by all who give and receive them.

The second spice sale sponsored by the THA is currently underway, ending October 10. Hopefully, spices ordered will be in by Nov. 1 — just in time for Christmas baking. Contact any THA member or check out the Farmer's Market on Friday for ordering.

It was determined that all proceeds from the raffle presently being conducted will help to provide the lawn and patio furniture in the new Tofield Health Centre.

Tickets will be drawn at the bazaar and tea on Nov. 12 in the Legion Hall.

The October meeting is a perfect time for new or interested members to come. This will mark one year for the THA.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

Controversy: everyone deserves the opportunity to make up his or her own mind on controversial issues, but often, information is needed first. One such topic today is that of nuclear power and disarmament.

The library has recently added three new books on this subject: "No Nukes, Everyone's Guide to Nuclear Power" by Anna Gyorgy and friends; "Canada and the Nuclear Arms Race" by Ernie Regehr and Simon Rosenblum; and "The Bomb" by Sidney Lens. A somewhat related book is "A Choice of Catastrophes" by Isaac Asimov.

Other controversial topics are represented on the library shelves too, with books such as "Abortion and Contraception" by Henry Morgentaler; "Report on the Shroud" by Dr. John Heller, a member of the Shroud research team; and "Child at Risk" a report on child abuse in Canada. Remember, a library should be a place where you can find information on both sides of a controversial issue. Pamphlet information is available on many such issues as well.

Many readers enjoy reading pioneer accounts, and a new one may be seen this week, "Wolf Willow" by Wallace Stegner. It is an account of his boyhood in the Cypress Hills area, parts of which he has read on radio.

If you are a rural resident, and would support the idea of extra funding for libraries in the County of Beaver, please come in to the library and sign a letter to that effect, or call your county councillor (and candidates) and share your views.

The advantages of County support for library service would include elimination of the higher-priced non-resident membership fee, better hours for rural users, and improved service and programs for rural residents. At present, the only source of funding for libraries is from each of the town councils, a limited provincial grant structure, and membership fees. There is no county input to provide service for county taxpayers. You can help to change this situation by speaking up.

Library hours are: Tues. 1-5; Thursday 3-5 and 6-9; Friday and Saturday 10-12 and 1-5.

Anybody interested in furthering their skills and appreciation of writing – in whatever form seems most appealing – is welcome. LIVING WITH DYING This is a course for those who wish to overcome their fears, speak openly, share concerns, and understand their attitudes towards death. Since society places a taboo on death and treats it as something morbid or obscene, each of us is left to imagine the worst in an atmosphere of fear and isolation. In this class we will view films, explore our experiences and examine the insights of those who have understood death and loss as a meaningful encounter with an inevitable part of life. Saturdays, Oct. 16, 23, 30, 9 - 4, $80.00. Alan Narayan Caplan has taught a course on living with dying at Grant MacEwan for the past 6 years.

Ready garden for winter

The time to prepare your garden for the winter is when the trees and shrubs have shed their leaves, says Paul Ragan of the Alberta Horticultural Research Center in Brooks.

He recommends starting by raking up the leaves. Those that are soft can be dug into the soil, providing there are not too many of them, but leaves that have a shiny surface and evergreen needles should not be incorporated into the soil. The needles should be disposed of, but the leaves can be either put on the compost heap or otherwise disposed of.

Next clean out leaves and other litter that may have accumulated in fence corners, along the base of a fence and in the crowns of shrubs. Mr. Ragan says this practice is important because the leaves and other litter could provide ideal spots for harmful garden pests to overwinter.

Now remove all the annual flowers and vegetables from flowerbeds, borders and the vegetable garden. They too can be put on the compost heap, providing they are not diseased. If they are diseased dispose of them.

Again, providing the plants did not suffer from root diseases or pests during the past growing season, they can be cut off at ground level and their roots left to decompose in the soil. The roots will increase the soil's organic matter content and improve its texture.

Herbaceous perennials should be cut back to within 7 or 10 cm (3 or 4 inches) of the soil surface. Then in the spring, when the new basal buds are easier to identify, the plants can be cut back to ground level.

When digging over annual flowerbeds, borders and the vegetable garden, Mr Ragan recommends using a spade, digging to its full depth and leaving the soil in big lumps. Since the frost will break the lumps down during the winter and spring, all that will be necessary next spring will be to fork over the soil.

A garden fork, as opposed to a spade, should be used to dig the soil in beds and borders that contain trees, shrubs or herbaceous perennials. Dig as deeply as possible without damaging the roots or plants growing in the bed. And be careful not to leave any roots exposed to the air.

Last, but by no means least, make sure that the garden is reasonably moist as it goes into the winter. "Ideally", Mr. Ragan says "all perennials should be watered periodically in the fall to prevent them from drying out during the winter." This is particularly likely to happen if the snow cover gets blown off the garden or during an early spring when strong sunshine, increasing temperatures and the wind combine to desiccate the plants.

Trees, shrubs and perennials can all be watered until just before freeze-up. Mr. Ragan points out the aim of such a watering program [illegible] the optimum amount of moisture without becoming saturated from lack of drainage. He says the result should be a moist soil that contains plenty of air in its pore spaces.

Diabetes patients can monitor glucose levels

People with diabetes in the Camrose area will now be able to obtain professional help in monitoring their blood glucose levels at home.

An Ames Self-Testing Centre has recently been opened at Town and Country Drugmart on 51st Street in Camrose.

The pharmacy was recently approved by the Ames Division of Miles Laboratories as one of a series of self-testing centres across Canada. Each of the self-testing centres is staffed with fully qualified personnel who can instruct diabetics in the technique of home blood glucose monitoring using the Glucometer Reflectance Photometer.

Town and Country Drugmart can have a Glucometer Reflectance Photometer delivered to interested individuals within 24 hours.

The Glucometer was introduced in Canada during 1982 and is the leading blood glucose meter in Canada. The device is battery-operated, lightweight, portable and easy to operate. It is used in conjunction with Dextrostix Reagent Strips to allow a blood glucose level reading in less than two minutes.

The importance of home blood glucose monitoring is being stressed in the treatment of diabetes and physicians are [illegible] to involve their diabetic patients in the management of their condition.

Until the advent of the Ames Glucometer, the only convenient tools available to the diabetic for a health management program were urine testing products, a news release says.

"While the old urine [illegible] provided accurate tests results," says Town and Country Drugmart pharmacist Tom Keller, "the information obtained wasn't sufficient to make short-term adjustments for self-treatment in the home. By testing blood glucose levels with the glucometer or with Visidex Reagent strips, the patients are in charge of their [illegible]."

Three pharmacists and a registered nurse will be conducting training sessions for use of the home testing product on Oct. 12.

Round Hill native, Charlie Quail dies

... national figure

Funeral services were conducted in Edmonton this morning for the late Charles Andrew Quail, who died September 25, at the age of 67.

A native of Round Hill, where he was brought up on the family farm, Mr Quail was widely known throughout the entire West, and indeed, as far East as Ottawa where his advice on the National Dairy Council was highly respected over several years prior to his retirement. Gentle and unassuming by nature, his council and advice was widely sought, his integrity was respected and he made friends wherever he went.

Active in farming matters, he rose to become president of the Northern Alberta Dairy Pool (NADP) before being asked to serve on the national body, while members of the Elks Lodge also respected his ability, and moved him to the office of Grand Exalted Ruler of the order in Canada in 1972, the highest office in Elkdom in the country.

Ill health in recent years forced him to slow down in his service work and other activities, and he retired in Edmonton.

Funeral services this morning at 11:30, in the Chapel of the Chimes in Edmonton, were conducted by members of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, followed by cremation.

Mr. Quail was predeceased by his wife Bernice, and leaves to mourn a daughter Susan and her husband Joseph Garlup; a son Kevin and his wife Rosaline; his wife Brenda; three stepchildren, [illegible] and his wife Donna and Andrew and Nancy Frelick; three grandchildren; a brother Robert; a sister Martha Easton and numerous [illegible], nieces, nephews and a host of friends.

New line-painting trucks

In the old days it was easy so the tales go: you sent out a man with a pot of paint and a big [illegible] to [illegible] off the sun, and if you needed to find him, you followed the paint splashes to the nearest shady tree. Now, applying yellow and white marker lines on highways is a science, precise to the last glass [illegible] shard.

The branch owns seven line-painting units; they start out as a basic diesel truck, about 50,000 lbs. GVW. Special equipment is mounted on the chassis; again the branch designed its own unit because no one machine on the market answered its need. It took three months to construct the prototype. Shop operations director Ray Pasichnuk [illegible] about 40 per cent less than if it were assembled by an outside manufacturer, following branch specs.

One truck with one driver and two "painters" lay down the yellow and the white lines in one operation. Push a button and the machine switches from broken to solid lines; push another button and the colour of paint changes.

Service your furnace

CORRECTION

In the last issue of The Mercury the reporter spelled Marie Briz's name wrong.

The Mercury apologizes for any inconvenience caused by this mistake.

The Canadian Gas Association advises now is the time to check your heating system to ensure your furnace will provide you with the most heat for your heating dollar all through the chilling months that lie ahead.

Your furnace has been precision made to conform to government approved performance and safety standards, and accurately adjusted for maximum efficiency before being installed in your home. It is a completely reliable, automatic and safe unit which will operate at peak effectiveness for many trouble-free years. If any problem should arise, don't try to repair it yourself — call in any of the qualified furnace maintenance companies listed under Gas in the Yellow Pages. It is also a wise precaution to have your furnace checked by a licensed service person each year.

There are several minor maintenance jobs you can do, however, to keep your furnace performing well, such as keeping the furnace area and the air filter clean and checking the blower motor and vent pipes. Keep your instruction manual handy and follow the manufacturer's recommendations carefully

Good housekeeping pays off in fuel savings, particularly in these days of high-cost energy. Keep areas around the furnace clean from dust or dirt and clean or change the air filter each month during the winter to ensure maximum performance from your furnace.

At the start of the heating season, check the blower motor and fan belt. If the fan belt is frayed it should be replaced, and if slack it should be tightened. Clean and lubricate the blower motor if recommended by the manufacturer. Always turn off the power to the fan before adjusting or checking the motor.

Vent pipes may become dislodged over the years causing a heat leak in the basement or a partial blockage in the chimney. These problems are easy to spot and rectify and the few minutes it takes to repair them will help keep your heating bills from climbing.

If you turned off your furnace pilot light for the summer, follow the manufacturer's instructions when relighting. After relighting, turn up the thermostat to make certain the burners are lit.

So just by way of a recap, the Canadian Gas Association recommends these easy ways you can help keep your heating system operating efficiently this winter:

1. Have your furnace checked and cleaned by a qualified serviceperson annually.
2. Keep areas around your furnace clean.
3. Clean or replace air filters regularly during heating season.
4. Turn fan motor off, check the pully, fan belt, and lubricate the motor if recommended by the manufacturer.
5. Make sure vent pipes are not extended too far into the chimney and are not blocked.

In most cases your furnace will operate with no problems if properly maintained, however, if it doesn't, forget being a do-it-yourselfer and call a qualified serviceperson!

ROASTING SUNFLOWER SEEDS

Sunflower seeds are easy to roast and are an excellent snack. Seeds provide protein and B vitamins to the daily diet and there's no added sugar!

Make sure the stalks are dry and the seeds starting to turn brown before gathering. Spread the seeds on screening or cheesecloth until thoroughly dry — at least a week.

To prepare seeds for eating, soak them overnight in a brine of ½ cup salt to 2 quarts of water. Drain and add 1 teaspoon of cooking oil to each cup of seeds. Roast in a shallow pan, stirring frequently at 275° — 300° F until crisp. Watch seeds carefully because the nut-like part inside burns easily.

BEST BUY IN GROUND BEEF

To discover which ground beef gives you the most lean meat for your money, follow this simple rule from Agriculture Canada.

Add 10 per cent to the cost of regular ground beef; if the medium beef costs less than this amount, it is a better buy.

Add 20 per cent to the cost of regular ground beef; if the lean ground beef costs less than this amount it is a better buy.

Often times the regular ground beef is a better buy.

Rodeo is planned

The Lakeland rodeo finals will be staged in Camrose for a second straight year.

Showdown '83 will be held in Agricentre (new Fairgrounds site) on Oct. 28, 29 and 30, with four performances scheduled.

The rodeo is being held under the sponsorship of the Camrose Agricultural Society.

Only the top competitors from the past season on the Lakelands circuit will be participating.

During the regular season on the circuit, a number of rodeo queens were crowned.

Those contestants will all be in Camrose for the Lakeland Rodeo Queen finals and are expected to make a number of public appearances while in the Rose City.

Ag Society officials announced last week that arrangements have been completed and the trick-riding Steen Family will be in attendance for all four performances.

A total of $10,000 in prize money will be at stake.

Cowboys will compete in steer wrestling, saddle bronc riding, calf roping, bareback bronc riding and bull riding.

There will be barrel racing for ladies and junior girls and a boys' steer wrestling competition.

Another feature attraction will be a team roping competition.

A dance will be held on both Friday and Saturday nights and as well, a saloon will operate on both nights.

Friday and Saturday night performances will start at 7:30 p.m. while Saturday and Sunday afternoon performances will get underway at 1:30 p.m.

Reserved seats will be available and those tickets may be obtained at Byers Country and Western and The Duke.

Horse club meets

On Sunday, the Katchemut Creek Family Horse Club held its first fall monthly meeting in the Beaverhill Family Center. An agenda of activities for the month of October was decided upon after dealing with old business. The club decided to try to hold two gymkhanas in October, weather permitting.

The first one is on Saturday. Members have been invited to participate in the Hastings Lake Pleasure Association's Fun Day and Horse Show on Sunday.

On Oct. 16th, another gymkhana day will be held, weather permitting.

On Oct. 30, the club is holding a trail ride starting at Beaverhill Family Center. The regular monthly meeting will be held there at 1 p.m. and the trail ride leaves at 2 p.m. The newly-formed Chipman Horse Club has been invited to join this ride.

The annual club trophy day is set for Nov. 19 in the Tofield Legion Hall. Anyone wishing to donate a trophy can contact club secretary, Betty Williams, at 662-2757.

League to meet

Plans for the County Senior Hockey League will be finalized this week.

A meeting is to be held on Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the Camrose Aquatics Centre.

At presstime, it was a known fact that the league would operate with at least four teams during the coming winter and those teams included Bashaw, Kingman, Round Hill and Tofield.

There apparently is a good chance that an entry from a Camrose team would be accepted at Thursday's meeting and a further report indicated that a sixth application could be forthcoming.

Preliminary plans call for games to be played in Bashaw and Tofield each Friday night with Sunday contests to be played in Camrose.

The regular schedule will open during the first week of November and is to be completed by the end of February with playoffs to follow.

Thursday's meeting will see a new executive elected.

LIBERALS REFUSE TO CORRECT FREIGHT RATE INEQUITIES

The Liberal Members of the Parliamentary Transport Committee examining Bill C-155, the Western Grain Transportation Act, voted down Progressive Conservative amendments which would have had the effect of eliminating some outstanding freight rate inequities incurred by Western grain producers, said Don Mazankowski, M.P. (Vegreville) and Progressive Conservative Spokesman on Transportation.

"The Progressive Conservative amendment would have ensured that the total charge for moving grain and grain products would have been consistent with the overall intent of Bill C-155 — in that grain producers will be given the full protection of legislation and that deliberate "loopholes" for the railways to charge extra costs will not be permitted in the basic rate structure.

"These costs, called ancillary charges, include stop-off charges, out-of-line haul charges, or other charges to be paid on any shipment in addition to the basic rate to move grain. Ancillary charges are usually not incurred by primary producers because their grain movements are usually direct from the line elevator to the terminal elevator, without the additional service required by processors.

"Currently, ancillary charges are set by the railways at whatever levels they choose. It is evident that the railways are charging processors what the market will bear — since 1967 stop-off charges skyrocketed from 3c/cwt to 42c/cwt — an increase of 1,300%!

"Our amendment would have permitted the Canadian Transport Commission to prescribe the level of these charges to reflect the actual costs of ancillary services. This would have been of substantial benefit to the crushing, malting and processing industries, which represent an important source of value-added jobs and economic diversification in the West.

"The Progressive Conservative Party also introduced an amendment to ensure that the Crow Benefit applied to Canola oil and meal in Western Canada would not be cancelled out by the Liberal Government's arbitrary decision to rescind Order-in-Council PC 1976-884 which permitted minimum compensatory rates on Canola oil and meal shipped east from Thunder Bay.

"The Gilson hearings never even mentioned or recommended the removal of MCR's. Former Transport Minister Pepin also never brought this subject up until his final announcement on Crow changes in February, 1983.

"The PC Party strongly urges Transport Minister Axworthy to reconsider this arbitrary policy change," concluded Mr. Mazankowski.

TEXT OF PC PROPOSED AMENDMENTS

Ancillary Charges:

"(5) (a) Ancillary charges are charges for services performed by a railway company in addition to the line-haul movement of grain.

(b) The Commission may, by order, prescribe the level of ancillary charges but in no case shall that amount exceed the level that in the opinion of the Commission is necessary to reflect the variable cost of an ancillary service."

MINIMUM COMPENSATORY RATES EAST OF THUNDER BAY

"41 (2) Rates for the portion of domestic and grain movements east of Thunder Bay or Armstrong, Ontario on canola oil and canola meal crushed in the Western Division shall be established annually by the Commission at minimum compensatory levels."

TAKING STOCK '83

The third annual Taking Stock Conference will take place on November 8 and 9, 1983, at the Convention Inn South, Edmonton.

On November 9, there will be a one day session on the outlook for the cattle and hog industries, with the emphasis on the Alberta situation.

An evening workshop on market information will also be held on November 8.

Visual displays of information sources including electronic data banks, will also be available.

Well known and knowledgeable speakers will provide their outlook assessment during the conference and there will be opportunities for those attending to discuss market concerns.

The workshop and the information displays have been designed to acquaint farmers with sources of market information, its interpretation and use. In particular, the use of the livestock futures market and principles of hedging will be discussed. During this period of rapidly changing supplies of meat, volatile prices and increased consumer purchasing flexibility, marketing strategies for cattle and hogs has assumed increased importance in the operating decisions of farmers. This workshop has been arranged to meet this need.

This workshop is limited to the first 100 applicants. The workshop and the outlook conference is being held during the period of the Northlands FarmFair.

Further details of Taking Stock '83 can be obtained from Market Analysis Branch, 7000 - 113 Street, Edmonton, Alberta, T6H 5T6, phone 427-5376 or from your District Agriculturist.

"Sometimes we have three crews working 24 hours a day, seven days a week." For Doug Dedora and partner Brian Simmerson, steam-cleaning gas plants and oil rigs keeps them on the go most of the year.
"When it gets that busy, I'm lucky to find six hours of sleep in a night," Doug says.
Business has been good for Alberta Steam Cleaners Ltd. of Innisfail. Without the Alberta Opportunity Company, though, it might have been a different story.
A few years ago, Brian and Doug realized they needed additional equipment to keep going. But, because of their company's tight equity position, regular lenders weren't able to finance them. That's why Doug and Brian turned to the AOC.
The AOC carefully examined their past business performance, and because it seemed viable, granted the two partners the loan they had requested.
Today, with prospects for the future looking bright, it's full steam ahead for Alberta Steam Cleaners, another AOC success story.
If you have a sound business idea, but you're unable to obtain financing through regular sources, call or visit your nearest AOC office and ask for the brochure, Financing Alberta Business.

Rescue seminar set for weekend session

by Ken Kroetsch

This weekend the Tofield Fire Department will be holding a two-day seminar for emergency personnel, fire, police and ambulance services.

The instructor for the course is Mark O'Flannagan, a firefighter-paramedic from Edmonton.

Also present for the course will be Dr. Dave Schragge, an emergency physician from Misericordia Hospital in Edmonton.

The first day of the course will be familiarization with the procedures. Some of the areas to be covered will be scene assessment, hazard control and vehicle fires.

They will also be discussing cribbing of a vehicle, use of air bags, ropes and stabilizer straps.

There will be a discussion of basic hand tools and hydraulic tools and their use in gaining access into a vehicle.

Sunday will be more 'hands on experience'. The student will be placed in teams of 10, participating in vehicle rescue using assigned tools.

The seminar will mark the beginning of the fire department's involvement in vehicle rescue.

At the present time, only eight members of the fire department will be involved in the rescue program, but this will be extended to include all firemen wishing to become involved in this program.

In the future, Tofield firemen will respond to motor vehicle accidents, industrial and farm accidents and where there is a need for safe removal of a person in a hazardous situation.

Leaders are needed for Scout movement . . . in Ryley

by Ken Kroetsch

If no further interest is shown towards Boy Scouts, in all likelihood there won't be any Scouts, Cubs or Beavers in Ryley this year, said Boy Scout committee president, Sheila Fitt.

In an organizational meeting, held a short time ago, only the president, the secretary and two parents attended.

Fitt said the lack of interest by parents has left gaps in leadership positions, as well as committee positions.

Fitt said she has been in a leadership position for four years. She would like to step out of this capacity and let someone else take over.

Fitt said the program could be a good program, if the parents would take an active part in the activities.

Last year there were 14 boys enrolled in the scouting program.

Fitt said that if there is enough interest shown in re-organizing the Scout program this year then another meeting could be held.

Anyone interested in seeing the Scout program continued in Ryley can contact Sheila Fitt.

Fire Prevention Week planned

by Ken Kroetsch

Next week (Oct. 9-15), has been declared Fire Prevention Week, a time for home, business and community to take time out and inspect their premises for fire hazards.

The Tofield Fire Department will have a display at the Library all week as fire prevention. The week will then be wrapped up with the Firemen's Ball on Oct. 15.

During the week, coloring pamphlets will be handed out through the schools and the Fire Department will be giving out phone stickers for Fire Department, Ambulance and Police phone numbers to be placed on the telephone, in a convenient place.

In a pamphlet put out by Fire Prevention Canada, it states three out of four fires are caused by either matches and careless smoking habits, faulty wiring and apparatus, heating systems and cooking stoves, and kerosene and other flammable fluids.

A few precautions that can be taken are: keep matches out of reach of children; have plenty of ashtrays in a room, make sure matches and cigarettes are out before discarding them and Number One: Don't Smoke In Bed.

Concerning faulty wire and apparatus, some of the precautions that can be taken are: be sure to use fuses of a correct amperage, get a skilled electrician to repair or extend wiring, buy electric appliances and cords bearing a recognized seal of approval, and don't string under rugs, over hooks or in any exposed place. Wear can make these wires dangerous.

Fires from stoves, furnaces or other heating systems are caused by faulty chimneys, cooking on stoves, carelessness with hot ashes and even sparks on a roof.

All heating systems and pipes and appliances should be at least 18 inches from the wall or burnable material. Heaters and stoves should be set on an insulated material such as metal or cement.

A chimney should be cleaned every year and repaired immediately when damaged. Ashes from a fireplace should be handled in a metal box.

Kerosene, gasoline or any other combustible material should not be used to start a fire or used for cleaning purposes in the house. These materials vaporize into the air, easily ignited by a spark or any open flame.

Kerosene lanterns should never be filled while the lantern is in operation. If a person's clothes catch fire a person should smother the flame by rolling in a rug or blanket. The worst thing a person can do is to run, fanning the flames and increasing it.

Other precautions and preventions that can be taken are to know how to summon the fire department and knowing how to leave your home in case of a fire.

A complete check of the house to make sure there are no fire hazards is another preventive measure.

Anyone interested in fire prevention can contact any member of the fire department for further information.

Fire Prevention Week originated as the anniversary of the great Chicago fire where a cow, owned by Mrs. O'Leary, kicked over a lantern spreading flames throughout the city.

Moonlight madness
There were approximately 200 people who turned out to take part in the savings during Moonlight Madness last weekend. Robinsons and Link Hardware joined together to put on this promotion. These people were out to stock up on some of the necessities

Monday is a holiday

Monday is a holiday

Thanksgiving Day will be observed on Monday and most places of business will be closed.

The office of The Mercury will be closed.

Because of the Monday holiday, The Mercury's advertising representative, Ian Watt, will be making his rounds on Friday.

Advertisers and correspondents are asked to take note of this change in Watt's schedule. Their co-operation would be appreciated.

Manning should be proud

Now retired from the Canadian Senate, former premier, former senator Ernest Manning should be deeply proud of the contributions made to world development in his name, as evidenced by the latest round of awards from the Ernest C. Manning Awards Foundation.

The foundation was established after he left provincial politics as a mark of tangible respect for the great contribution he made to Alberta political life, the award each year being $75,000 to persons who have created or promoted a new concept, process or product which is beneficial to Canada and to society.

This year's award winner's contribution will benefit the whole world, as it strives to feed itself, in that a Lacombe-born farm scientist developed a method for breeding new strains of barley in just half the time previously needed, a feature with world significance.

Honorable mention went to a Vancouver man who invented a system of transmitting sunlight or artificial light through a square acrylic pipe to the point in a building where it is needed, reducing significantly heat build-up, explosive capacity and an expensive multiplicity of small light sources.

Honorable mention also went to a scientist in Waterloo for his new technology to convert cellulosic wastes into protein foods. Thus, such supplies as wood chips, sawdust, pulpmill sludge and so on can be made into inexpensive, but plentiful food for animals, even for humans. The process offers immense potential in, for instance, Third World countries rich in cellulose, but poor in food.

Mr. Manning, now 75, must take great pride and comfort in the knowledge that these things would be coming about in any case, but they are being helped and supported by the fund in his name. While he rode to power in Alberta forty years ago and more on the premise of assistance to the poor, he has always been a modest, even humble man. Nonetheless, he cannot but feel delighted with these accomplishments.

We should all rejoice with him, too. Especially in the knowledge that the Foundation will see the awards . . . and such development . . . continue far into the future.

It's Thanksgiving

Many among us may be distressed over one of the poorest crops in years. Many are worried about the level of unemployment, the difficulty of finding work, of making ends meet. Numbers of us are worried about the Cruise missile, or abortion, death on the highway, intolerance and human rights, and many other things.

Yet at this time of the year, if at no other, at Thanksgiving week-end, surely we all ought to take time to think, if ever so fleetingly, of all the blessings we enjoy, often with little thought, with little appreciation, and with little personal contribution or worthiness.

We're not as affluent as we might like to be, maybe, but surely among the nations of the world we must rank as one of the very richest. We don't have all the freedoms we might like to enjoy, but again, rank-ed among the other nations, we must surely be one of the least subjugated, least government dominated countries in the world.

There's far more government control and dominance than there should be, but we're not slaves. Not quite. Not yet. We still have a level of freedom of speech, of freedom of religion, of freedom of assembly, of freedom of press, which is rare among the nations and the peoples of the world.

One in six of us may be poor, according to government, but our level of poor in Canada is still wealthy in many other countries. We may not have universal medicare, but our level of health is unimaginable in many regions. We may argue violently across the country, but we're not shooting at each other. We may face inflation which is difficult to live with, but we're not facing levels of sixty per cent per year, or an unbelieveable three hundred per-cent per year. Others are.

If we could take time to stop complaining about our lot in life, we just might find the time to realine how lucky, relatively, we really are.

We might even find time to fall to our knees and give thanks.

Hail volume 25% off normal

RED DEER (September 1, 1983) — The number of hail days this summer dropped 25 per cent below the long term average for Central Alberta and the province generally, according to the Alberta Research Council's Hail Project statistics for the 1983 season.

In the operational period from June 20 to August 31, hailstorms between Red Deer and Calgary required seeding on 24 days. Storms were most frequent and intense during July, ending with generally light hail activity in August. Over seeding and seeding . . . With these two instruments, aircraft measurements highlighted the season. The Alberta Research Council aircraft flew more than 200 hours on nearly 100 missions during the Hail Research and Cloud Seeding Program.

Measurements were taken in hail and rain clouds and in the surrounding environment. These measurements complement others made by the weather radars at the Red Deer Airport which sample volumes of cloud thousands of times larger than the aircraft probes.

Research Council scientists will be studying the summer's operational data for a report expected later this year.

The Council is studying the formation and growth of ice crystals, rain and hail from both natural clouds and from clouds which have been seeded.

Using the research aircraft, another project evaluated the ability of ground-based cloud seeding devices to deliver seeding material into convective clouds. The generators were operated in an area south of Calgary by I.P. Krick Associates.

Research Council scientists will be studying the summer's operational data for a report expected later this year.

Dear Sir:

It is absolutely outrageous that the Russians shot down a plane, killing two hundred and sixty-nine innocent people. They have declined to pay compensation for committing this atrocity. Our elected politicians of all political stripes have been on the band wagon, denouncing this foreign, political carnage.

It is rather interesting that suddenly the killing of two hundred and sixty-nine people stirs our politicians. If they were more honest with themselves, they would realize that they are responsible for killing thousands of people annually and they too decline to pay compensation. Not only do they not pay compensation, they make millions of dollars annually in the indirect slaughter of the innocent on our highways. The product they authorize for sale and do sell that is responsible for the indirect slaughter is alcohol. The profit for vested interests like doctors, lawyers, churchmen and politicians is high.

What is so different about killing two hundred and sixty-nine in one lot and killing thousands individually over a period of time? Our politicians should answer that question for everyone old enough to vote.

Good editorial

Dear Sir,

Thanks for your editorial of Sept. 28, "The Iron Lady."

It is refreshing and reassuring to know that there is still "somebody out there" with a realistic approach to Russian treachery.

The five world has no choice but to protect their own shores.

Too many citizens have already been taken in by the silent, creeping theory of peace, promoted by the communists within our society in their positions of control. Aided quite successfully by the news media, educational system and sprawling octopus government.

If my neighbor — such as in a broader sense, nations are — was contriving to steal my home, liberty and family life, I would watch him closely and certainly be prepared to defend my own.

Unless, I took the easy way out, believing and hoping for peace and happiness and eventually let him take over. Then it would be only his peace and happiness and my misery.

Sincerely,
Phyllis Mott

Lawyers urge change in writ of assistance use

The Law Reform Commission of Canada's Report 19, entitled "Writs of Assistance and Telewarrants" was tabled in Parliament by the Honourable Mark MacGuigan, Minister of Justice and Attorney General of Canada on September 14.

The Report expresses the Law Reform Commission's final views on two of the approximately fifty recommendations contained in its recently-issued Working Paper 26, "Police Powers: Search and Seizure in Criminal Law Enforcement". The first is a recommendation that writs of assistance be abolished immediately. The second is a recommendation that peace officers be permitted to obtain search warrants by telephone or other means of telecommunication in circumstances where a personal appearance before a justice would be impracticable.

Writs of assistance were first devised in 1662 to facilitate enforcement of the English customs regime. Their principal feature — and the chief source of their controversy — is that they permit private remises to be entered and searched without prior judicial authorization. So hostile was American reaction to the writ's powers of warrantless entry that historians have identified that writ of assistance as a major precipitant of the American Revolution. It was to guard against the evil of indiscriminate search and seizure that the American constitution was ultimately to provide that "no warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the person or things to be seized."

In Canada, the writ has not only survived; it has flourished and gained considerably in discretionary powers. Four statutes presently provide for the issuance of writs of assistance: the Customs Act, the Excise Act, the Narcotic Control Act and the Food and Drugs Act. In emphatic terms, however, the Law Reform Commission has pronounced the writ of assistance an instrument of unconstitutional search and seizure and an affront to common law tradition. In the words of the Report, the Commission asserted "that a statutory regime which exempts the State from justifying its use of intrusive search powers before the event, and which confers powers of [illegible] by limitations as to the use of force, unbounded by time, unbounded by place, and unbounded by requirements of reasonable belief is necessarily antithetical to our common law traditions and our constitutional aspirations".

Report 19 also recommends that the Criminal Code be amended to provide for the issuance of search warrants by telephone or other means of telecommunication. Procedures for granting search warrants by telephone have already been adopted in some jurisdictions (most notably, California, Arizona, Montana, New York and New South Wales, Australia). Essentially the "telewarrant" merely adapts the issuance of search warrants to current telecommunications technology. Instead of being obliged to appear personally before a justice of the peace to apply for a search warrant, a police officer could submit his application by telephone. If the justice accepts that reasonable grounds exist for the search, he then dictates the terms of the warrant to the police officer and authorizes the police officer to sign the warrant on behalf of the issuing justice. With the written document, the officer may then conduct the search in the ordinary way.

The Law Reform Commission's telewarrant provisions feature a number of safeguards.

— The information submitted in support of an application for a search warrant would be on oath and recorded verbatim.

— The issuing justice would be obliged to file a certified transcript of the application and the original search warrant with the clerk of the court as soon as practicable.

— The telewarrant could not be used to conduct a surreptitious entry, search or seizure upon private premises. A copy of the telewarrant must be presented to the occupier before entry or as soon thereafter as possible; in the case of unoccupied premises, a copy of the telewarrant must be left suitably and prominently affixed within the premises.

— The telewarrant would contain a notice, advising that the search was conducted pursuant to a warrant issued by telephone or other means of telecommunication; as well, the notice would specify the address of the clerk of the court where the information used to obtain the warrant and the original search warrant itself were on file.

— Police officers would be obliged both to conduct their search and file a report with the clerk of the court within three days of the telewarrant's issuance.

— Should the search subsequently be challenged, the failure to produce the requisite record of the application or the original warrant would constitute prima facie proof that the search or seizure was not authorised by warrant.

Harvesting end nears

For most farmers, harvesting operations should be carried sometime this week, according to reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool.

Very little remains to be done around Hanna and New Norway and farmers in these two areas could be completed by this time as reports are issued on Thursdays.

In the Rosalind-Camrose-Round Hill regions, farmers are in the final stages and should finish within the next few days with Daysland-Hoiden-Bay Lakes close by the end of the week.

Ryley farmers are about sixty percent done while it has been slow around the Tofield region where farmers have only reached the one-quarter mark.

Overall, seventy-eight percent of all crops have been taken from the fields as of Thursday.

Rye harvesting was completed about a month ago with nearly ninety percent of canola having been threshed along with about three-quarters of barley and oats and about sixty percent of the wheat crop.

Hanna farmers had only to do about five percent of their wheat fields and with barley and oats, it was just the odd field that remained and canola harvesting has been completed.

Harvesting of rye, canola and barley has been done in the New Norway area with about five percent of oats and fifteen percent of wheat still to be threshed.

In the Rosalind region, only about five percent of canola and oats were still to be threshed while wheat and barley harvesting had reached the three-quarter mark.

Farmers in the Camrose area had about five percent of canola along with ten percent of oats and barley and about forty percent of the wheat crop yet to be threshed.

All of the canola crop has been removed from the fields around Round Hill with barley at 95%, about twenty percent of oats and thirty-five percent of wheat is still to be completed.

Twenty percent of canola and barley is to be done in the Daysland region along with forty percent of wheat and oats while rye was harvested about a month ago.

Between ten and fifteen percent of canola, oats and barley in the Holden area are still to be threshed and about thirty-five percent of the wheat crop has been harvested.

Farmers around Hay Lakes made major gains in the past week and now have about twenty percent of canola and barley to do along with thirty percent of oats and forty percent of the wheat crop.

The Camrose district mark has been reached with canola and barley in the area around Ryley. Wheat and oats are about one-half done.

Farmers around Tofield still have a long way to go as they have threshed only about forty percent of the canola crop, are about one-quarter done with oats and barley and only ten percent of the wheat crops have been threshed.

SR 834 to be paved

Alberta Transportation will be undertaking a major upgrading of Secondary Road 834 near Camrose, Transportation Minister Marvin Moore and Camrose MLA Gordon Stromberg have announced.

This project involves the base paving of the 39 km section of Secondary Road 834 between Highway 39 and Secondary Road 617

Base paving is the preliminary layer of paving.

Included in the project is the surfacing of the main approach to the community of Round Hill.

The work is scheduled to be completed during the 1984 construction season at an estimated cost of $2.1 million.

Mr. Stromberg stated that "Secondary Road 834 is an important north-south route serving the area's agricultural and industrial traffic and this upgrading project is necessary to provide for the increasing traffic level. The upgrading of Secondary Road 834 will benefit the area residents of Tofield and Round Hill, who wish to use Camrose as their agricultural centre and it will also benefit the City of Camrose business sector as improved accessibility to the City will be increased by approximately 15-20 miles by the construction."

Mr. Moore added that "this is the initial stage of a program that will eventually see this road paved to modern standards between Highways 36 and 14."

Changing the genes challenges science

by Peggy LeSueur-Brymer
Elkwa Wheat Pool

In nature, genetic material from one animal or plant species is passed only within the same or closely related species. This makes the introduction of desired characteristics such as higher yields in crops both slow and difficult to achieve through breeding programs. But now scientists are finding a way to take a tiny bit of genetic material from one species and splice it into the genetic material of a completely different species. This provides the potential for man to incorporate special qualities into a plant which will in turn be transferred to its offspring. The procedure making all this possible is called genetic engineering.

As can be imagined, the agricultural possibilities with genetic engineering are astounding. It may open the doors to providing crops with characteristics not attainable through current breeding methods. And with genetic engineering skills, these modifications could be made in a few months, rather than in the twenty years or so it would take in a regular crossbreeding program.

The process of genetic engineering is based on recombinant DNA techniques. To understand this express-sion, one must define a few terms. DNA is an abbreviation for deoxyribonucleic acid, the hereditary substance of living matter. A few hundred to several thousand of these DNA units make up a functional unit of information called a gene. One or more genes control each trait found in the organism of which they are a part. Like a blueprint, DNA prescribes exactly what the organism will look like and how each of its parts will function. The DNA package for each species is unique. So, a recombinant DNA technique simply means that pieces of DNA from one species are combined with pieces of DNA from another species.

The steps involved in recombinant DNA research are: a) the gene or genes capable of conferring a desired new trait must be found; b) the desired gene must be removed from its source; c) the gene must be placed into a cell of the plant to be altered; and d) the changed cell, if it survives must be grown into a whole plant that has the desired new trait. This sounds simple, but each step is extremely difficult to execute. So far, only partial success has been achieved in any of these four steps.

The production of several synthetic chemicals has been achieved with genetic engineering and bacteria. Scientists have genetically altered certain bacteria so they can produce human insulin. This insulin will soon be marketed in the United States. Several other substances have also been produced by splicing foreign genes into bacteria such as a vaccine for hoof-and-mouth disease and interferon, a compound used in the treatment of cancer. These products are close to commercial production.

Accomplishments with higher plants however have been much slower due to their high complexity. A recent discovery may be a major benefit in this regard. Scientists have learned that a common soil bacterium, Agrobacterium tumefaciens, is capable of a natural form of genetic engineering. This bacterium causes crown gall disease. It has the ability to insert foreign genes into plants and have the plants express those genes by the rapid multiplication of cells to form gall, or tumor. The agent

By then she's undoubtedly running out of zap and gets her signals mixed. The result is our autumn.

Other than the fact that winter is snapping at its heels, autumn's one big drawback is the chaotic climatic conditions. Autumn is football, harvesting and the end of mosquitoes until next year. Unfortunately, we can do nothing with erratic weather but watch it. I've thought of solutions, such as moving to Florida or taking over B.C. by Louise Bauche

The fund-raising Harvest dance held on Saturday was a great success, a near capacity crowd enjoyed the evening.

The profits raised help run the hall and supports the childrens programs.

A meeting of the parents of the Cubs, Scouts and Pathfinders was held Wednesday night to discuss fund-raising, the parental support was very encouraging with many volunteering to help in some way. The children in these groups met Sunday and travelled to Sherwood Park to load scrap metal which was donated by Bob Nausse. This coming Saturday will be the rural bottle drive. We ask that everyone meet at the hall at 9:30. Residents in the area can donate any type of refundable bottles. The Cubs and Scouts are still looking for used uniforms. If you have any to donate or sell call me at 662-2136.

Due to the lack of response at this time, the crocheting course will be held at a later date. However, the Mukluk making workshop will go ahead. You must pre-register for this workshop so the necessary materials can be purchased.

The Spilstead Ball Club held a meeting on Thursday at the hall to arrange the annual Hallowe'en dance. It was decided it would be held Oct. 29th.

All Hall bookings are now available through Ed's Store phone, 662-3672. The Spilstead Ladies Club also caters for functions at the hall.

The Miquelon Lake Saddle Clubs election night was held Monday night. The newly elected executive takes over at the November meeting.

The Ladies Morning Out starts tomorrow, call Brenda at 662-2451.

The babysitting course will commence Oct. 13 not Oct. 12 as previously reported, anyone who missed the registration night can call Dorothy Ziegler at 662-3869. Silo gas is dangerous

"DANGER - SILO GAS"!

This warning sign should be posted in an obvious place on all silos to make sure that accidents like the one that occurred in Ontario a few years ago do not happen again.

In that accident three people died as a result of not having taken the proper precautions against the deadly silo gas, nitrogen dioxide. The tragedy started when the farmer's son decided to enter the silo to level the silage and to adjust the distributor. Later one of the hired men discovered that he was missing and saw him lying at the bottom of the silage slope. He jumped in and was later found by the farmer lying half way down the slope. A second son then entered the silo by kicking in two of the doors. After unsuccessfully trying to drag out the hired man and his brother, he too collapsed. The bodies of the three victims were finally removed from the silo by a fire rescue squad.

According to Dennis Darby, farm structures engineer with Alberta Agriculture, many silo manufacturers provide warning signs, some of which contain operating instructions which warn of gas and the injury hazards that are specific to their particular brand of [illegible].

Farmers who use a silo [illegible].

* Check with their local fire department or similar emergency service to find out whether it has the pressure-demanding remote breathing apparatus that would be required in an emergency. Diving gear (scuba) is not suitable because the backpack air tank is too big to go through the silo chute or the outside ladder-cage.

* Ventilate the feed room in case silo gas spills out of the silo doors or is blown out by the silo unloader.

* Avoid going into the silo during the filling operations to level the silage. Adjust the silage distributor from the top of the silo to keep the silage level during filling.

* Enter the silo as soon as the last load has been put in and leave the blower running if it is absolutely necessary to enter. Never wait until the next day to do this. When opening a chute door do so from above the chute rather than below in case silo gas comes out of the opening.

* Check the depth of settled silage before entering previously-filled silo. And attach a tube adaptor to the pipe on the forage blower to make sure that the air blast is reaching all the way down to the silage. Leave the chute doors closed and ventilate the silo by running the forage blower for about 30 minutes in silos that have a diameter of up to 7.2 m. Larger silos may require more ventilating time. And always keep the blower running while you are in the silo.

Once operating, a silo [illegible] a conventional silo quite effectively but if the silo unloader fails in a recently filled silo, it must be assumed that some gas may have accumulated, and the silo should be reventilated with the forage blower and a tube adapter.

* Start the forage blower and ventilate the silo if somebody collapses inside. A supply of fresh air is the most immediate positive step that can be taken from the points of view of both the victim and the rescuer.

* Always use an external supply of air if it is necessary to enter an oxygen-limiting silo. Such equipment consists of a supply hose that is long enough to reach into the silo, a pressure-demand type of supply regulator and a full-face mask.

In the past, safety harnesses or a loop of rope under the armpits leading to a helper standing at the top of the silo have been recommended as a safety precaution. However, it is no longer felt that these precautions are satisfactory because one person could never pull a victim up a silo wall.

Additional information on silos and silage gases (also silo properties, detecting silo gases and ventilating silos and feed rooms) is contained in a federal publication entitled "Silo Gas" (M-7410). It can be obtained from district agriculturists and the Print Media Branch, Alberta Agriculture, 7000-113 Street, Edmonton, Alberta T6H 5T6.

Full Steam Ahead.
"Sometimes we have three crews working 24 hours a day, seven days a week." For Doug Dedora and partner Brian Simmerson, steam-cleaning gas plants and oil rigs keeps them on the go most of the year.
"When it gets that busy, I'm lucky to find six hours of sleep in a night," Doug says.
Business has been good for Alberta Steam Cleaners Ltd. of Innisfail. Without the Alberta Opportunity Company, though, it might have been a different story.
A few years ago, Brian and Doug realized they needed additional equipment to keep going. But, because of their company's tight equity position, regular lenders weren't able to finance them. That's why Doug and Brian turned to the AOC.
The AOC carefully examined their past business performance, and because it seemed viable, granted the two partners the loan they had requested.
Today, with prospects for the future looking bright, it's full steam ahead for Alberta Steam Cleaners, another AOC success story.
If you have a sound business idea, but you're unable to obtain financing through regular sources, call or visit your nearest AOC office and ask for the brochure, Financing Alberta Business.

TURKEY – THE DAY AFTER

Our traditional Thanksgiving meal, turkey, is not only economical, but a real timesaver. Not many foods lend themselves so well to main dishes, sandwiches, casseroles and soups. It makes me wonder why I don't cook it more often.

Even if your family is too small to eat a large turkey, the [illegible] so well that buying a large bird makes sense. After Thanksgiving freeze slices to be warmed for hot turkey sandwiches and turkey cubes for salad.

Remember that a large turkey has a higher proportion of meat to bone that does a [illegible]

Below is a recipe for using some of the leftover turkey from your Thanksgiving celebration.

[illegible]

This easy dish uses uncooked dressing you have left over after Thanksgiving. Press dressing into heavily greased ring mold and place mold in large freezer bag. Freeze until needed.

Remove from freezer bag. Bake at 350°F until mixture turns light golden brown, 45 minutes to 1 hour. Invert dressing onto a platter and serve with leftover turkey and gravy.

TURKEY DIVAN

I hope your harvesting is nearly completed and that this Thanksgiving is a relaxing one for you.

1 lb. frozen or fresh broccoli [illegible]
6 to 8 slices leftover turkey
1 (10½ oz.) can condensed Cheddar cheese soup
2 tbsp milk
½ cup mayonnaise
1½ tsp lemon juice
¾ tsp curry powder
1 cup sliced almonds

Steam broccoli until tender but firm. Preheat oven to 350°F (175°C). Grease a 2-quart casserole dish. Arrange steamed broccoli over bottom of dish. Add a layer of sliced turkey. Committee on the status of endangered wildlife in Canada

ENDANGERED SPECIES LIST GROWS

Four more species of Canadian wildlife have been added to the national list of endangered, threatened and rare wildlife.

The species and their status are Small whorled pogonia, a flowering plant that is now endangered. It is believed that fewer than 5 of these plants remain in Canada.

An "endangered" species is one whose existence is threatened with immediate extinction throughout all or a significant portion of its range due to the action of man.

Humpback whale is now threatened. Like most of the large whales its numbers are severely depleted in both the Atlantic and Pacific populations due to commercial whaling.

Prairie long tailed weasel is now threatened. Human activity has severely reduced its habitat and its numbers.

A "threatened" species is one that is likely to become endangered [illegible] tors are not reversed

Wolverine is now a rare species. It formerly lived in most of northern Canada but is now reduced in numbers and total range. Its bad reputation among trappers could have contributed to its decline.

A "rare" species is one that [illegible]

"This brings to 52 the number of wild species that [illegible] Committee on the Status of Endangered Wildlife in Canada (COSEWIC) has identified as endangered, threatened or rare. The most important reason why wildlife species become candidates for our list is loss of habitat due to man's encroachment", Mr. Keith concluded.

COSEWIC was formed in 1977. It is a national committee and includes representatives of federal and provincial government agencies and non-governmental groups. The Committee's findings are published in the form of free Summary Sheets and as detailed Status Reports on individual species which are sold at cost.

The organization of Guides for this group took place last Thursday evening.

The new leaders for the Guides from these communities are Dorothy Emerson of Holden and Margaret Mann of Viking.

There are presently 18 Guides, ages 10 to 12 years of age, registered in Girl Guides.

Hastings Lake

The Fun Show organized by the Pleasure Horse Association on Saturday was just that — a really fun show. Attendance was excellent, and many of the twenty-two events had fifteen to eighteen participants. The result was that it turned out to be a very long day, but good spirits were the rule, aided by chili and hot coffee provided by the Playschool mothers.

The competitions included a little bit of everything except rodeo, and contests such as the egg and spoon event, Simon says and the barrel racing were especially popular. All kinds of minority groups took part, such as men, children and the handicapped, and one particularly game-disabled youngster stole the show when he reappeared in the saddle after taking a tumble.

The Ladies' Club October meeting will be held at Lynn Gates' (662-3817) next week on October 12th at 1 p.m.

Dome home

Dave and Jill Cahoon's new home in the Lindbrook area probably catches a few stares from passerbys. Their new home is the first of its kind in Canada, built of urethane foam and concretous material. The new home is stated to be very energy efficient. photo by Kroetsch

Energy saving home constructed

People travelling in the Lindbrook area have probably looked in wonder at the new home of David and Jill Cahoon.

The new energy efficient home, thought to be the first of its kind in Canada, looks like a giant igloo from the road.

Cahoon, a physics teacher at Harry Ainley High School in Edmonton, said he had given assignments in energy efficiency, prompting him to build an energy efficient home.

Looking around for plans for this type of home Cahoon learned, through a friend on the Alberta Research Council, of the type of home he is presently building.

The only company, he said, that makes this type of home, as far as he knows, is Environmental Shell International in Oklahoma.

The house compares in price to a regular home, to build, said Cahoon.

The uniqueness of this type of home is not only in the shape of it, but also in the way it is constructed.

A big vinyl balloon, reinforced with nylon, is inflated and then sprayed in the inside with six inches of urethane foam.

"Foam is one of the best insulators we know of," said Cahoon.

After the foam was set the inside was sprayed again with steel fibre reinforced concrete. The outside of the house is temporarily painted with a latex paint, but will be finished next spring with a cementous material consisting of cement, sand, nylon fibre, waterproofing material and latex paint.

The inside of the house is approximately 1,800 sq. ft. on the main floor and 1,750 sq. ft. in the basement. There will be four bedrooms on the main floor and one upstairs.

Cahoon said that according to theory the only cost of running the house will be the lights, stove and dryer. The heat from the stove, dryer, himself, his wife and their seven children should be enough to keep the house warm.

But being not too optomistic, Cahoon said he would be installing a gas furnace and a fireplace.

"The fireplace will probably be our main source of heat," said Cahoon.

Besides being energy efficient the house is virtually fire proof, said Cahoon. If there is a fire in the home, the house could be cleaned out and refinished.

The house is also said to be tornado proof. Cahoon said that the house is so solid a person could drive a Sherman tank over the roof.

Construction on the home was started in mid-April and the Cahoons plan to move into their home by the end of October, even though at first the windows will be a covering of plastic until the windows arrive and are installed.

Most of the construction was done by Cahoon himself, assisted by Leonard Pence from the Oklahoma firm.

Cahoon plans to create a company in the future to build this type of home in Canada.

FEED FREIGHT ASSISTANCE

Over the past few months, we have had many inquiries regarding the Feed Freight Assistance Program and whether or not it will be in effect again this year.

Feed supplies earlier in the season appeared to be very short. Feed inventories were low to non-existant, pastures very slow and very poor, and some hay fields and crops were utilized as pasture. However, the situation has improved immensely and the result is that feed supplies are quite adequate. The quality of these supplies may not be very good but the supplies are there. For those people suffering from localized shortages, hay is available within 25-30 miles from their operations. As well, the amount of greenfeed in this County is much higher than usual, probably a result of the poor cropping situation this spring.

As a result, we have been advised that there is no intention of implementing a Feed Freight Assistance Program for this fall and winter. As in the past, however, we will be operating a forage exchange. Please give us a call if you have hay, greenfeed, etc. to buy or sell.

USING ALBERTA BARLEY FUTURES

We have just recently received a supply of a new brochure called "Using Alberta Barley Futures". This brochure, printed by the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange gives a very good explanation of the new Alberta Barley Futures Contract as well as Futures trading and hedging in general. The brochure is free of charge and will be mailed out to you or you can stop in the office and pick one up. Please give us a call if you would like one.

We would also like to mention that two marketing seminars are being put together for November 30 and December 1, 1983. "Emptying the Bins" is the title of the seminars and is being put together by the District Offices of Wainwright, Provost and Ryley. Watch for the advertising.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

A number of new inspirational books have been added to the library shelves this week. A collection of articles reprinted from a publication of spiritual help and encouragement, is called "The Guideposts Treasury of Faith" It includes writings by Hallen Keller, Billy Graham, Catherine Marshall, Dale Evans Rogers, and many others.

A twentieth anniversary edition of Anne Morrow Lindbergh's book, "Gift From the Sea" has been printed. These essays of meditation on the problems that beset the human heart will no doubt find as many readers today as it has in the past 20 years.

Many books have been written recently on the role of the modern woman but "Men of Steel and Velvet" by Dr. A. Asdelin attempts to define the "ideal man" It is a Christian approach to the role of the husband in marriage and the family.

Dr. Leo Buscaglia, the well-known teacher, lecturer and author, offers his latest book "Living, Loving and Learning" as an inspiration for those s..eking a full and loving life. Texts of his addresses have been transcribed and edited to include the best of each in this book.

On the fiction side, look for a new book by Tommy Steele, better known as a recording star and actor. Although he has been a writer of his own shows for some time, and also of a children's book, this thriller "The Final Run" is his first novel.

Another author of a first novel is Dr. Wayne Dyer, better known for his best-selling nonfiction books such as "Pulling Your Own Strings" "Gifts from Eykis" is a story of a man's journey into space to find new worlds, only to find a mirror image of his own; it is both a love story and an adventure.

Fans of horror stories will appreciate Bill Fremzini's newest anthology, "Creature!", a collection of short stories all with the common theme of monsters.

Two other books, which read like fiction, but are true, are both set in British Columbia. "The Curve of Time" by M. Wylie Blanchet is a memoir of her summer voyages along the B.C. coast with her children during the 30's. "The Nine Lives of a Cowboy" by H. "Dude" Lovington, is an autobiography of a B.C. cowboy and rancher born in 1897.

The Library winter hours are: Tuesday 1-8; Thursday 3-5 and 6-8; Friday and Saturday 10-12 and 1-5. The Preschool story hour is Tuesday at 10 a.m. for three and four year-olds.

Vitamin A fat can cause rickets

Humans and many animal species are susceptible to rickets - a degenerative softening of the leg bones caused by deficiency of Vitamin D in the diet

Now researchers at the University of Saskatchewan's Department of Animal and Poultry Science have found that rickets may also be caused by excess dietary Vitamin A or fat

Graduate student Valerie Stevens and her supervisor, Prof Robert Blair, aided by Prof. Craig Riddell of the Department of Veterinary Pathology, studied the effects of diet on 600 turkey poults (young birds) from hatching to four weeks of age The birds were divided into six groups of 100; the groups were fed diets with different amounts of fat and Vitamin A Birds on all diets except the one with the least fat and Vitamin A developed leg problems, these were most severe in the group whose diet had the highest fat and highest Vitamin A content.

The researchers say their findings obviously have implications for other species, such as humans, which are prone to rickets. They also pointed out the importance of their findings for feed producers, and for the livestock and poultry industries which lose millions of dollars a year because of leg defects in stock. The affected birds and animals have trouble standing up to feed, and do not grow properly within the bacteria which carries out this transfer is being studied intensely as today it is the only successful gene vector for higher plants One of the foremost researchers in the area, Dr. Mary-Dell Chilton of C.I.B.A.-Geigy states that the bacteria "is likely to become a major tool for the genetic manipulation of plants "

The research was funded by Agriculture Canada and by the Alberta Farming for the Future Fund.

Changing Genes . . .

With the help of A. tumefaciens, researchers have been able to transplant a gene for seed protein from a French bean into sunflower tissue. However, no one has yet been able to develop the tissue into a plant which can then produce offspring. This identifies one of the major obstacles to genetic engineering — Can genetically modified tissue be grown into healthy, reproductive plants? A second concern is whether the new plant will pass on the desired trait to its offspring? The third major hurdle is to be able to choose and isolate the genes that are likely to improve crop plants. There is currently no known way to find and then isolate genes controlling traits such as higher yields or resistance to pests.

The impact of genetic engineering on agricultural production during the rest of this century will depend on how fast the problems asociated with it can be solved. New breakthroughs in research will be required. Chemical and drug companies are optimistic and are pouring large amounts of money into the research And there is growing optimism by scientists working in the area that substantial advancements can be made during the next ten years

"Madness" is a hit

by Lee Kimmel

The moonlight madness promotion, thought to be the first of its kind in Tofield, was well received by customers of the two businesses involved, said Cliff Sommer, owner of Robinsons.

Sommer said the promotion drew approximately 250 people to his store to take part in the savings

"The key is to be able to provide merchandise that is properly priced and that will meet the needs of the customer; then they will come," said Sommer

He said this unique promotion had generated a substantial amount of customer traffic.

He also said Hall randomm comments on this type of promotion were favorable.

Link Hardware owner Craig Jeffery, the other business involved in the promotion, said there were approximately 300 people through his store last Friday evening. He too said this typ; of promotion was well received by the customers.

Jeffery said that most communities are running one kind of promotion or another, so on the spur of the moment he and Sommer decided to open their doors from 8 p.m. to 12 p.m. to draw the buying public out to shop.

Jeffery said that because it was a spur of the moment idea there had been no time to get other businesses in the community involved in the idea.

Now that it has been successful, both businessmen felt there would be more of this type of promotion in the future.

Jeffery said that when this type of promotion is tried again that they would try to get other businesses in Tofield involved.

"If we could get all the stores in Tofield interested we would really promote business in Tofield".

Coyote complaints increase

by [illegible]

There is an increasing number of coyote complaints in the County of Beaver, said Agricultural Fieldman, Laurie Weatherill.

"The coyote problem is a lot worse than it's been in a long time," said Weatherill. "The number of complaints is considerably higher this year than in the last five years."

The increase in coyote problems is attributed to an increase in coyote population by natural cycle and a decrease in the hunting of coyotes because of increasing hunting regulations and lower pelt prices.

There have been a number of complaints in the Tofield, Ryley and Bruce areas with losses of chickens, turkeys, sheep and even calfs.

Weatherill said anyone having coyote problems should either contact himself or the district agriculturist at the County of Beaver Office.

"This will initiate an investigation into the seriousness of the complaint," said Weatherill.

If it is found the losses are substantial and it is a legitimate complaint, they will take control actions by either poisonous baits or by bringing in a predator specialist to take care of the problem.

Once the complaint has been substantiated, the farmer could be eligible for recovery of losses under the Alberta Livestock and Predator Indemnity Program. The program works on 80% compensation on loss, with a minimum claim of $100.

Weatherill said farmers should phone at the first sign of loss by coyotes, even if the loss is minor, so he can get a true picture of the problem.

"If we only hear of the bad losses, or the serious complaints, it is hard to show there is a serious problem."

Weatherill said that by listening to coffee shop talk, he is convinced there are a lot of minor complaints that aren't reported.

Other ways to combat the problem is proper livestock management.

Poultry should be fenced in, if not during the day, at least at night. It should be possible to produce a coyote proof fence around livestock, said Weatherill.

Even if a fence can't be made coyote proof it can be made to give the coyote a few access points as possible. This will help later in finding the coyote's trail, helping to eliminate the problem.

It is also important to keep a close eye on livestock on a regular basis to be able to report any problems as soon as possible.

If there is interest by farmers, said Weatherill, there can be a one day seminar held in predator control. The seminar will educate farmers in proper predator control so the farmer can combat their own problems as much as possible.

The intent of coyote control is not to reduce the coyote population, but to remove the problem coyotes.

Weatherill said the typical problem coyote is a female with pups. The female coyote having to provide food for herself and her pups, turns to killing livestock to meet the needs of her pups and herself.

Weatherill said they like to get the problem arrested while the pups are still in the den. This eliminates the problem before the female has had time to teach her pups to kill livestock.

He said that by this time of year the pups are grown and are travelling around, complicating the problem.

The majority of coyotes are beneficial, cleaning up dead carcasses and keeping the rodent population in check.

Anyone having coyote problems can contact Laurie Weatherill or the District Agriculturist at 663-3730.

Agricultural land use discussed at hearings

After nearly three years of preparation, the Environmental Council of Alberta is about to begin its public hearings on agricultural land use.

And while agricultural producers appear primed to share their concerns about the future of their industry's land base, very few urban residents have, so far, indicated much interest in participating at these hearings.

The hearings are to begin in Calgary's Jubilee Auditorium on October 12, 13 and 14. From there, the panel will move on to 15 other hearings locations in the province, ending in Edmonton on December 5, 6 and 7.

About 60 advance briefs, or notices of briefs, have already been received by the ECA.

The public hearings on maintaining and expanding the agricultural land base in Alberta will be held in the following locations: Calgary, Lethbridge, Brooks, Hanna, Medicine Hat, Olds, Camrose, November 3 in the Legion Hall; St. Paul, November 7; Wainwright, November 9; Evansburg, November 15; Barrhead, November 17; Peace River, November 22; Grande Prairie, November 24; Vegreville, November 29; Red Deer, December 1 and Edmonton, December 5, 6 and 7.

Meeting delayed

Tonight (Tuesday) is the day of reckoning for the County of Camrose Senior Hockey League.

A lot of decisions are to be made.

The league was supposed to have finalized plans for the 1983/84 season on Thursday evening but, only Tofield and Kingman were represented at the meeting.

Delegates from Round Hill and Bashaw were not in attendance.

The '83/84 schedule was supposed to have been approved as a new executive was to have been elected.

No new applications were received last week.

However, league officials were told that New Sarepta was interested in entering a team and that there was a possibility that two teams from Edmonton might be available.

League officials are determined to finalize planning at tonight's session.

Public meeting planned

. . . on park development

by Ken Knudsen

Possibly by late November the Tofield Recreation Board will be holding a public meeting regarding the development of Belvedere Park, proposed for next summer.

At a regular meeting last week, board members were informed that the conceptual plans for the park have been sent to Alberta Recreation and Park Outdoor Facilities Planning for the further addition of details.

As soon as the plans are returned, they will be submitted to Tofield Town Council for their approval and then, go to a public meeting for input in November.

The conceptual plans are a proposal of the development to take place and are subject to change, if necessary.

One hurdle, however, that will have to be overcome first before any development can be done, will be an agreement between the Town of Tofield and the County of Beaver School Board.

At the present time, the property proposed to be developed is jointly owned by the Town of Tofield and the School Board. An agreement will have to be reached before the development can progress beyond the planning stage.

Concerns were raised at the meeting over the Fairground Advisory Board's handling of money.

It was pointed out that the way the board is set up it was an advisory board and not an operational board and it was also against the constitution of the organization to maintain funds.

Board Chairman, Laurie Weatherill, had pointed out the advisory board had handled Tilltoy It On past. He said that although he didn't disagree with the advisory board handling money under the Recreation Board's direction, he felt that if they were going to, then their constitution should be changed to avoid legal problems in the future.

It was recommended that the Fairgrounds Advisory Board be contacted to see if they would consider being an operational board, and if they did, it would be recommended to Town Council that authority be given to the advisory board to maintain funds.

There were several proposals of what to use the $600 that was donated to the Recreation Board from the proceeds, after expenses, of the Fire Department's roller-skating.

The matter was tabled to a later meeting until the Fire Department could be contacted for their input on the matter.

The Fire Department had originally indicated the money be used to purchase something that would be used by the youths of the community.

Policy for rental of the hall, for events such as New Years and Hallowe'en, has been set on a first-come first-serve basis.

Booking of the hall can be done one year in advance. The Tofield Exhibition have asked to book the hall for the New Year's Dance.

An application for $9,000 from the Alberta Parks and Wildlife Foundation has been applied for by the Arts and Craft Society in Tofield for the purchase of chairs to be used for the community.

The board stressed that a letter be sent to the foundation supporting the application of the group.

The board was informed there will be no charge for public skating this year. It was thought that for the time and money spent to collect fees and for the amount collected, that it wasn't worth the bother.

On the board as a member for the first time is Andy Timchak, replacing Dave Smith as the school representative on the board, and it was the last meeting for Board Chairman, Laurie Weatherill, who has decided not to seek re-election.

The Recreation Board was organized on Feb. 8, 1962 with a two-year agreement between the Ag Society and the Town of Tofield.

There are two representatives from the Tofield Town Council, two representatives from the Ag Society, and one member at large from the community and from the rural area. There is also one representative from the

The two-year agreement will come due for renewal on February 8, 1964.

Farmers market a hit

by Ken Knudsen

In it's eighth year of operation, the Tofield Farmer's Market is one of the few in the province that is open on a monthly basis, year round.

The market is always open on the second Friday of each month, except when a holiday falls on that date. When this happens, the market is postponed to the next Friday, said Vivienne Brown, market manager.

Brown said the market has been expanded in the last two years to include markets being held twice a month in the months of August, September and October, to accommodate the fresh garden producers.

Three years ago the market was averaging about six tables per market. This has increased, said Brown, to 15 tables average per market.

Tables rent for $4 per table. There can be one club or two individuals per table. Regular stall holders keep the same table position from one market to the next, while new people to the market have to take what they can get.

Each table each month contribute towards the door prize from the items they have for sale. These items are separated into several door prizes, depending on the number of items that are received.

The market usually opens at 3 p.m. to the public and continues for about three hours depending on the availability of items at the market.

This year at the Farmer's Market, through a promotional grant from the government, the organizers of the market have been able to salute and involve the various organizations and clubs each month at the market.

Another grant from the provincial government made it possible for improvements of facilities, of which chairs for the community were purchased.

From profits from the market for three years in a row, $1,000 was given to the Ag Society in support of the Arts and Crafts Society for maintenance of the Arts and Crafts room in the Arena.

Last year $750 was used to refinish 45 tables at the fairgrounds.

Plans for October include a salute to the farming community on Oct. 14 with Thanksgiving centre arrangements.

On Oct. 26 there will be a salute to gardeners with a vegetable competition. In the junior competition there will be awards for the best jack-o-lantern, the largest carrot and the best vegetable creature.

In the adult competition there will be awards for the best potato collection, the best squash collection, the best onions — four on a plate, and the best tomatoes — four on a plate.

The date for the Farmer's Market for November has been changed to the 16th because of Remembrance Day.

Each year, usually in March, all Alberta market managers meet at a convention in Edmonton to discuss problems and successes, with the hope of continually improving, said Brown.

Steep climb

In the last demonstration of the day, during the two-day seminar on vehicle extrication in Tofield, an accident was simulated at the bottom of a steep hill. The victims in the crash received make-up to add realism to the accident. The rescuers had to haul their equipment down the hill and then carry the victims back up. The Mercury's reporter took part in the demonstration.

Mail slot now in use

The Mercury has recently installed a mail slot in the door of their building to make it easier for people to drop off payments for bills and for people dropping off correspondence.

We hope this will be more convenient for people who cannot make it in to the office during regular office hours.

This is just one more way The Mercury is striving to meet the needs of the people of Tofield and surrounding area.

How inaccurate?

Police forces across the land are watching closely as the validity of breathalyzer tests is being challenged. Appeals against conviction on the grounds of breathalyzer tests have been launched, after demonstrations have been set up to 'prove' that readings from the device are not always accurate, or that they can be misinterpreted.

On the basis that the readings may not be accurate, appeals are being launched asking for the instrument to be declared no longer legal in police work.

But maybe we're getting too anxious to eliminate a useful tool just because it isn't foolproof. Maybe the objectors are a little too anxious to get rid of a device which might prove bothersome. Maybe the fact that shortcomings are being demonstrated will lead the way to the solution, the elimination of such problems.

Liquor and driving, after all, are a pretty explosive mixture. And we're happy to see enforcement given any kind of assistance (any reasonable kind, that is) in moving the impaired driver off the road.

Maybe the present breathalyzer kit isn't a hundred percent reliable. Neither are radar guns, but that doesn't mean they should be thrown out. The question lies in the margin of error.

After all, police forces in this country only lay charges after blood alcohol reaches the .08 percent level. And that's already a major margin of safety. Many countries claim impairment at .05.

If the accuracy level of the machine may be questioned, let's raise the reading required from the machine to .10 or higher if need be, but still use the machine. .08 could continue to be the level in scientifically controlled tests. But when a 'client' blows .25, as some do, it's not only silly, it's criminal to suggest the machine be thrown out because it may not be one hundred per cent accurate.

It's not only the instruments which make mistakes. Humans do, too, but no-one is suggesting we eliminate policemen doing their work simply because sometimes they've been proven wrong. For goodness sake, let's give them our support. And a few tools to work with.

Is everybody selfish?

Have we all become too selfish? Are we too interested in 'doing our own thing'? Don't we care about the rest of society anymore?

It's not unusual as the summer holidays end and various groups try to get started for the winter season again to find there's a shortage of assistance, a lack of leadership, in local groups. But this year seems to take the cake. There seems to be a number of organizations facing lack of support or participation so serious as to threaten the programs.

Now some programs may be questionable in the first place, and may not deserve widespread support.

But things such as Scouts? Girl Guides? Block Parents? Football coaching? Sunday School? Sure, these and several others. For young people as well as for adults.

Why should it bother me, ask some people, why should I take the time? There are probably many reasons, such as the capability to do a superior job, without which they probably wouldn't have been asked. But two reasons are probably more important. If you want someone to coach your child in football, it's only fair that you give his (?) child some time in Sunday School. (Substitute any one of the groups for the above two named.) Second, someone years ago took the time to give you some help. It's only fair to pay it back.

So serious is the situation this year we've heard of at least two groups which have already voted to disband, and more are looking at it. So the community won't offer the programs, and because 'there's nothing to do', we'll hire more police.

What's the matter with us? In an age when we have more time than ever before, how come we have no time for the things that count? Things like lending a hand. Have we all become so self-centered? Or so selfish? Or so lazy?

Renewal program plan will aid all drivers

On October 1, the Department of the Solicitor General, Motor Vehicles Division, officially initiated a series of new programs to provide a more efficient and cost-effective service to Albertan drivers.

Two of the most significant steps will include the introduction of a staggered renewal program and the availability of new license plates.

Detailed information on these and other changes are currently being mailed to registered vehicle owners in Alberta.

However, the staggered vehicle renewal program has been adopted to eliminate the heavy annual renewal period drivers previously experienced.

This new approach will divide Alberta's drivers into 12 equal alphabetical groups according to surname.

Solicitor General Graham Harle said: "This will result in more efficient service by reducing last minute line-ups." Mr. Harle noted that passenger vehicle registration fees will remain at last year's level and some other fees have been adjusted slightly to simplify and speed up service to the public.

The new plates will be phased in between October, 1983, and March 31, 1984.

All owners have the opportunity to receive them now — either by filling in the application form enclosed in the information package or, by visiting a local Motor Vehicles Division licensing agent.

Once the application has been processed, the new plates will be mailed to the registered owner.

All registered automobile owners will have received their information packages by the end of October and other vehicle owners will receive theirs in the following weeks.

Other changes outlined include alterations to the vehicle classification system; medical requirements; permanent fleet and trailer registrations; a quarterly licensing program; and future computerization throughout the province.

A NEW ANIMAL HYBRID

Have you heard of a sheep-goat hybrid? Sometimes at Britain's Babraham Institute of Animal Physiology, near Cambridge, are apparently on the verge of creating a herd of these animals. In fact, they already have two young hybrids — a male and a female.

To get these hybrids they crossed a white Saanen goat, which is one of the most popular goat breeds in Britain, under controlled conditions, with Barbaryaram. Barbary sheep have long curled horns, are native to North Africa and are claimed to have the closest genetic link to goats of any sheep breed.

Although it is not yet known whether sheep-goat hybrids will have a practical application for farming in the future, it is possible that the two hybrids at the institute could form the nucleus of a flock or herd that could live in rugged, hilly areas where grazing is poor. Under such circumstances they would be able to provide cheap milk, meat and wool. Both sheep and goat's milk are apparently in good demand in Britain for making cheese and yogurt.

Don Scheer, head of Alberta Agriculture's sheep and goat branch, does not see any practical application for sheep-goat hybrids in North America for the forseeable future, but he thinks that they might well have a place in countries which have large areas of semi-arid land.

Patricia Young Says . . . . . .

While the free world continues to work hopefully for the continuance of an uneasy "peace" we must at the same time be realistic in facing historical fact. This ranges from recognition of Lenin's statement: "Promises are like pie crust, made to be broken" (Pages 290-291 Collected Works of Lenin, Vol 9 Russian 4th Edition.) Notwithstanding the fact that some 40 countries and territories have come under communist dictatorship since 1919, we must recognize that most were swallowed by way of broken promises and "peace" treaties — more than 100 of them.

History has recorded broken "non-aggression" pacts with the Ukraine, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Georgia, Finland, Armenia, Poland, Czeckoslovakia, Rumania, Hungary and others.

On November 16th, 1933, the USSR signed an agreement with the USA not to distribute communist literature nor organize groups in return for official "recognition". Once recognized, communist newspapers and propaganda flooded the country.

On January 1st, 1942, the USSR signed the UN Charter pledging to seek no more territorial expansion. Between 1944 and 1975, they took control of East Germany, Bulgaria, Poland, North Korea, Cuba, Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia and Mongolia by way of supplying arms and "advisors" On June 11th, 1942 they signed the Lend Lease Agreement with the USA to return all undestroyed ships and equipment given them in World War II. Eight Hundred Million dollars worth of equipment and 94 ships were never returned.

When they signed the Korean Armistice July 21st, 1954, it was to refrain from introducing arms, aircraft and to permit on-sight inspection by the UN, a treaty that was violated continually and on-sight inspections forbidden. The nuclear bomb testing agreement was broken September 1st to October 30th, 1961 as more than 50 nuclear weapons were tested, all more powerful than any tested before On October 28th, 1962, Krushchev wrote President Kennedy promising to remove troops and nuclear weapons from Cuba. While some missiles were eventually removed, no on-sight inspections were never permitted.

The sorry story of broken "pie-crust" promises continued to be evidenced in the supplying of arms and advisors to North Vietnam. In 1980, the US Senate Judiciary Committee listed and itemized these 180 broken agreements and Treaties. Yet, like a child's faith in Santa Claus and the Good Fairy, the West continues to put its faith in "detente" and the Soviet signature. Little wonder that many citizens view the whole silly business with raised eyebrows and a yawn. Little wonder that more and more people are reminding us of the Biblical advice to be as gentle as a dove but as wary as a serpent.

From the mail bag

One for the West

Sept. 14, 1983

Dear Sir:

We hear every little while of a new Political Party being formed here in Western Canada and especially in Alberta. No doubt there is a great need for a Western Oriented Party.

Would like to bring to mind some of the benefits the P.Q. party has instituted for the benefit of Quebec. They have their own Quebec pension plan, which for 15 years has grown into a 15 billion dollar trust fund. Here in Western Canada we pay into the Canada pension plan which we are told every so often is about broke and must be reimbursed from the Public revenue.

Quebec is officially a uniligual province. Here in Western Canada we spend billions to promote French or biligualism. The Federal government provides funds to enforce French, no such funds are available to enforce English in Quebec. The terrific expense being forced on to Manitoba today is a good example of what is in store for Alberta in a couple of years.

In Ontario they have the Ontario Wheat Board, which is operated by the Ontario government for the benefit of Ontario. Here in Western Canada we have the Canadian Wheat Board which is operated by the Federal Government for the benefit of Quebec and Ontario Obviously we are not capable under our own present Provincial parties of managing our own affairs.

Quebec controls their own immigration, here in Alberta the Federal government dictates our immigration. Irregardless of how many unemployed we have, we must abide by the Federal ruling or quotas. If we object, we are labelled as bigots or racism. Quebec exports its produce, including its energy at world price with out Federal taxes or price control. Alberta energy (gas and oil) not only have a heavy Federal tax on its exports, but the Federal government sets the quota and price. We furnish this to Eastern Canada at substantially less than world prices.

When did Western Canada have the privilege of buying Ontario gold or anything else from Ontario or Quebec for less than World prices? I challenge any one to tell me when and what.

Under our present political set up, (both Federal and Provincial governments) how long will it be before we are faced with a tax on our lumber or other products we export from Western Canada.

The Crow agreement is in the process of being scrapped for the benefit of Quebec and Ontario livestock producers. Not one Western provincial government has seen fit to come forward and raise its voice for Western Canada.

These are just a few of the inequitities that are being forced on us by both the Federal and Provincial parties that are in existence at the present time

There is a challenge to us here in Alberta to take an interest in our own destiny and go forward to forming one strong party, having formed it, here in Alberta then we must go forward and have it across the four Western provinces. There must be unity and co-operation in the four provinces as no one province can make any change alone.

There is a challenge to every true Westerner to become involved and build Western Canada for future generations, your children and mine. All comments are welcome.

The Sjostroms lived on a farm in the Donalda district and later moved to the town of Donalda. Following their years in Donalda they moved [illegible].

Mrs. Sjostrom does a lot of knitting and also enjoys travelling. She took a trip to Sweden this summer and enjoyed seeing family members and friends once again.

No place in Alberta to treat Alzheimer's

"North America's Number One Public Health disease today is Alzheimer's disease" declared Dr Frank MacInnis last Wednesday evening when he addressed a packed hall at the Anglican Church. "One out of three of you who are present, I predic.., will have a parent who is affected."

A long-term practioner with the Smith Clinic before he left Camrose more than a dozen years ago on an overseas posting with CUSO, Dr. MacInnis is now associated with the Alberta Hospital, where he sees more than an ordinary number of patients with the problem. For years it was looked on as senile dementia, he indicated, but recent research has extended the borders, and the recognition of Alzheimer's.

The disease has an insidious onset, he explained, usually not immediately apparent to the family. It involves loss of orientation, accompanied by a gradual physical decline, and also periods of confusion, degenerating gradually to the point where the patient may have to be fed, may have to be diapered, and reverts to infancy.

Early diagnosis is nearly impossible, he declared, although the earlier in life it appears, the shorter is the life expectancy, in the main.

Most victims are looked after by dedicated spouses, he said, adding that the only treatment so far is huge doses of social interaction ... 36 hours daily with the family.

ONLY ALBERTA

The problem constitutes from 60 to 65 percent of disease related to the aged, he said, but added it is NOT age related. Usually it occurs in the 60 to 85 year group, he said, but it is not infrequent [illegible].

Possibly 15 percent of the population suffer to some extent from Alzheimer's, he said, although it is severe in only from five to eight percent.

Of these, he suggested, only from 50C to 600 are being treated in government hospitals or institutions.

Alberta is the only province which does not have any services other than hospitals to treat patients with severe Alzheimer's, declared Dr. MacInnis.

Dr. MacInnis said the disease [illegible] and described away back in 1906 by a German, Dr. Alzheimer. However, it was not until half a century later, in 1956, that research was instituted and which proved that it was not essentially simply a matter of old age, that healthy elderly people had the same blood flow to the brain as young people.

Then about 1960, he said, research in Great Britain showed only about 15 percent of those considered to be suffering from senile dementia had brain disorders which might be associated with hardening of the arteries. The rest, he continued, showed the symptoms described in 1906 as Alzheimer's.

EXCITING RESEARCH

"One of the most exciting areas of research today," said Dr. MacInnis, "is in the area of enzymes. One enzyme . a coline compound . has been found to be consistently low in Alzheimer sufferes."

It is only twenty years since [illegible] the speaker, in a discovery which led to major relief for these patients, in the discovery of El Dopa.

He went on to suggest he thinks we may be on the verge of a breakthrough since acetyl coline has been found to be very severely limited in Alzheimer patients. If some way could be found to increase the production of acetyl coline, we may be able to break [illegible].

The genetic factor is not yet well researched, throught the doctor, but it has been suggested there is a 4.3 factor indicating its transfer on an hereditary basis. There is a close relationship to Down's Syndrome, he added.

COLLECT POSITIVES

Dr. MacInnis was accompanied in his visit to Camrose by Mrs. Martin, president of the Edmonton Chapter of Alzheimer Support Group.

"Collect as many positives as you can" in your support of family members urged Mrs. Martin as she reported her own experience over a period of years.

Any Support Group formed is not for the patient, she pointed out, but for the family. There are such things as adult day care centres in order to let members of the family out for a short time ... to pay the bills, to buy the groceries, and so on. Care in the home is very hard to find, she reported.

Progression of the disease in early stages can be delayed if the patient is able to be kept in the bosom of the family, the meeting was told, but quick deterioration is common when it is necessary to place the patient in an institution, where he or she misses the tender loving care of the family. On this basis, patients without spouses are often admitted earlier than others, simply for their own sakes.

It comes to the point where the family can no longer cope with the problem, declared Mrs. Martin. Safety becomes a factor. Defensive actions such as removal of the knobs on stoves is necessary. At times like this, the family physician can be a great help in making a possibly painful [illegible].

Some sort of special facilities are needed in Alberta for advanced patients, declared Dr MacInnis. We [illegible] kind of centre than mental hospitals.

SMALL BLESSINGS

One of the small blessings which accompany the disease is that family have little need to worry over problems associated with smoking, said Dr. MacInnis, who added that the loss of memory means patient often forget they ever wanted to smoke. The same can be said for drinking, he continued.

During a question period, Dr. MacInnis said there is no firm evidence of any link between aluminum and Alzheimer's disease. While the suggestion has often been raised, said Dr. MacInnis, there is no greater incidence of Alzheimer's in areas where huge bauxite mines (the raw [illegible]) than in other areas. He pointed out that some studies show more aluminum has been found in some areas of the brain, but other studies contradict the same findings.

While admitting he could not dismiss such theories, he said, there is little solid evidence to support them.

Research on disposal of nuclear waste continues

The way in which the Canadian nuclear energy industry may dispose of nuclear waste was presented to the Chamber of Commerce last Tuesday evening.

Given by Don McLean, head of the Chemical Technology Branch at the Whiteshell [illegible]ment at Pinawa, Manitoba, the slide presentation was entitled Nuclear Waste Management and it studied methods for disposal that are presently [illegible].

[illegible] portant concepts involved in nuclear waste disposal are immobilization, disposal [illegible] and environmental safety. He said the Nuclear [illegible] concepts will be presented to the Nuclear Waste Control Board for possible acceptance. Public hearings will be held towards the end of the [illegible].

"The highest period of radioactivity (for nuclear waste) is in the first 300 years," McLean said. "The concept is to keep waste stable in the environment ... to be safe."

Briefly explaining the way in which a nuclear power generator operates, McLean said the fuel logs used in a nuclear generator are composed of uranium. The logs spend approximately 18 months in the plant powering the turbines. Nuclear power from the uranium is created through an artificially-induced fission process. After the 18 month period the logs are removed and placed in a large water tank, McLean said.

At this stage the logs do not emit much heat but they remain extremely radioactive and must be stored safely for the next 300 years, he said.

The safest storage method developed so far involves "burying the fuel logs one km deep in specially sealed rooms," McLean said. "An important concern would be the impact of ground water (which could eventually distribute radioactive material.)"

So far the most suitable area found for the burying of the nuclear waste is in Ontario. McLean said there are 1,400 natural rock formations in the province called plutons which would be suitable for the disposal of the waste.

Speaking about the immobilization of radioactivity in nuclear waste, McLean said a process is being developed whereby the radioactive materials are solidified in glass because glass is very resistant to water.

Construction, environmental impact, socioeconomic impact and the potential for radioactive waste to cause a radiation dose to humans are all things that have to be considered in the work towards the safe disposal of nuclear waste, McLean said.

Emphasizing the development of alternate forms of energy, McLean said the decreasing supply of oil will make it necessary to have other sources of energy available.

"Countries all come to Canada for their energy needs ... it's good for Canada," he said. "It's always a way in which we can create employment for Canadians."

McLean said that electricity, coal and other energies should be developed. He said 35 per cent of Ontario's electrical needs are met by nuclear energy plants and there are approximately 275 reactors operating around the world.

[illegible] of radioactive material leaking, McLean said if the [illegible] of the earth, it would not be distributed and only one specific area would be contaminated. However, he said possible water contamination is still one problem being dealt with.

Fertilizer banding is a relatively new method of fertilizer application in the prairie provinces. Engineers at the Lethbridge station of the Prairie Agricultural [illegible] actively involved in determining the effectiveness of equipment available for deep banding fertilizer Since deep banding of fertilizer in the fall is usually done in late October, just prior to freeze-up, this is an opportune time to review the advantages of deep banding and the equipment available to perform this task.

As early as 1967, scientists have investigated possible advantages of placing granular fertilizer beside or below the seed. Fertilizer attachments on conventional drills were being used, but this often led to "burning" of the seedling when higher than allowable amounts of nitrogen were in contact with the germinating seed. Broadcasting of fertilizer was and still is a common method of fertilizer application, usually followed by incorporation by tillage. This has long been recognized as a less than desirable method, especially as fertilizer and fuel costs soared an increased efficiency became the economic reality to be faced by producers.

Tests carried out by various researchers have shown that placing the granular fertilizer in the soil with a wall of soil separating the seed from the fertilizer can result in increased yields of 2 to 10 bushels per acre over broadcast and incorporated fertilizers. The theory for this advantage of deep banding is that plant roots do not, as is commonly believed, grow towards fertilizer, but rather, have natural tendency to grow down and outward to seek out moisture. Consequently, deep banded fertilizer is utilized by the rooting process of the plant seeking moisture, with both plant rooting and growth being enhanced.

Experimental results have shown that for fall application, fertilizer should ideally be placed in rows spaced at 12 inches apart in the same direction as seeding and in a narrow, compact band, from 1.5 inches below seed depth to twice seeding depth. This requires the use of chisel points or banding knoves to obtain sufficent tillage depth and minimize soil disturbances, and special banding boots to minimize fertilizer spreading.

When the Lethbridge station of the Prairie Agricultural Machinery Institute became involved in testing air seeders, [illegible] aroused concerning the ability of these machines to work as deep banding fertilizer applicators. Each of the nine air seeders evaluated to date by PAMI include an evaluation of the deep banding performance of the machine.

Banding effectiveness on air seeders evaluated to date has only been determined when using conventional two inch wide cultivator chisel points. Results, using heavy duty cultivators that can penetrate to the required depth, indicate that chisel points. Results, using heavy duty cultivators that can penetrate to the required depth, indicate that chisel points placed the fertilizer granules in a band about one inch wide. The depth of fertilizer placement generally ranged from chisel tip depth to 0.5 inches above chisel tip depth. Fertilizer bands usually became wider in lumpy soil conditions and as the chisel points became worn and rounded. Intermediate duty cultivators gave similar results to the heavy duty cultivator, provided the soil [illegible] proper penetration. Light duty or field cultivators are generally not recommended for fertilizer banding due to the lighter shanks not being able to penetrate to the required depth.

Due to the penetration problems, excessive soil distrubance and high power requirements when using chisel points, the deep banding knife has come into being. There are now many different shapes and designs of deep banding knives on the market. Some banding knives attach directly to the cultivator shank, while others require the shanks to be cut off. The Prairie Agricultural Machinery Institute at Lethbridge will be evaluating seven different banding knives during the upcoming fall deep banding season. Comparisons will be made to the chisel point performance in terms of penetration, fertilizer placement, soil disturbance, wear and power requirements.

Banding premises to become the primary method of fertilizer application in the future, and the Prairie Agricultural Machinery Institute hopes to continue to provide valuable information to the farmer concerning equipment used by prairie [illegible]

French have more faith in future

[illegible] confident about their personal future than do English Canadians, according to a University of Western Ontario sociologist.

Professor Edward C. Grabb set out to test the long-standing assumption that [illegible] likely to feel their personal fate is not in their own hands, suggested by previous studies into the difference between French and English cultures and world-views.

These previous studies suggested that French Canadians' "traditional" society, Catholicism, and political subservience to English [illegible] their feeling that the future was out of their hands On the other hand, the "Protestant ethic", years of political dominance, and a more "[illegible]" [illegible] tional society had supposedly made English Canadians [illegible]

But when Professor Grabb examined data from a 1977 survey conducted by the Institute of Behavioural Research at York University, [illegible]

Describing his results in the Canadian Review of Sociology and Anthropology, Professor Grabb points out that on three of six measures of future-orientation, French Canadians scored higher than [illegible]. The only respect in which they were less future-oriented was that they had more real expeiences of their plans being thwarted.

Professor Grabb says that if French Canadians ever did lack confidence in their personal futures, this diffidence has obviously disappeared. He tentatively attributes this to the modernization of Quebec society and the political resurgence which began with the "Quiet Revolution" of the 1960s.

FOOD FOR ALL

October 16 has been established by the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the United Nations, as World Food Day. It is a day for us to strengthen our commitment to the elimination of hunger.

Despite data to the contrary, Canadians have often been led to think there is insufficient food to meet global dietary requirements. Such is not the case the FAO estimates the world produces more than enough food (by about ten per cent) to meet the minimum energy requirements of all the world's population.

Hunger exists because of poverty — it is an economic not a food issue.

WHAT CAN WE DO?

Increasing the world's productivity and distributing its yields equitably requires investment in capital works and research. It requires people to gain as technology and skills to others. But most of all it requires the awareness and willpower of everyone if we are to overcome the habits and traditions of production and trade, of labour and land distribution that prevent access to food.

The world has the money, the resources and the technology to feed its hungry millions. All it needs is the commitment to make these accessible everywhere. With that commitment will come Food For All.

Athletes

Susan Danielson, Donovon Aubrey, Armand Eglauer, Preston Cunningham, Margy Reid, Waylon Wallace, Kevin Goulston, Lanne Eglauer. Farm Hashings: Mike Donovon were given awards for athletic ability in their respective sports. (See related story for further details.)

Farmers market ...

New guidelines and rules are also discussed that develop through the year.

"One of the new rules this year is that a market must be sponsored by a Society rather than individuals to receive the benefits from the department," said Brown.

At the present time the Farmer's Market in Tofield is not sponsored by a Society.

Other rules for the market are very simple, said Brown. If you've grown it, or you've made it, then you can sell it, and such tables as second hand items and private businesses are allowed but must be kept to a minimum.

Brown said they owe the success of the Farmer's Market to the quality of goods offered and to the year round services offered to the community.

Brown said she also has "appreciated the co-operation and attendance of people of the community and area."

Anyone interested in the market can contact Yvonne Brown 663-3091 or Theone Jones 663-3192.

Threshing end nears

Threshing of the 1983 crop should be completed this week.

According to reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool, ninety-three percent of all crops have been harvested.

Farmers in the Rosalind area were the first to be able to relax as they completed the harvest several weeks ago.

In the Sawdy region, most the harvest operation has been completed with only the odd small field still to be threshed.

The same situation applies in the fields around Camrose where farmers are in the final stage of threshing crops.

Only five percent of the wheat crop around New Norway is still to be threshed with all other crops having been harvested.

Farmers in the Daysland area have five percent of wheat and one percent of oats still to be done with other crops having been threshed.

About ten percent of the wheat crop, along with five percent of oats and barley and a few acres of canola are all that remains to be done in the Hay Lakes area.

Sixty-five percent of the wheat crop around Holden has been threshed to date. Only about five percent of oats and barley remain to be done while canola harvesting has been completed.

Farmers around Tofield made giant strides during the past week after being sway behind other areas.

Ninety percent of canola has now been threshed while oats and barley have reached the three-quarter mark and about thirty percent of the wheat crop is still to be done.

Farmers in the area around Ryley have the furthest to go as they are just below the three-quarter mark.

About fifteen percent of canola and twenty percent of barley is yet to be threshed along with thirty percent of the wheat crop and forty percent of oats.

With each passing day of good weather, more and more farmers will complete harvesting operations and according to the reports, all farmers should be done by the end of this week.

Perseverence award

The winner of the perseverence award for this year's Tofield Awards Day was Susan Pinder (centre) Runners-up were Bret Thomas (right) and Bernadette Zintel (left) (See story for further details.)

During the last half of the 20th century women have increasingly active in the political realm.

India, Israel and Great Britain have had women as prime ministers In South America, the wives of presidents have had a dominant influence in the affairs of state. The struggle for recognition and power has been an uphill battle.

One who achieved prominance is Margaret Thatcher, and a very recent visitor in Canada and the United States. We have been informed, through televised interviews, that her parents were Methodists, a denomination with a strongly evangelistic and practical concern for the needs of others Thus, together with a driving personal ambition to achieve a position of power at whatever risk has taken her to the most responsible of all offices in the kingdom.

There is no question of Mrs. Thatcher's personal dedication to her task, nor has she any questions about her ability to wean Great Britain from what she describes as "motherly socialism". She is a very militant and determined individual.

Where does the need for public works harmonize with the legitimate claims of private enterprise? A notable theologian, Reinhold Niebuhr contributed a book on "Moral Man and Immoral Society". It examines the relationship of our personal, individual standards on behaviour with the actions of governments, and concludes that we as individuals have personal standards quite different, and even in opposition at times, those of the state.

The great value of democracies is that they do offer an alternative leadership. Her majesty's loyal opposition, in Great Britain, have been reduced in numbers, and within Margaret Thatcher's own party a very strong majority endorse her leadership. Political leaders who are capable of admitting their mistakes publicly are an endangered species. In democracies, political parties do require strong leadership, but the responsibility for mistakes on the part of followers of the leader cannot be shifted off. There can be no leaders without followers.

Reluctant followers of the leader can also be an endangered species Should one add "Let the voters beware!"

Mercury surveys civic candidates

by Ken Kroetsch

A recent survey was taken by The Mercury, asking the candidates and incumbents why they were running in the upcoming election.

COUNTY

In Division 1 of the County of Beaver, Fred Myer said he had seen there were not enough good people running in this division and he saw a need for someone to do the job. He said he sees that in some cases things could be done different than they are being done now.

Wilford Leadl of Division 1 said he can see a need for co-operation between council and the ratepayers. He would also like to see a better job done by grader operators on the roads in the division.

The incumbent, Gordon Maxwell, of Division 2, said he was seeking re-election to see two projects that have been started, completed. One of the projects is the completion of Secondary Road 615 and the drainage ditch north of Viking.

His opponent in the election, Arnold Hanson, said he feels it's time for a change in the division. Hanson would like to see better representation for the people and a more open working relationship with the ratepayers.

In Division 3, incumbent Gordon Holmes said he still feels he has something to offer the people in his division. With the experience he has gained he feels he could be an asset to his division after the election. He said that the election process will evaluate his previous performance on council, if he has done a poor job, he said, then someone else should be in.

Donald Ronaghan, running as the opposition in Division 3 said he would like to see county council willing to listen to the people of the area, while at the same time providing the services needed.

With three years experience behind him, Victor Romaniuk said he is better prepared to represent Division 3. He said there were several projects he would like to see completed that are now presently in the planning stages or, have just started.

Concerning the educational side he said he would like to represent the people to resolve the issues at hand and to come to a solution to the problem in the best interests of all concerned.

Jim Young of Division 4, said he sees a lot of problems in the division. He would like to see changes in management and would like to see the work, hired out by the county, more evenly distributed. He also wants to work at getting the county out of debt.

Don Hultholm, the other candidate in Division 4, said he would like to see a working relationship with the communities in the county to encourage new businesses and industry in the county. He would also like to work towards improved education and not reduced education.

Doug McCloy of Division 5 said with his experience in management training and as a policeman in Calgary, he has a good background to work with people and to investigate their problems to come up with a solution. He said the people deserved to have someone to listen to their concerns and represent them fairly.

Lawrence Hrabec of Division 5 would like to see attention given to the school system in Holden. He said he would represent the interests of all the communities and districts throughout the county. He would like to see tax increases kept to a minimum.

Reuben Hoveland said he would do his utmost best to deal with the issues facing council if he is elected.

Bram Van Der Torre said he is concerned with council holding closed door meetings with the attitude of nobody needing to know what is going on. He would like to see a more open relationship with the ratepayers.

Van Der Torre said he sees a conflict of interest between council and the school board and would like to see them separate entities.

Stan Kubin, candidate in Division 6, said he would like to see restraints in taxes. He would like to see the county start practising restraints and to get back to where things were before.

He said everyone is talking restraints and now is the time to do it. He would like to see some cutbacks.

Incumbent George Knudslien said he is running again to maintain stability on council. With elections in every division, there could be some changes on council.

Knudslien said he would also like to see the reserve fund, a requirement of municipal affairs, to have one year's taxes on hand, be achieved in the near future. He said this has been a concern of the county, a goal since 1974, to meet this requirement without taxing the ratepayer to death.

The incumbent in Division 7, John Warner, said there are some things he would like to see done in his division, that he was not able to have done in the last term. He would like to see the home economics extension added to the Tofield School, and would like to see more attention given to community roads in the division.

There are also a number of issues in the county that Warner said he would like to see resolved.

His opponent in the upcoming election, John Bauman, said he sees the division as somewhat unique in the county. There are long-time residents in the division who are agriculturally orientated as well as residents who have recently moved to an area on small holdings.

With his experience in co-ordinating agriculture week and his professional training in education and family studies, Bauman feels he is equipped to carry out the duties of a councillor and as a school trustee.

In the last election, incumbents in Divisions 2 and 3 went in by acclamation. There were 1,143 people out to vote in the other divisions. There are approximately 1,700 eligible voters in the County of Beaver.

TOFIELD

There are two candidates running for the office of Mayor for the Town of Tofield.

Cliff Sommer said a lot of people, who have felt he had qualities and actions to give the town some positive goals, urged him to run.

He feels Tofield should be run in a more business-like fashion.

Sommer is in favor of encouraging development of a light industrial park to offset the residential tax base. He would like to see more programs that are family orientated with the community.

C.W. Sears, also seeking the Mayor's seat, said with his experience on the county council and the school board he could be an asset on council.

He said it would also be a privilege to be mayor of a community that he had grown up near and had worked toward building. If elected mayor, Sears said he would do his best for the community.

Seeking re-election on one of the six council seats, Hans Christensen said he is seeking re-election because he is interested in public affairs and with his experience in electrical and contracting, he has some experience to contribute to the community.

Marie Worton, also seeking re-election, said she would like to see continuity on council. She said she has enjoyed the accomplishments and challenges of the last six years on council and is interested in the further progress and improvement of the community.

Incumbent Tom Lyle said he has enjoyed the last three years he has put on council and would like to serve another three years in the service of the community.

Incumbent Ed Regehr said that with the experience of the last three years, and his desire to serve he feels he has something to contribute to council.

John Lampitt said that in the last three years the town has progressed very favorably and he would like to be part of such a progressive group.

He said that although a lot has been done, there is always more to accomplish.

[illegible] said he has always been interested in the affairs of the town and district. He said he felt he could contribute to the community, if elected.

John Prast said he didn't like to sit around and complain about things without being able to do something about it. He said there are areas where a much more efficient use of taxpayers money could be made.

In the last election there were two candidates for mayor and 10 candidates for council and two candidates for school representatives running. In this election year, Arnold Swift was elected by acclamation as the school rep for the Town of Tofield.

There were 512 people voted out of 900 possible voters in the last election.

RYLEY

In Ryley there are six candidates and incumbents seeking a seat on the five-man council. The mayor for the community is chosen from among the five men that are elected.

Larry Andrukow said there are a few things that were started while he has been on council that he would like to see completed. He said there are some things council are looking into for the improvement of the community that he would like to work on further.

[illegible] said he would like to keep things running and try to improve conditions around the community.

Involved at the present time in a few of the projects that are in the planning, Ernest Brown feels he is good for another term. He said he has had several people who have urged him to seek re-election.

Incumbent Jack McKeen said his prime concern is to get Ryley on the map. He would like to see industry come into the community to help the community to grow.

Bob Cross said he has got both experience and time to devote to the matters of the village.

Cecil Stenerud said he would like to see some progressive growth in the community. He is concerned about the loss of the younger generations to other areas of the province because there are no jobs in Ryley.

Edgar Good was elected by acclamation as the school representative for Ryley.

In the last election there were 14 candidates. There were 246 people voted out of an estimated 400 eligible voters.

HOLDEN

In Holden, there are eight people seeking seats on the five-man council. As with the village of Ryley, the mayor is chosen from the five-man council by the councillors.

Incumbent Nick Shihinski said that with the experience that he has now he is more capable to deal with the issues that arise.

He said that it is a challenge that he enjoys. There are two major projects, started by council, he would like to see completed.

Dennis Danilak said he would like to see some of the projects started by council completed. He said he enjoys the work, and feels that by enjoying the work it makes a difference in what is accomplished.

He would like to see taxes stabilized and kept as low as possible.

Peter Ogonoski said with his experience as town foreman for 10 years and having lived in the community for thirty years, he is prepared to serve the community for another term.

More growth in the community is what Anna Shavchook would like to see. She would also like to see more residents in the lodge, a doctor come to Holden once a week, and would like to see a woman on council.

Dorothy Emerson said she felt someone has to show an interest in what is happening in the community. She would like to see growth in the community and would like to see the future of the children of Holden looked after.

Kevin Stambaugh said he would like to see improvement in the community to make it more inovative and progressive. He would like to see the people better informed about what's being done.

The main reason Ken Sharpe is seeking election is because he thinks it's time for change. He would like to see more emphasis by council in establishing new business within the village.

Seeking re-election as a school representative for Holden, Nestor Semotiuk said he is prepared to strive and promote quality education in Holden.

Bobbie Schweitzer, seeking a seat as school representative in Holden, would like to see major improvements in the Holden School. She would like to see better value for the educational dollar and would strive to have better communication and cooperation between the school board and the people.

In the last election in Holden all the people were elected by acclamation.

VIKING

There are two candidates besides the incumbent seeking a seat on the County of Beaver School Board for Viking.

Incumbent Leo Kelly said he is interested and concerned about the school system within the County of Beaver. Having served five years, he said he would like to serve another three years.

Russell Hanson said he is concerned with the increased expenditure of the school system. He would like to see something done about it.

Rod Krips said he has vested interest in the school system with two children in school. He is interested in maintaining the integrity of the school system.

Also being familiar and having experience with dealing with various levels of government, Krips feels this would be an asset to the school board, if he were elected.

One meet will be for canoe racers while the second will be in cross country running.

Both meets are lead-ins to the annual ACAC championship events which will be held later in the month.

Both competitions are expected to draw entries from most learning institutions in the ACAC.

The canoe meet will be staged on Mirror Lake while the cross country run begins at the ski lodge.

Canoeists from CLC recently travelled to Sylvan Lake for an annual competition with Red Deer Community College.

For the third straight year, CLC emerged with top honours by winning three out of the four events.

CLC athletes took top honours in the men's mixed and war canoe events and suffered a narrow loss in the women's competition.

Runners from CLC recently competed in meets held in Red Deer and Edmonton.

Now-a-days, with the economics of farming getting worse, you can't afford spending money foolishly. Soil sampling is one way to help reduce farming costs. By knowing exactly what your soil lacks (Nitrogen, Phosphate, Potassium, Sulfur, micronutrients) you can increase your yields and cut back on needless expenditures on extra fertilizer that is not needed. Recent tests have shown that 70% of farmers are using improper rates and types of fertilizer that best suit their soil requirements and conditions.

The legislation proposing changes to the historical Crow rate on the transportation of grain is a bill that requires extremely careful consideration since the ramifications are enormous and far reaching. Western Canada will never again be the same.

A faster, more efficient transportation system could make our raw products more competitive, assist in our industrialization, move agricultural products to market more quickly, but, in contrast — the government may load upon prairie farmers a financial burden that will cause them to collapse.

There is little doubt that Bill C-155 was poorly drafted. To date the Official Opposition has moved 116 amendments of which 56 were accepted; in total 80 amendments have changed the legislation.

What is clear is that Prairie Canada needs a more efficient transportation system to move our products to the export markets of the world. The inability to move grain efficiently is collectively costing prairie farmers millions of dollars annually in lost sales. Further, because quotas do not open large enough or fast enough farmers need to store their grain following harvest at considerable expense without accruing interest costs to cover operating expenses — a situation that could be achieved if the railway system were to be improved.

But how efficient will the new system be? How much faster will quotas open? How much larger will these quotas be? How many more tons of prairie grain will be allowed to be sold in any given year? The answers to those questions are necessary before the last [illegible] adequately resolved.

It is unfair to ask farmers to pay a specific increased cost without knowlege of the extent to which an improved transportation system is to be [illegible].

Today's farm receipts are generally equivalent to those of 1973. On the other hand, farm input costs have tripled in that same period of time. In short, approval of the legislation is asking farmers to pay five times more for transportation of grain by 1991 on the promise of improved service but without knowledge of the extent of improvement.

It is my personal contention that farmers can pay some more of the costs of transportation but that the amount of that payment should be based on a proven capacity to improve service which has in turn yielded a financial benefit to prairie farm producers. It is only when all factors of the equation are known that we can legitimately discover what the actual costs to farmers should be. To do otherwise risks establishing a costing mechanism today that will be out of line with an un[illegible].

That is a smoke, mirrors and silk scarf method for keeping in touch. What is needed are facts about the degree of benefit before we establish the additional price the farmer ought to assume.

RENTING A MOBILE HOME SITE?

In a periodic tenancy, whether monthly or year-to-year, the landlord must give at least 180 clear days notice to increase the rent of a site in a mobile home park. At least 90 clear days' notice is required for a site outside a mobile home park.

A tenant is considered to have agreed to the rent increase if he does not give a notice of [illegible] to be effective on or before the date the rent is to be raised. Unless stated in the agreement, an increase in the rent for a fixed-term tenancy is not permitted.

A landlord must:
— Ensure that the mobile home site will be available for the tenant at the beginning of the tenancy — Not disturb the tenant or his peaceful enjoyment of the mobile home park — Make sure the site is sound and fit when the tenancy begins
— Take reasonable steps to do the following tasks:
— Maintain the site sound and fit
— Keep the common areas habitable and in good repair
— Maintain utilities and other facilities provided by him sound and fit — Provide or arrange for the removal or disposal of garbage at reasonable intervals — Maintain proper access to the site
— Provide the tenant with a copy of the rules and fee schedule before entering a tenancy agreement

Rules may be changed by landlords, though reasonable notice must be given. However, no notice is required when new rules deal with safety of the mobile home site residents or the use of the common areas. Rules must be applied fairly, and may not significantly change the tenancy agreement. To increase fees, the landlord must give 180 clear days' notice in writing for sites located in mobile home parks, and 90 clear days for sites located [illegible].

[illegible]
— Pay the rent on time
[illegible]
— Not interfere with the rights of [illegible]
— Maintain the site and any property rented with it in a [illegible]

— Not do, or allow others to do, any significant damage
— Not endanger persons or property on the site or com[illegible]
— Leave the site when the tenancy expires

The security deposit that may be charged cannot exceed one month's rent. A landlord must pay a minimum of 12% interest on the deposit. The interest must be paid annually, unless the landlord and tenant agree in writing that it is to be compounded annually and paid at the end of the tenancy. The security deposit must be delivered by the landlord to the tenant within 10 days of the tenant giving up possession of the premises. If [illegible] are made, a statement of expenses must be given to the tenant, with the balance of the deposit within 10 days of the tenant giving up possession. When expenses have been estimated, the landlord must provide a final statement and deliver the remaining balance to the tenant within 30 days of giving up possession. It is important that the landlord obtain the tenant's forwarding address, to meet the legal requirements.

Generally, to enter a mobile home site, a landlord must give notice and have the consent of the tenant or an adult person lawfully on the site.

The landlord may enter [illegible] in an emergency, or if the tenant has abandoned the site.

The landlord may also enter without consent, but after notice has been given, to inspect or repair the site or to show it to prospective tenants after notice to determine the tenancy has been given.

The landlord's notice of intention to enter the [illegible] must be:
— In writing
— Specify reasonable times of entry
— Given to the tenant at least 24 hours before the time or times of entry.

GEORGE KNUDSLIEN

It is good to see the interest that is being taken in the local municipal elections for the next three year term.

In spite of the fact of economic restraints the demand for public services does not, however, seem to be any the less, but by working together with administration and staff, Council have managed to keep wage increases to date to zero percent. Materials have been cut back, particularly in the public works sections, by as much as fifty percent. The hard winter of 1974 drained all our dollar reserves because of the effects of excessive snow and the water damage that same summer. Council have now been able to put back into those reserves over a half million dollars towards the approximate nine hundred thousand dollars of which is the requirement of Municipal Affairs under the Provincial Governemnt. In the final analysis, the County is in the best financial position it has been in for years and unless something very unusual happens, I would drive on to gradually meet the requirements of the Provincial Government and yet not impose upon the ratepayers undue increases in taxes. I will strive to see the completion of projects such as Secondary Roads 834, 854 and 865 as well as to help maintain the basic and necessary services as required by ourselves as ratepayers.

I recognize the problems related to the field of education and I am prepared to meet this challenge with a very open mind and with the direction and wishes of the people as my guide.

It has been, not only an honour, but a privilege to serve the people in Division 6 — people who I consider to be very open minded, very understanding and very alert to the happenings of local government, for which I am very thankful.

It is your God given right to vote on October 17th for the person who will best serve you. All I ask is that you, as a voter, go to the polls and exercise that right.

Respectfully submitted,
GEORGE KNUDSLIEN

Handicapped are people

by Loraine Goodbrand

Being a newcomer to the Camrose community, it has been interesting to watch the attitudes of those residing here towards the mentally and physically handicapped. Overall, I have been very impressed with the helpful, polite and friendly attitudes shown to those handicapped people I work with. I work for the Camrose Association for the Mentally Handicapped as a Residential Manager and have had a number of outings with the residents, so I've seen how they have been treated.

As in any community, there is the occasional individual who yells out "retard", or whispers to a friend and then starts laughing right at a handicapped individual. I used to be one of those people who [illegible] ridicule a person I saw as being different from myself. It gave me a feeling of power and an "I'm smarter and better than you are" attitude. It wasn't until I started working with the mentally handicapped people that I realized that they too have feelings, capabilities, hopes and dreams, just as we supposed "normal" people do. Something else I had to do, before I could try to understand and help these special people, was to put myself in their place. I had to realize how easy it would have been for me to have a handicap – whether it be a mental or physical one, maybe an amputated leg or arm. I try to imagine how I would feel – probably inferior and isolated, because I wasn't "normal" anymore. I wouldn't want people around me to think that I didn't have feelings or desires just because I had a handicap. I would want them to respect me as an individual, just as I would hopefully respect them.

It could happen so easily to anyone of us at any time, whether it be caused from an accident or illness. Next time you have an encounter with a handicapped person, imagine yourself as being that person, and see if your attitude doesn't start changing for the better.

Normal school reunion held

A successful alumni reunion of the Camrose Normal School class of 1933-34, was held Sept. 30 in the Mayfield Inn, Edmonton, 63 graduates of the total class attended the reunion, coming from all the provinces west of Quebec, and from California and Washington.

The organization of this event was under the able direction of Dick Robertson, president; Helen Pierce, secretary; and Nick Ambrose, Treasurer; together with a general steering committee.

Prior to the reunion 90 graduates submitted autobiographies of their work and accomplishments during the 49 years since they graduated. These were submitted to the editor Marjorie Morgan (Riddell) who edited and published them in booklets – the title being "Whatever Happened to Dick and Jane".

The afternoon was spent in registration and reminiscing.

The evening's entertainment included a banquet, mini-drama and a sing-song – "down memory lane" with Gladys Duggan (Mohler) and Fred Brimacombe on the piano, also Fred Rosser on the drums. They accompanied the singing and dancing.

Everyone agreed the reunion was a memorable occasion – a once in a lifetime experience.

PUT PEP TO WORK FOR YOUR BUSINESS

If you have a business or farm operation in Alberta, you can help tackle unemployment this winter.

Alberta Manpower's Priority Employment Program (PEP) is designed to assist Alberta's private sector in creating jobs and training opportunities for new and existing employees through subsidization of wages.

Last year, about 3,000 employers created opportunities for more than [illegible] Albertans through PEP. This year's PEP subsidies are available from November 1, 1983 to April 30, 1984.

Employees eligible for PEP wage subsidies must be Alberta residents, at least 16 years of age, legally entitled to work in Canada and cannot be an immediate family member of the employer or supervisor.

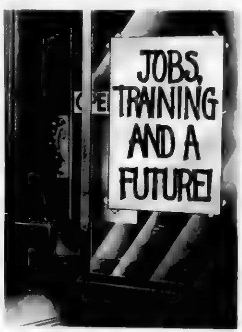
Under PEP's Business and Farm Support element, the new job must be in addition to the regular number of full-time positions and cannot affect the hours or period of work of existing employees. Subsidies for jobs which provide work for a minimum 32 hours per week, and continuous employment for at least three months, will be on an equal-shared basis (50%) up to a maximum of $2.50 per hour.



Under PEP's Industrial Training element, financial support is available for:

- on-the-job training of existing staff,
- apprenticeship work experience completion
- hiring post-secondary graduates on research and development projects.

Employers will be reimbursed on an equal-shared basis (50%) up to a maximum of $250 per week. Some other related costs for each of these programs may also be recovered.

Brochures and application forms for PEP funding can be obtained from Alberta Manpower's Employment Development Offices in Calgary, Edmonton, Grande Prairie, Lethbridge, Red Deer and St. Paul.

Deadline for applications is January 10, 1984.

Additional information can be obtained by calling our Special Manpower Programs office—427-4740 in Edmonton, or for those living outside the Edmonton dialing area, call our toll-free PEP line.

Dial 0, and ask the Operator for Zenith 22078.

Almost unheralded is the young German physician who, unable to talk his colleagues into helping him pass a catheter into his own heart, did the job himself. It was the first heart catheterization. He was successful and survived, only to receive a severe dressing down from his superiors.

This was the start of a diagnostic technique now in routine use around the world. The ability to pass a hollow tube into the innermost chambers of the heart has led to a much greater understanding of the function of this organ, and has contributed greatly to the development of coronary artery and other heart surgery.

The catheters are the thickness of a thin pencil and are about two feet long. They are made of a plastic material impregnated with a substance that will show in an x-ray. They are soft enough to bend at body temperature, but firm enough not to collapse.

Most are pre-shaped at their tips — molded into a variety of angles and bends which allow easier threading through the convuluted route they must take. The tips are designed to rest in the part of the heart being studied.

The catheter is inserted into a vein or artery in the arm or groin. The choice depends upon the part of the heart that is the target. It is manipulated under x-ray visualization until it is in the correct spot.

Heart chamber pressures can be measured, flow rates determined, or injected dye can show anatomical defects or blockage of coronary arteries. The data obtained is of critical importance in planning treatment. Surgeons are happier if they know exactly what they are likely to encounter at the operation.

Measurements made before and after the operation serve as an indication of the success of the procedure and are of research value.

Having your heart catheterized is relatively safe. Problems such as hemorrhage, perforation or triggering an abnormal rhythm occur three or four percent of the time. The death rate is less than two per 1,000, which is acceptable if it is remembered that many of these patients are very ill in the first place.

Medically Speaking is published with the cooperation of the Alberta Medical Association and this newspaper.

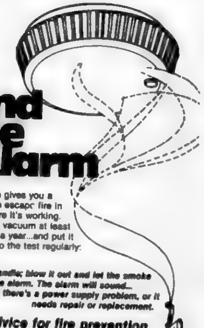
Sound the Alarm



Your smoke alarm gives you a fighting chance to escape fire in your home. Be sure it's working. Clean and vacuum at least twice a year...and put it to the test regularly:

Light a candle; blow it out and let the smoke drift into the alarm. The alarm will sound... unless there's a power supply problem, or it needs repair or replacement.

Sound advice for fire prevention.

"We give thanks to you, O God" Psalm 75:1

Echoes from Em

If God Should Go on Strike

How good it is that God above has never gone on strike
Because He was not treated fair in things
He didn't like.
If only once He'd given up and said, "That's it, I'm through!
I've had enough of those on earth, so this is what I'll do.
I'll give my orders to cut off the heat supply!
And to the moon, 'give no more light,' and run the ocean dry.
Then just to make things really tough and put the pressure on,
"Turn off the vital oxygen till every breath is gone."
You know He would be justified, if fairness were the game
For no one has been more abused or met with more disdain
Than God, and yet He carries on, supplying you and me
With all the favors of His grace and everything is free.
Men say they want a better deal and so on strike they go.
But what a deal we've given God to whom all things we owe!
We don't care whom we hurt to gain the things we like;
But what a mess we'd all be in, if God should go on strike.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

This week, look for a selection of self-improvement books new to the library. "Dress for Success" by John T. Molloy, and the sequel, "The Dress for Success Book" will answer almost any question you may have about what to wear when, and why Adrien Arpel's book, "How to Look Ten Years Younger" covers such topics as skin care, hair care, and makeup, with an approach to preventing or disguising signs of aging. "Jane Brody's Nutrition Book" includes chapters on general nutrition and good food habits, as well as specialized topics such as food for athletes, pregnant women, etc. Many recipes are included in this best-selling guide to good health.

For a humourous look at our country, you may enjoy Charlie Farquharson's "Jogfree of Canada". He writes nonsensically about every area, from the "North Waste Terrortery" to "Sasquatchyouwan"

A new book in the science section is "Sex and the Brain", a report on research into the question of hereditary and sexuality, and the differences in the male and female brain structure

"the Immigrants" by Gloria Montero, is a series of interviews with, and personal observations of, new Canadians from all over the world. People young and old, in many different occupations, talk about why they came to Canada, and what their new country means to them.

One of two new cookbooks to enjoy, the "Canadian Homestead Cookbook" by Jeanne Scargall, is full of old-time recipes and home remedies. The other is "The Allergy Cookbook" published by the Allergy Information Association. It not only gives many recipes for milk-, egg-, and sugar-free dishes (among others), it discusses possible substitutions for use in your own recipes. This book should expand an allergy-limited diet considerably Library hours are Tuesday 1-5, Thursday 3-5 and 6-9, Friday and Saturday 10-12 and 1-5. Preschool Story Hour is Tuesday 10-11 a.m.

CWY gain

by Sharda Bharadwaj

Mark Bell, from Toronto, is working at the Veterinary Clinic and says he got interested in this job because it was different and unrelated to other things he had done before. It may not help him with his job opportunities, but he loves doing it for the sake of knowledge.

His Supervisor Dr. Grahn says "It's a heck of an opportunity". Having been involved with the CWY he says is terrific for it is mutual experience

Pramod Malik and Dana Michels, the only male-female pair in this exchange program are luck enough to work in the Gene Williams farm. Dana chose to work here because it is a different way of life and she wants to experience it. Pramod however, chose to work here because he wanted to learn the Canadian way of farming which is very different from the Indian method. He feels that city life in most countries are essentially the same but not the farm life, and hence he chose to work here

Mr. and Mrs. Williams — their billeting parents, and work supervisors, were interested in other countries and cultures, and feel that this is going to benefit their whole family

Myself — Sharda Bharadwaj, am a student of Sociology. I have long been interested to see a country with a different culture and values. Working here at "The Camrose Canadian" I feel will give me a cross section of the entire community.

Ed Clinton, my Works Supervisor, says "The Canadian got involved in the CWY program last year for the first time and found it an enlightening experience and through the use of space in the paper, provided the people of this area, with good comparisons of life, involving different cultures.

"It is The Canadians aim to try and repeat this experience in an effort to help people of the world better understand each other for our mutual gain and benefit."

Rescue teams

Firemen ambulance personnel and RCMP took part in a two day seminar in Tofield on vehicle extrication last weekend. The 26 people taking the course were split into groups of victims and rescuers. On the next demonstration the groups switched. Ten old cars that were collected from around the area were used in the demonstration. Each participant in the course was given a certificate after the completion of the course —Photo by Kroetsch

Rescue operations are practised

...writer was a victim

I was trapped in an overturned vehicle, my finger amputated at the joint, my neck injured in the crash.

I was on the bottom, the unconscious driver on top of me. I was in pain from being in the cramped position, but could do nothing to relieve the pain. The car lay at the bottom of an embankment where it had rolled only a short time before.

A woman in the back seat was crying hysterically and a man in the back seat was having trouble breathing because of chest injuries sustained in the crash

On the outside, help started to arrive to free us from the wreckage. Concerned Firemen asked us about our condition.

All I could think about was my lost finger supposedly somewhere in the car. I stuck it in the face of one of our rescuers screaming at him to find my finger. At the sight of my amputated finger, the woman in the back seat broke into hysterics.

A blanket was put over us as the rescuers tore the roof off of the car. In unison we screamed, trying desperately to find out what was happening

The smell of smoke brought terror to us inside the vehicle, supposing that we were going to burn in the vehicle.

The man sticking his head in the broken back window assured us that everything was under control.

The sound of an air chisel cutting the roof off of the vehicle brought concern to me because my head was up against the roof.

Soon the roof was peeled away and firemen were taking away the unconscious driver off of me.

One of the firemen bandaged my damaged hand, while another put a neck collar around my neck, because of my neck injury.

The woman in the back seat was in hysterics, screaming because of her injured shoulder. The firemen gently lifted her out.

I didn't see the guy in the back seat being taken out because firemen were all around me asking me questions about my condition. There was some problem in freeing my arm which was trapped under the frame of the vehicle, but the firemen were able to free it by lifting me up and sliding me back.

I was placed on a backboard and slid from the car. Several people hovered over me asking me if I was okay and where the pain was. I was strapped to a back board, with my head taped to the board

After this I was carried in a basket to the top of the embankment from which the car had rolled. The operation had taken 35 minutes. I had been a victim, but not one of circumstance. I had been a victim by choice

I had taken part in the vehicle rescue seminar sponsored by the Tofield Fire Department.

My amputated finger was a clever make-up job to make the situation more real. The unconscious driver, Gordon Oslund, was only pretending to be unconscious. His make-up was a head injury. The man in the backseat was Laurie Weatherill and the woman in the backseat was Donna O'Flannagan, wife of Mark O'Flannagan, the instructor of the course.

Even though it was a pretend situation, the cramps from having someone on top of me and from being in the same position were real

The vehicle rescue was part of a two-day seminar to train people in vehicle rescue. Different situations were set up and then the firemen and others taking part in the course had to rescue the person using the tools available for the course.

There were two people from the Beaver ambulance, one representative from the RCMP, seven Tofield firemen, six Beaumont firemen, three people from Tri-County Emergency, and seven others from neighboring areas. There were a total of 26 people who took the course to earn a certificate.

The training seminar was part of a vehicle extrication program the fire department has undertaken for this area.

In the near future, they will respond to vehicle accidents, industrial and farm accidents and where there is a need for safe removal of a person in a hazardous situation.

"Loose Ends"

by [illegible]

"[illegible]"

We're very lucky at our house. We don't catch every flu bug and virus that makes the rounds. We limit it to only those which are destined for the human body.

And we don't contract them all the time. The boys only get them on school days, my husband only on weekends or when I ask to go dancing, and me only when the rest of the family insist that mothers can't get sick.

It's the same with the common cold which at the moment is wreaking havoc with my chances to associate with other adults. My kids are nice about it; they don't get sick at the same time. That way Mom isn't run off her feet fetching and carrying, forcefeeding liquids and aspirin and her arm doesn't ache from constantly rubbing two chests with vapour rub, but she's grounded for four days instead of two.

It's like being without a car when you are used to having one; suddenly there are people to see, [illegible] to go and a zillion chores outside the home that demand immediate attention. This is when I wish that they were more like their father. Like most men, he refuses to admit that he is ill unless his breathing has stopped.

It would be different if they were ill enough to be bedridden and I could really play Florence Nightengale. But between sneezes I am followed around, listening to requests like, "Will you play Monopoly with me?", "Wanna play cards?" and "Can I bring the [illegible] in to play?" The other one, somewhat more theatrical than his brother, moans a lot and has sighing down to a science.

Since having them home sick is such a trial for me and a [illegible] for them, from now on I think I'll ignore their symptoms unless they include sleeping through Mork and Mindy reruns or having absolutely no appetite. Those are sure signs that prove beyond any reasonable doubt that they are within inches of death's door.

A friend has just called to ask, "Can you come out today?" I had to tell her that I've been given a life sentence. After all, that's how long I'm going to be a mother and I haven't noticed anyone putting on a telethon to raise money for finding a cure for the common cold. If they do, I won't be able to attend. I'll be home, looking after my sick kids.

District news from Ryley

by Lena Hall

The 23rd of September marked the golden wedding anniversary of Art and Julia Anderson, who have lived in the Ryley district all their lives. A large crowd gathered in the Ryley Community Hall for the occasion. The head table was centered with a three-tiered 50th anniversary cake which was decorated by Millie Helgeland. There were gold candles on the table, and yellow roses from the grand-[illegible] were Art and Julia, Hazel Barnett, bridesmaid, and her husband Clayton and Joyce and Ernie Schmidt – Judy and Palmer Snortheim and Robert and Dorothy Anderson.

George Knudslien was emcee and read messages of congratulations from Hon. Don Mazankowski, Ed Shreyer, Governor General of Canada, Albert Lysio, the only brother in the family of Julia, played a solo on the violin, which was lovely, he being in his 80's. Joe Ruptash was the photographer, he took family pictures and also four generation pictures. There were many others taking pictures. Elmer Anderson was brought up from the nursing home in Viking and had his pitcutre taken with his brothers and sisters.

There were out of town guests from Edmonton, Sherwood Park, Kelowna, B.C., Tofield, Holden, Leduc, Camrose, Fort Saskatchewan, and Ryley. An army buddy, [illegible] Edmonton attended. In charge of the guest book were grandchildren, Darcy Agar and Aaron Snortheim. Anna Kongsrud and Harriet Brown poured tea and coffee

The Ryley Junior High School girls of Ryley won three games out of five on Thursday afternoon against the Holden Junior High girls in volleyball.

Ryley Foods has received the top excellence award for General Merchants throughout Alberta, Saskatchewan and B.C., at the Alberta Grocers Convention, which Joe and Pearl Krawchuk attended in Edmonton.

Viking Cup line-up set

The line-up for the Viking Cup has been finalized.

It should be an exciting hockey tournament.

The defending championship team from Czechoslavakia will be back.

Finland has always provided an exciting team in other years and the Finnish junior champions are coming to seek top honours this winter.

St. Albert has been a hotbed of junior hockey in Alberta for the past ten years or so and the [illegible] will be here.

NAIT (Edmonton) has always iced a competitive team in the ACAC Hockey League and reports out of that institution's camp are that this winter's team should be [illegible].

The CLC Vikings showed considerable improvement in the latter half of last winter's season and the top players have returned this fall and have been joined by a bunch of newcomers that have CLC officials smiling with delight.

As the host club, the Vikings are automatic entries in the tournament but, this winter, team officials feel they will be quite competitive and they're even going as far as to say they feel they have a good shot at winning the trophy.

The sixth and final entry was just announced late last week.

The St. Paul Vulcans from Minnesota have confirmed that they will be in attendance for this winter's Viking Cup.

The team is in its 13th season of operation and last winter, won the championship of the United States Hockey League and over the years, twenty graduates from this junior team have gone on to play hockey at the professional level.

This winter's Viking Cup will open play on Dec. 30th and wind up with the championship game being played on Jan. 2nd.

It is expected that CLC officials may be asked to arrange a number of exhibition games for the two European teams and as well, the U.S. squad may also want to see exhibition action.

Cable company plans meeting

By Ken Cammack

RSTV Cable will be holding a public meeting on Tuesday, to answer any questions from concerned citizens.

The presentation will help people understand what is going on with the installation of cable in the community.

RSTV Cable would like to have construction completed by December of this year if a suitable site for their equipment can be found.

A proposed location for the site is the Sewer Lift Station near the Belvedere area.

RSTV was licensed in June by the CRTC to put cable in Tofield and other rural areas in the province.

The cable has to be installed within one year or the cable company will lose their license.

Some of the children worked for slave wages and some were adopted into the families that took them in.

Hospital bid accepted

By Ken Kroetsch

Approval has been given by the Department of Hospitals and Medical Care for the tender of P & M Construction, to begin construction of Phase 1 on the new Tofield Hospital, said Donald Roth, hospital administrator.

The tender from P & M Construction was for $1,795,998 for Phase 1. This phase includes excavating, concrete work, steel work and some metal decking up to the main floor.

It also includes the electrical and mechanical work to be completed in

There were 12 firms who bid on the project. P & M was the lowest qualified bidder, while the highest tender was $1,279,100.

Phase 2 of the project could go to tender by late November, if everything goes well, said Roth.

The hospital is expected to be completed by May of 1985.

Board members who have been nominated by the municipalities and have been appointed by an order-in-council by the Lieutenant-Governor, will remain on the board until the first municipal election following the completion of the hospital.

Elections held the first part of this week will have no effect on the board.

The County of Beaver representatives are Victor Romaniuk, Eugene Kwasnik, George Knudelsen and John Warner.

J.D. Morrow is the representative on the board from the County of Strathcona; Nick Shilhinski from the Village of Holden; Ed Allarcht from the Village of Ryley; and Jack Cargill and Charlie Sears from the Town of Tofield.

These board members will remain on the board until the 1986 election.

In 1981, the Hospital Board was expanded to incorporate a nursing home and auxiliary district in Tofield Prior to this time, it was only an active treatment district.

Previous to 1981, Tofield was under the Viking Nursing Home District and there was no district for auxiliary

At the time the new board was incorporated two additional members, one from Tofield and one from the County of Strathcona, were added.

Public places

Ottawa has been flailing around for some time trying to come to grips with complaints about prostitution, searching for laws that make sense, and which lend themselves in some reasonable level of enforcement, while at the same time trying to provide some level of moderation or reason.

Depending on the point of view of the individual, or of location, or of their place in society, such efforts tend to provoke warm applause, or cynicism, or downright opposition. We have the moral viewpoint, that prostitution is wrong, and should not be allowed; we have the 'practical' viewpoint that it has always been with us, and always will be, and we may as well face it; and then we have the viewpoint that says it tends to spawn worse crime, that it doesn't belong in 'our' neighborhood, and so on.

Under such circumstances, the efforts of Justice Minister Mark McGuigan will tend to draw either approval or opposition.

A suggestion to make the customer guilty of a crime, for instance, in the same way as the prostitute, is drawing a great deal of comment, mostly critical.

But we don't think there could be anyone who wouldn't oppose his suggestion that automobiles be declared "public places." Soliciting in public places can be seen as a crime, if it is urgent or persistent.

Has an automobile?

A privately owned automobile?

The Liberals have been charged with wanting to write off all rights of ownership, of excluding the right to own property from the Constitution or the Bill of Rights.

But to declare an auto a 'public place'? Surely that means it would be seen in the same light as a city bus or street car, an aeroplane, or a boat. Something that anybody could walk up to and demand a ride in. Can you imagine waiting for a traffic light to change, and have someone step out and say "this is a public place . . . take me to such and such a street."

Mr. McGuigan must be really thrashing around if he thinks he can sell that . . . even to the Liberal party. Tomorrow a man's home won't even be his castle.

Never put off

Father of Our Country, John A. MacDonald was often referred to as "Old Tomorrow" and while we wouldn't put Alberta's attorney general in the same class as MacDonald, we sometimes wonder if he hasn't attended the same school, since he seems to work on the premise "Never put off till tomorrow something you can put off until the day after."

We find many of Mr. Crawford's actions, or rather lack of actions, highly dismaying, such as his hesitancy in dealing with Sunday opening, his interest in palming the whole thing off on a backbencher like Mr. Purdy, and similar avoiding actions.

But we warmly greeted the suggestion he might introduce compulsory blood testing of people involved in automobile accidents who are admitted to hospital, or otherwise incapable of giving the test themselves. It was obvious many drivers were avoiding the penalty by being 'smart', by avoiding the test through feigned injury or unconsciousness.

Compulsory testing, under hospital conditions, would remove that escape hatch, and force the evidence society needs in many instances.

But suddenly Mr. Crawford starts waffling. Assured there is broad public support for his proposal, assured that many organizations, many leaders would back him, he seems to work on the premise that "we'll introduce it in the spring, if Ottawa doesn't introduce it this fall." Ottawa, of course, would introduce it under criminal legislation, where Alberta could not.

But why wait? Why not go ahead with Alberta's bill anyway, and then if Ottawa acts, we'd be doubly protected. If they failed to move in time, we would still have the protection of the Alberta legislation . . . several months before the spring session. How many more times would he consider delaying action in the hope someone else may move first and forestall the need? How many more people need be injured, maimed or even killed while Mr. Crawford waffles and bobbles, seeking someone else to pick up his hot potatoes? How much longer need we wait for some semblance of leadership, of action, of declaration of principle from Alberta's attorney general?

Bargain gasoline

Looking through its files recently, the Alberta Wheat Pool recalled a statement made in August, 1973, by Jerry McAfee, one of Canada's leading oil men in any day or age. President of Gulf Oil Canada, Mr. McAfee made the prediction that within ten years gasoline at a dollar a gallon (remember gallons, not litres?) would be a bargain. He also added that the days of cheap energy were gone.

It's fascinating to see how correct Mr. McAfee has proven to be . . . ten years later, today, gasoline at 23 cents a litre would indeed be considered a bargain. Indeed, it's hard to find gas in most centres for less than $1.70 a gallon, and even $2.00 (in Edmonton) isn't impossible to find.

But what's most interesting is that it wasn't the scarcity of gas, the rising cost of energy that made Mr. McAfee's predictions come true. If the oil companies had been left alone, it might still be quite possible to get gas for less than a dollar.

What confirmed his prediction, in spades, was the government getting into the act . . . something Mr. McAfee hadn't even contemplated when he made his prediction. But the National Energy Policy was thrust on us, with Ottawa taking a ferocious bite out of the gasoline dollar, and the price has never looked back.

Just imagine! It's less than a decade ago when gas at twenty-two cents a litre looked impossibly expensive!

FARMERS BEWARE

The cost price squeeze has viciously attacked farmers in the past decade. Between 1978 and 1982 farm operating costs have increased 115% while farm receipts have basically remained the same as one decade ago in 1973. Even worse, Agriculture Canada has estimated that production costs will increase by an additional 110% in the period between 1981 and 1986.

It is with the aforegoing in mind that I have been asking questions of the government regarding past and projected increases in the St. Lawrence Seaway tolls.

Many farmers are of the false impression that if they ship their grain to the ports of Vancouver, Prince Rupert or Churchill the cost of the Seaway toll does not affect them. Such a belief is wrong. The toll cost for shipping grain on the Seaway is extracted before farmers receive their final payment. Last year that amounted to $24 million.

In spite of the fact that farm prices have tripled in the past decade while receipts have remained static there have been inexcusable increases in the rates on the St. Lawrence Seaway. In the two year period between 79 and 81 the rate increased 100% and increased another 18% in 1982 plus an additional 10% in 1983. Does not one have the right to ponder, "Where was the government's 6 and 5 Program with respect to the federal Crown Corporation, St. Lawrence Seaway Authority?" My question in the House of Commons on October 13th asked, in light of the above, that the toll rates on the St. Lawrence Seaway be frozen at the 1983 level and that they not be allowed to fulfill the concern expressed in a press release of September 30th that "There is a threat they will go up. Sharply. And farmers will pay."

Last year 52% of our western export grain used the Seaway and travelled an average of 2000 miles on that system. By contrast grain travelling by rail to Thunder Bay would travel 450 miles for Winnipeg or 1000 miles for Regina.

Unless farm receipts are brought back in line with farm costs our food production will be threatened and the business of farming will be jeopardized.

Patricia Young Says . . . . . .

The question of legislating the use of automobile seat belts is not so much an argument as to their value in saving lives, but whether government should be allowed to legislate what they believe is best for us — thereby negating our freedom of choice. To believe in Government paternalism is to believe that Government should arbitrarily fluoridate public drinking water, control the amount of money we might earn and what we might grow on the farm, at what price and in what quantity.

The argument that seat belts cut down on accident injuries and therefore on the tax burden of those who subsidize Medicare could be equally used in other areas. Since the spreading of the common cold germ is a public hazard, should Government legislate that all citizens take winter shots? If we hand over one area of our personal safety and well-being to Government, how long before Big Brother decides to legislate what we eat, how we exercise, relax or rest? Since obesity is a hazard to the fat person as well as his Government who may rely upon his pay packet, let's have government legislate how much we eat, with a $1000 fine for overweight people! Let's solve the alcohol problem by legislating how much alcohol we may drink. Since the abuse of sugars, starch and soft drinks present something of a health hazard, why not legislate man's use of them — for his own good! How about legislated keep fit classes, regular laxatives and mandatory mental health check-ups? With our lives already controlled and legislated a thousand times more than they were a hundred years ago, citizens nonetheless continue to hand over their rights to Government.

To be sure, proper diets, exercise, seat belts and medicated toothpaste are good things in themselves. It is a good thing to encourage citizens to drive safely, eat properly, exercise adequately and sleep well. It is not a good thing when Big Brother steps in to legislate what they believe is best for us — like it or not! When that happens, human dignity flies out of the window and dictatorship gets a foot in the doorway.

Echoes from Em

1. He was going to be all that mortal should be — Tomorrow;

No one should be kinder nor braver than he — Tomorrow!

A friend who was troubled and weary he knew;

Who'd be glad of a lift and who needed it, too;

On him he would call and see what he could do — Tomorrow!

2. Each morning he stacked up letters he'd write — Tomorrow.

And thought of folks he'd fill with delight — Tomorrow!

It was too bad, indeed, he was busy today,

And hadn't a minute to step on the way;

More time he'd have to give others, he'd say — Tomorrow!

3. The greatest of workers this man would have been — Tomorrow!

The world would have known him had he ever seen — Tomorrow!

But the fact that he died and he faded from view

And all that he left here when living was through

Was a mountain of things he intended to do — Tomorrow!

Self Help sale set

by Ken Kroetsch

The Mennonite Senior Ladies Aid will be sponsoring their annual Self Help crafts sale in the Tofield Community Hall from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Friday, said Agnes Schneider, secretary-treasurer of the Ladies Aid.

The sale, held for the past 13 years or so, said Schneider, is unique in that all the profits, except for shipping, cushions, and overhead costs, are returned to the producer in a developing country.

The items, from all over the world, include items such as wall hangings, rice straw Christmas cards and weavings, toys and trays. All items are hand made by the producers from developing countries.

The sale of these items are handled through the Mennonite Central Committee (MCC), with all funds from the sale turned over to the MCC for distribution to the producers of developing countries.

The MCC also has items from native Indians from all over Canada.

This program is a year round program of the MCC, with stores all over Canada and the United States. Calgary has a store which sells handmade items year round.

Mary Schmidt of Tofield, sell these items from her home year round. She is invited in to private homes to sell these items year round, said Schneider.

Sales are expected to be down this year due to the poor economy, said Schneider.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

There are a number of new books for parents on the new book table this week. If you are expecting an addition to your family, you might be interested in "The Big Book of Baby Names" or "The Complete Book of Midwifery" or perhaps "The Pregnancy Over-30 Handbook". Those with young children may find "Babies Need Books" or "Teaching an Infant to Swim" appropriate.

"How to Raise a Brighter Child" should be of interest to parents, as well as "The Hurried Child; growing up too fast, too soon". If your children are older, try "How to Survive with your Teenager" or "Toughlove", about improving parent-teen relationships.

Even if you have no children, or they have grown and left home, you might make use of such books as "Growing Older, Getting Better", or "The Senior Side of Living, a handbook for Canadians over Fifty"; or, for women, "Everywoman", by Derek Llewellyn-Jones.

A variety of paperback westerns are on the display rack, and a number of fiction paperbacks have also been recently donated. Look for "The Winds of Sinhala", Harold Robbins' "Spellbinder" or Hans Segin's "Til Morning Comes".

The Library hours are Tuesday 1-6, Thursday 3-5 and 6-8, Friday and Saturday 10-12 and 1-5. Preschool Story Time is Tuesday morning 10-11.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. G.H. Taylor

Ralph and Emily Gorrie of Vegreville were supper guests with his mother, Mrs. Kate Nichols, on Thanksgiving Monday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Keith, a long-time resident of Holden is now making her home in a nursing home in Drumheller to be near her daughter, Mrs. Mavis Walker and family, who live nearby. Mrs. Keith was a hospital patient for some weeks this summer after having a fall and breaking her hip and is unable to get around by herself.

Mrs. Mary Howrish of Vegreville, formerly of the Holden district, and daughter, Shirley were visitors a week ago in Holden calling on friends.

Holden Lodge Order of the Royal Purple held their regular monthly meeting on Oct. 11th with H.R.L. Mary Samotiak in the chair when District Deputy Lady Frances Overbo of Kinsella made her official visit to the Lodge. A report on the Supreme convention held in Red Deer in July was read; also a letter from Wainwright Lodge O.O.R.P. advising they would visit at the November meeting bringing the Traveling Gavel.

District Deputy L. Overbo gave a report of Lodge work and spoke on the Elks' deaf detection and development program. This aid can be obtained by approaching members of the O.O.R.P. or B.P.O. Elks. Lunch was served, hostesses being Ladies Emily Ogonoski and Helen Stecyk.

A Self-Help craft sale will be held on October 27th in the Holden Lutheran Church basement between the hours of 10:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. This craft sale has been held for several years and the ladies in charge have many articles useful and for gift giving.

There will be a meeting Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the Holden Complex of the "1984 Homecoming Committee". Anyone interested is welcome to attend and all suggestions to plan this event and for various activities will be appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Sizer of Fairview, a son of Mrs. Clara Sizer, have been receiving congratulations on the birth of their second child, a little daughter. Another grandchild for Mrs. Clara Sizer and A.M. Ellen of Edmonton.

Holden I.C.W. held their regular monthly meeting last Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Ethel Brekstad leading the Bible Study. Mrs. Dorothea Mathews read the offering meditation. It was also mentioned that articles for the bazaar and tea to be held November 26th should be started. The election of officers was held with the same slate of officers being elected to a further term: president – Mrs. Ethel Brekstad, vice-president – Mrs. Dorothea Mathews; secretary-treasurer – Mrs. Kathleen Hurum.

The meeting adjourned and lunch was served with Mrs. Dorothea Mathews as hostess.

Guests last Thursday with Mrs. Ethel Brekstad were Mrs. Clara Armstrong of Penticton, B.C. and her friend from Loomis.

Helen and Mel Haas and children spent the Thanksgiving weekend in Edmonton with Mel's mother.

Alan and Bobbi-Jo Tiedemann and children of Edmonton were visiting for the Thanksgiving weekend with their family, Helen and Jim Zwierschke.

Mrs. Mary Chemic, who was a resident in the Senior Citizens Lodge for several months, is back at her home with her daughter, Helen and husband, Allan Warwa.

At their recent monthly meeting, the ladies of Holden U.C.W. made plans to hold their annual turkey supper on October 30th in the Holden Community Hall from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Correcting an error in an item in last week's news: Mrs. Sirgina Sizer is not a resident at Northview Manor but, is in the Senior Citizens Lodge. Mrs. Sizer left a week ago for Camrose and then was planning to visit in Calgary with relatives on her way to Vancouver, visiting there with her sister, Nina and is expected to be away about two weeks.

Helen Haas' mother who has been spending the past several months with them and a daughter in Edmonton, is now residing in Northview Manor.

Benjamin Harold Fredericks of Edmonton, formerly of Bruce, passed away on Friday at the age of 55 years.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, Rita; two daughters, and one son, Mrs David (Theresa) Collinson of Lamont, Rhonda and Bruce at home; two granddaughters, Mary and Elizabeth; two brothers, Grant and Irvin Fredericks of Bruce; and three sisters, Doris McLeod of Calgary, Lillian Teske and Gladys Derin of Bruce.

Memorial service was held on Tuesday in the Ascension Lutheran Church in Edmonton with Rev. F. Bagio officiating with cremation following.

Don Allan has been a patient in Viking Hospital for several days, coming home early this week. Clare Anderson called in to see him while visiting with Mrs. Frances Hanson in the morning hours.

Road maintenance is town's concern

by Ken Kroetsch

A letter has been sent by the Town of Tofield to Alberta Transportation in regards to who will be responsible for maintenance of the old section of Highway 14, after construction is completed.

In council's regular meeting, concerns were expressed that if the service road became the responsibility of the town, there would not be sufficient funds in the budget to pave it.

Council agreed that an inquiry should be made of Alberta Transportation to see what would be happening to this section of road.

Council felt that if it were turned over to the community, it should be paved before doing so.

Another letter has also been sent to Alberta Transportation requesting it pay for the costs of repair to the main entrance railway crossing because it is a secondary road through the town.

The cost, $7,800, has not been budgeted for by the town.

In other business, council appointed a committee to review 21 applications received for the position of equipment operator for the town.

The applications will be received and prospective applicants will be interviewed. After this is done, the names will go to council for a final decision.

My Mom says I can't play with your kind

Children aren't born racist. They learn it.

Sometimes they learn it from their friends. Their neighbours. Sometimes they even learn it from their families.

Do you encourage racial hatred or display racial prejudice?

If you do, that's racism. It hurts deeply. Sometimes it can do more than hurt.

Often we don't recognize prejudicial attitudes or discriminatory behaviour in ourselves, or in those we love. Perhaps we're too proud. Or too young.

So please be aware of what your children are learning. There's no better time than now to save them from the hurt and evils of racism. For their future. For your family.

For all of us.

Alberta is for all of us

4-H reorganizes

by Lori Brown

The Tofield 4-H Beef Club will hold their re-organizational meeting on Oct. 28th in the Arts and Crafts Room.

Members in the 4-H Beef Club are to be between the ages of 10 and 21 years, this means 10 years old by January 1st of 1984. However, this year a Pee-Wee Club may be formed if enough children under the age of 10 years are interested in joining the club. This will be discussed at the re-organizational meeting.

There are many skills developed and much to be learned in 4-H work. The feeding, fitting and showing of the beef steer is only part of 4-H. Exchange trips, 4-H camps seminars, public speaking, workshops, cattle judging competitions, talent shows and numerous other activities make 4-H real fun.

All interested members and their parents are encouraged to attend the re-organizational meeting on Oct. 28th.

For further information contact club leader, Don Wood, at 662-2213.

Mount For Last Week

The Ministik Ladies club met at the home of Joyce Bowerman for their October meeting.

Roll call was answered with last minute articles for the annual fall bazaar being held on November 4th.

There will be baking and sewing tables as well as surprise packages and a fish pond for the children.

A raffle of two gift certificates is also an item and lunch will be served.

Coffee mugs of the Tofield Hospital were purchased by all ladies present as well as souvenir spoons and lapel buttons.

The club plans to attend the Tofield Hospital Ladies Auxiliary bazaar and tea on November 12th.

The club's Christmas party will be in the Community Hall on December 7th.

Plans are underway for a Christmas entertainment for the community later in December.

Lunch was served by hostesses Joyce Bowerman and Laurie Swabey.

Word has been received of a nasty fall Doreen McLaughlin of Edmonton had recently, fracturing both legs and an arm. She is at present in Glenrose Hospital. Doreen is Bill Roddick's sister, who grew up and went to school in Ministik.

Marie Williams became the bride of Rob Tasser on Sept. 17th. Marie is the only daughter of Keith and Betty Williams.

The ceremony was held at the Westridge Park Lodge in Devon, officiated by Rev. Lizwold.

Michael and JoAnne Young, friends of the young couple were their attendants. The reception and dance followed and were enjoyed by relatives and close family friends.

The bride and groom now reside in the New Sarepta district.

Gladys Roddick of Edmonton is staying at the home of Bill and Vi Roddick while her daughter Doreen McLaughlin is a patient in hospital.

There were some exciting moments at the Bowerman farm on Sunday afternoon when an air balloon from Sherwood Park landed.

The Community League held their October meeting at the hall on Wednesday evening.

Grant Wilson announced he will convene a young people's dance on November 19th.

Convenors of the Hallowe'en dance said tickets are almost all gone.

Prizes are being awarded for best costumes in several categories. The annual meeting of the league is on November 14th.

A demonstrator was present showing a work saving floor cleaner and waxer machine.

October was the wedding month of Linda Tiedemann of Tofield and Dale Umryah of Holden, which took place in St. Mary's Catholic Church, south of Holden. A reception followed in the Holden Community Hall.

Guests from Ministik were Vera John, Beverley, Leanna and Paula Heitman and George and Jean Kleinschroth.

PUB okays increase ... for TransAlta

TransAlta Utilities Corporation reports that the Alberta Public Utilities Board has released a decision on the first phase of the company's rate case for 1983.

The Board approved a revenue requirement for 1983 of $640,440,000 as compared to $650,419,000 requested by TransAlta.

In its decision, the Board made the following findings.

The Public Utilities Board

- is satisfied that Keephills Unit No. 1 is being used in 1983 to serve TransAlta's Alberta customers and that TransAlta has no generating capacity excess to meet its normal system requirements in 1983.
- approved TransAlta's allocation of common costs between Keephills Unit No. 1 and Keephills Unit No. 2. These costs include equipment, land and buildings common to both generating units.
- excluded Slave River site investigation costs of $2,680,000 from current rates and deferred a decision on their recovery to a future time.
- reduced requested working capital and rate base by $2,200,000.
- approved the proposed capital structure for 1983 as submitted by TransAlta.
- approved the cost of debt and preferred shares as submitted by TransAlta.
- approved a cost rate of 15 per cent for 1983 on the common equity financing rate base instead of the 16¼ per cent requested by TransAlta, thus reducing the requested return on common equity by $6,075,000 with a resulting reduction in income taxes.
- approved cash operating expenses as forecast by TransAlta.
- denied a request for tariff levelling as proposed at hearings during the year by an intervenor. Tariff levelling would defer some current operating costs to future years and future customers.

The Board has directed TransAlta to apply for new rates to recover the revenue requirement of $640,440,000 for 1983.

An interim 12 per cent net rate increase effective February 1, 1983 for consumption January 1, 1983 was approved by the Board early this year and is currently in place.

PUT SOME PEP IN YOUR COMMUNITY

Community associations and other non-profit organizations in Alberta can take advantage of a funding program to initiate, or complete projects this winter.

Alberta Manpower's Priority Employment Program (PEP) can help non-profit community organizations create job opportunities through subsidization of wages.

If your organization has a project that will provide full-time employment for at least three months, it may qualify for PEP funding. Financial assistance will cover the minimum wage for each project employee, plus an additional 10% to cover benefit costs.

PEP funding is available from November 1, 1983 to April 30, 1984. Deadline for applications is January 10, 1984.

Funding may be available to your organization if jobs can be provided for Albertans currently unemployed. Project employees must be Alberta residents, at least 16 years of age and legally entitled to work in Canada.

Additional information can be obtained by calling our Special Manpower Programs office — 427-4760 in Edmonton or for those living outside the Edmonton dialing area, call our toll-free PEP line Dial 0, and ask the Operator for Zenith 22078.

[illegible] A 4-H CLUB?

Do you have a special skill like baking, sewing clothes for your family, or doing crafts? Do you have a friend or neighbor who does?

Did you ever think of sharing your skills with a group of youngsters who are enthusiastic and love to do things? Consider 4-H.

4-H doesn't always have to be beef and horses, and it doesn't have to be all year long.

Eight to ten young people from the ages of 10 to 21 years can constitute a 4-H club. There's no fee except for the cost of project materials.

Rod McMillian, 4-H Specialist, and I would like to see different types of 4-h clubs organized. We can help you get started, provide some guidance, and can also provide project books.

How about organizing a Craft Club and include the new quilting project. You'll enjoy it as much as the members!

WINTER FOOD STORAGE

When organizing your produce for winter storage, be sure to keep the following hints in mind:

— don't store apples and carrots together, the carrots will develop a bitter flavor. Apples and potatoes do not store well together either.

— cabbage and turnips are often best stored outside because of their strong odors.

— pumpkins suffer chill damage in storage below 50°F. They should be stored on shelves, preferably not touching.

— vegetables such as carrots lose moisture quickly. They should be stored in perforated plastic bags.

Brownies keep busy

Camping and outdoors are integral parts of Guiding and the Tofield Brownies have been busy trying to spend as much time out-of-doors as possible.

August 23-25 was the 1982-83 year-end camp. Fourteen girls attended the annual event held in Bardo Hall. This year, the girls were studying native lore. Also included was a nature hike through Ceretske's farm. A midnight pyjama fashion show was a highlight for most of the girls.

Seventeen girls accompanied by two leaders and four mothers journeyed to Surprise Lake Camp at Edson on Sept. 23-25 to have a joint camp with the Edson Brownies. Most of the Edson and Tofield Brownies have been corresponding since spring and the trip was made so that the pen pals could meet each other.

Various craft activities were undertaken including grass weaving, soap carving, and mask making. A kind neighbour brought three horses over on Sunday and gave all the girls a ride — a definite hit with everyone. Another exchange trip, with Edson coming here, is planned for later this year.

Deanna Brown, Stacey Horricks, Pamela Lysons, Shawna Ryan and Robin Sundal flew up to Guides in a special ceremony held October 12th. Brownies who have completed the entire Brownie programme receive wings which are worn on the Guide uniform as a remembrance. The five Brownies were assisted on their journey by a "Brownie-drawn tractor" and two "farmers" who whipped the team to hurry them down the road to Guideland.

Most of the Brownies received numerous special interest badges earned over the summer and at the two camps. Badges earned included native lore, bannock maker, explorer, holiday, cook and craft. Congratulations to all.

District Commissioner Peggy Leslie and Deputy Commissioner Brenda Leslie-Monks were on hand to greet the families and perform enrolment ceremonies. Guider Annette Fournel and Guides Charie Fournel and Nicole Powder received their enrolment pins as new members of our Guiding family.

The Guides invited the Brownies and families to join in a campfire — the traditional ending of a Guiding function.

Boundary changes discussed

... inside the county

by Ken Kreetsch

Future boundary changes within the County of Beaver were presented at the last regular meeting of county council.

Presented by Tiz Zaghi of the Planning Department of Municipal Affairs, the proposal would divide the seven divisions equally according to population.

The population, using the 1981 Canada census as a guide for each division, would have an average of 486 people over the age of 18.

To accomplish this, divisions in the eastern part of the county would have to be made larger, while heavier populated divisions in the west would be made smaller.

Division 7, with the majority of the population of the county, would be split into two divisions, with the other divisions divided according to population.

This proposal was requested by councillor John Warner last June. Council received the proposal for information to be considered at a later date.

Concerns were raised by councillors over the large deficit of the Holden Lodge.

With the deficit at the Viking Lodge at $21,390, and the deficit at the Tofield Lodge at $16,210 for last year, councillors expressed concern for the deficit at Holden Lodge of $60,972.

Councillor Gordon Holmes said part of the deficit, $18,000, was a carry-over from last year that the Provincial Government wouldn't cover.

He said that also with only two-thirds of the Lodge full, that this was also a problem. He said that there has been cuts in staff and operational cost to minimize the problem in the future.

Comparing the different Lodges, councillors still said they felt that Holden had a greater deficit than the other two Lodges.

It was recommended that council members on the Beaver Lodge Foundation go back and find a reason for the high deficit. A detailed report on the expenditures and revenues of the Holden Lodge is to be brought back to county council at a later date.

A petition was received by county councillor from residents along Secondary Road 834 to have this road paved from the County of Camrose border to Highway 14.

At present, this section of road is to be paved by the County of Camrose in their division to the boundary of the County of Beaver.

The matter was tabled until further information could be obtained.

Also concerning Secondary Road 834, council was told that construction was almost completed. A committee was formed to inspect the road after it is completed.

A letter of concern over dogs running at large was received by council.

The letter, from Rural Crime Watch, said that dogs were running in packs, with reports of ducks, geese and chickens being killed.

The county at the present time does not have a by-law covering dogs at large. It was proposed that the administration prepare a dog by-law for the next meeting that would read: Dogs in the County of Beaver can't run at large.

The concern of enforcing the new by-law after it is passed was brought up.

Garth Bancroft, Secretary-treasurer, said a qualified dog catcher would have to be hired to patrol the county approximately twice a month. The estimated cost of a dog catcher to the county would be $2,900.

Assessment appeals from a couple of people were dealt with by council. Council's decision concerning appeals was that if they were not made within the 30 days following tax notice, then there was no recourse for appeal.

Gravel tenders for stockpiling of gravel for the county have been accepted.

Raven Construction has been awarded the tender for the Ryley-Tofield area with a tender of $6.24 a tonne. A total of $312,000 for 50,000 tonnes of gravel is to be hauled and crushed.

In the Kinsella area, East County has been awarded the tender to crush gravel in the county pit. The tender price is $1.40 a tonne, a total of $83,120 for 62,380 tonnes of gravel to be crushed.

"Loose Ends"

[illegible]

This is harvest season for many people, but for those of us not involved in farming it's something else — football [illegible]

We watch a lot of football at our house. In flusher times we had season tickets. If not for those, I would still be wondering why anyone would sit watching grown men fall all over one another in an effort to gain possession of a funny-shaped ball. Back then I asked intelligent questions like, "Is a quarterback so-named because he is half as important as a halfback?" and "Are they called tight ends because they wear tight pants?" Since then I've learned a few things [illegible].

It's all very simple. For instance, with the help of a row of large men all hundered down on their front fours, it is the quarterback's job to make passes. If he does his job well, the rest of the team receive them, or run like heck, chase, hit or stomp on the opposing players and do funny little dances in the end zone. They scramble, screen, hook, block and tackle. They sneak, rush, fumble sack and hold. They punt, reverse, drive, touch it down and get offensive. And all without losing their cool (despite the madmen in the stands shouting, "Kill! Kill!"), or their concentration (despite the semi-nude cheerleaders shaking their booties on the sidelines), or getting arrested.

They have good hands, good speed and, as a rule, good legs but absolutely no respect for their bodies. This is the one aspect of professional football [illegible]. After watching them throw themselves around the field in [illegible] hours, I can't help thinking that these men must hate themselves in the morning. But what I really want to know is, do their mothers know what these guys are doing for a living?

Football fans are a unique breed as well. Who else will sit in the stands wearing green garbage bags and chanting "Go-go-gettum-gettum-oo-oo-!" in a torrential downpour? Only true-blue fans will dress up in gorilla suits, wear yellow fright wigs or paint themselves in their team colors when they know someone might see them on national TV. And only football fans will spend a beautiful fall weekend glued to the TV when there is garden produce to bring in, a car that needs washing and friends wondering if they have gone into early hibernation.

For reasons unknown — especially to me — I miss being in the stands. But armchair quarterbacking does have this going for it: I can get as carried away as I like without fear of losing my cool or my concentration, or getting arrested. I just have to remember to cheer on the same team as the other in[illegible].

The Cubs, Scouts and Pathfinders enjoyed a weiner roast hosted by Ledouceurs after the bottle drive on Oct. 8th. The Community League donated $161.20 to the children for the bottle drive.

Besides this they raised $266.90. Sharon Winder and Doreen Ledouceur delivered the many bottles to Camrose. The funds raised will purchase flags and articles the groups need for meetings and parades.

The Pathfinders are helping organize a children's Hallowe'en party at the hall on Oct. 31. Instead of going trick or treating, the children will gather and play games. Prizes for costumes and games will be given. Admission will be a bag of treats that would normally be given out if you were home. Everyone in the community is welcome young and old. Treat bags will be made up for the children and the coffee will be on for the older folks.

Crosswalks set near school

.. in Holden

by Ken Kroetsch

The Village of Holden Council voted unanimously in favor of painting crosswalks on the pavement from the north door of the school across 50 Ave. and from the east side of the [illegible].

[illegible] instrumental in preventing an accident, it would be a feather in council's cap.

The decision came following concerns from the school administration about children running across the street from anywhere they happened to be.

When the new crosswalks are in place, children will be required to use the crosswalks to cross the street.

A solution to an inherited problem of a wrong road course has been proposed.

The problem was inherited by the village when the land was annexed from the county. The present road affects three properties on the west end of 50 Ave.

The Village of Holden will be purchasing the part of property that the road runs on for a price of $1,301, after an agreement was reached between the village and the property owner.

In the case of the other two property owners, the Village is proposing to re-survey the properties to make them more suitable for the residents' use.

Council felt this was the best solution to the problem. It was moved to accept the surveyors suggestion and to advise the landowners of this solution to try and come to an agreement.

Council moved that the progress payment be made to the contractor doing the construction of the sewage lagoon. The engineer for the project advised council that everything was in order to sign the contract and that the progress payment be made.

The total bill to date for the project is $83,391.47.

Water and sewer bills for village residents will no longer be hand delivered in the village.

In the past there have been complaints from residents over hand delivering and it [illegible] of council that it is illegal to [illegible].

In other business, a request from R & H Motors to stay open 24 hours a day and to operate a coffee and sandwich vending machine, was granted by council.

It was pointed out that this contravened the village bylaw. It was agreed by council that the 1966 by-law, concerning business hours in the village, was old and outdated. It was agreed that a new by-law [illegible] area.

The request for a pool table and pinball machines to be set up at R & H Motors was not considered by council at this time.

A request from the Holden Minor Hockey Club to have the hall rent for their dance, reduced or free, was denied by council.

Council felt that if they were to do this for one organization they would have to do it for all. [illegible] expenses that had to be met from this type of function.

If they were using it for a wind-up supper or for an awards banquet, then council felt the situation would be different.

FALL FERTILIZATION AND METHOD OF PLACEMENT

Two common questions have been coming into our office in the past few days:

1. Should I fall fertilize my fields?
2. What method of application should I use?

Many factors affect the answers to these two question. Economic considerations are one of these factors. Many fertilizer dealers have fall discounts on fertilizer, making prices sound quite attractive. However, always consider the time value of your money in evaluating these prices. If you are working with an operating loan, add on approximately one-half a year's interest at 13-14 percent. If you are working off of your own operating capital add on approximately one-half a year's interest at 6-8 percent, or what you could get in a savings account or term deposit. In many cases, the economics lean toward fall fertilization.

If the economics prove to be favorable, what about losses over winter and spring? Losses are usually only considered for nitrogen. Other nutrients have losses that are insignificant unless the soil is being badly eroded. Losses will vary with the type of soil, type of fertilizer and method of placement. The higher losses can occur when a nitrate fertilizer is broadcast in fall on warm soil that is sandy or prone to water logging (flooding) for extended periods of time. This is one extreme. The other extreme would be one of lowest losses. Lower losses occur when nitrogen in the ammonium form or urea form are deep banded into relatively cool soil.

Therefore, for this area, on average, deep banding of most fertilizer materials in fall results in losses that are really not that significant when all the benefits are considered. What are the other benefits?

1. Depending upon the nature of the operation, there is usually more time to do a good job in fall. Sloughs are usually at a minimum, resulting in less "doubling-up" or "missing".
2. Fall fertilization saves soil moisture in the spring. Excessive tillage in spring dries the soil out, losing moisture that is critical for even germination and emergence. This last spring was a prime example.

What has the research shown? Alberta Agriculture's survey of top barley and canola producers showed that top yields were more probable when the fields were fall fertilized. Agronomists from Western Co-op Fertilizers Ltd. conducted many trials indicating that, on average, fall deep banding fertilizer is 96 per cent as effective as spring deep banded and under the same conditions, fall broadcast and incorporated fertilizer was only 85 per cent as effective as spring deep banded.

The alternatives are certainly numerous. Each alternative must be carefully evaluated and according to each farmer's situation and operation. If you would like more information, please give us a call.

APPENDIX "A"

School and School Bus Operations During Storms

1 Schools in the County of Beaver will operate on all regular school days. Should school buses be cancelled due to hazardous road conditions, all pupils will be excused from attendance. Teachers will be expected to attend and will be utilizing this time for preparation purposes.

2 Should an overnight storm cause blocked roads or the serious danger of blocked roads, school bus runs will be cancelled. Radio station CFCW (Camrose) will broadcast messages, starting at 6:30 a.m., informing parents of the cancellation.

3. Should it be necessary to send pupils home by school bus at some time during the school day because of stormy conditions, these procedures will be followed:

1) The Principal of the school has authority to send school buses home at any time during the school day

2) Radio station CFCW will broadcast messages that rural pupils are enroute home.

3) Parents, school bus drivers and others who are informed on road conditions are asked to telephone the Principal, the County Councillor or the County Office at Ryley should they suspect that stormy conditions will block roads

4 Road and weather conditions vary considerably throughout the County. For this reason, each school will operate independently under this procedure. It is possible that morning runs may be cancelled at some schools and not at others. Similarly, buses may be routed home during the school day at some schools and not at others

5. Parents are reminded that it is their right to decide whether or not their children will get on the bus in the morning should conditions be stormy or hazardous

6. Please be certain that all pupils are dressed adequately warm each day. A school bus can become stranded on any given day due to road conditions or mechanical breakdown

Eight seek crown

... as rodeo queen

Eight young ladies will be seeking the title of '83 Lakeland Showdown Rodeo Queen.

The competition is being held in conjunction with the '83 Lakeland Showdown rodeo which opens in Camrose on Oct. 28th.

The candidates will be in Camrose on Oct. 28th and will visit the downtown business community that day before appearing in a fashion show in the Duggan Mall that evening.

The girls will compete in horsemanship competitions on the Friday morning before guests at a brunch in the golf clubhouse at noon.

The 1983 queen will be crowned during special ceremonies which are to be held during the intermission of the Saturday evening performance. Both the horsemanship competition (new Fairgrounds, 10 a.m.) and the brunch (noon) are open to the public.

Horsemanship judges are Ordean Broen, Betty Lynn Lattersall and Jim Henry with other competitions being judged by Greg Stewart, Theresa Bohn, Diane Gleeson, Pat Twomey, Pete Hicks and Dale Bradley.

Gifts for the 1983 queen have been received from a number of Camrose businesses and will be displayed in the Duggan Mall from Monday through Friday.

Each of the eight candidates has already been crowned as a Lakeland queen and it is because of that honour that each are able to compete in Camrose.

Seeking the crown are Tara Robinson of Redwater; Lois Hewitt of Boyle; Carrie Woloshyn of Vermilion; Kathy Carter of Lamont; Deborah Lynn Stell of Killam; Cyndie Rabby of Tofield; Shelley Herner of St. Paul; and Anita Dressler of Clyde.

Homecoming '84 planned in Holden

A meeting of the Holden Homecoming '84 was held in the Holden Complex on Thursday.

The meeting was chaired by Christine McKay.

Reports were heard from three committees: Promotion and publicity reported they are ready to start their newspaper ads within the next three weeks. They also presented the committee with a budget which has been set at $1,000 for advertising and mailings.

A mini-program was presented by the planning committee starting with registration on the Friday night and continuing the afternoon. A barbeque supper, two dances, church services and a pancake breakfast are but a few of the activities planned.

It was reported that to date only $800 has been pledged by local organizations and all in attendance were asked to bring to the attention of the organization they represented the fact that any donation would be greatly appreciated.

The committee was also checking into souvenirs which could be sold during the homecoming festivities.

The committee was in full agreement that in order to make Homecoming '84 a success, the whole community must be involved, so anyone wishing to lend a hand may do so by attending the next meeting.

Firemen wanted . . . in Ryley

by Ken Kroetsch

The Ryley Fire Department is undertaking a recruitment drive for volunteer firemen for the Village of Ryley, said training officer, Ken Reid.

Reid said the need for firemen in the Ryley Fire Department came after the number of active firemen in the village has dwindled to only five active members. He said there has been five members who recently moved out of town.

Volunteers who may wish to join the fire department would be responsible to respond to fires within Ryley as well as in the County of Beaver.

Volunteers are required to train once a week, Wednesday evenings, for approximately three hours, said Reid.

Volunteers will be trained in basic fire fighting skills and rescue procedures, as well as some first-aid training.

With the recent renovation of the fire hall there is ample room in the training area for as many people as can show up.

"If 40 people show up we'll train them," said Reid.

The program does not just include Ryley residents, but also residents for the area wishing to join. Women too, can come out and join the volunteer fire department, said Reid.

There is a possibility of programs given in vehicle rescue, similar to the one presently underway in Tofield, and training at the Training School in Vermilion if people are interested.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer fireman can contact either Ken Reid, 663-3094, Terry Magneson, 663-3972, or the Village Office, 663-3883.

Teachers plan vote . . . on salary offer

by Ken Kroetsch

Tomorrow (Thursday) the County of Beaver teachers, as part of the Elk Island Teachers Association will be voting on the board's proposal of a 1% per cent increase on the salary grid.

Within one week, if the bid is rejected by the teachers, the teachers will be holding a strike vote, said Winston Nettleton, bargaining agent for the ATA.

But, because another meeting has been scheduled for Nov 7, no strike action will be taken until after the agents have met at the bargaining table.

"We will decide at that time whether or not to strike or whether we will continue with further meetings," said Nettleton.

Nettleton said they didn't want to put pressure on the school boards until after they had met and the new trustees have had a chance to reorganize themselves.

Ken Kosak, bargaining agent for the ASTA, said it is "reasonable to expect it (the 1½ per cent increase) will be rejected."

Kosak said the school board's offer of 1½ per cent on the salary grid works out to 1.58 per cent overall increase with the other benefits added in.

The teachers are asking for an increase in salary to be within $80 of the provincial average, an increase of 5½ per cent on the salary grid, said Nettleton.

The teachers have been without a contract since Dec. 31, 1982.

The Counties of Beaver, Minburn, Lamont and Flagstaff and the School Divisions of Provost and Wainwright are part of the Elk Island Teacher's Association.

The voters vote

Elections are just like horse races, and there's no predicting the way things will turn out.

Many candidates in last week's elections across the provinces, and especially in our own region, found that out, some, unfortunately, the hard way.

One thing that is well known is the way voter support tends to take massive swings one way or the other, but it's sometimes hard to explain or to understand why it takes such massive swings away from people who have really served well, who have merited the esteem and the approbation of the public, and indeed, its continued support.

This is not to suggest that all candidates who were turned down in their bid for re-election were unfairly treated, far from it. But it nevertheless is hard to understand at least in some cases.

One observation seems to stand out, that being that candidates most sympathetic to the concept of doing business in camera in the main seemed not to gain as general support from voters as those who voiced the need for council . . . or school . . . business to be more to be out in the open. Time will tell.

The most reassuring thing about the whole operation is the participation of the people. Many, many wonderful people offered their capabilities, their experience, their integrity and their judgment in the future guidance of public affairs at one level or another. And the public, in rewardingly large numbers, turned out to express their own feelings, to give their endorsement, and to help perpetuate the democratic way of life we all take so much for granted, and which we should prize so highly when you look at situations such as Lebanon, Afghanistan, Iran, Grenada, San Salvador, Guatemala, and on and on, and on.

Who eats Crow?

Conservative members of Parliament have been getting bad press in recent days for their stubborn opposition to passage of the newly redrafted bill replacing the historic Crows Nest Pass Act. Television reporters, radio reporters, newspaper and magazine writers, mostly with Central Ontario backgrounds, have displayed a monumental lack of knowledge over the principles involved in the struggle. Instead, they write or broadcast, almost on the hour, in the manner of a sportswriter carrying box scores on the number of goals scored, the number of attempts on goal, the fumbles, lossess, recoveries, penalties, and other game functions.

Notwithstanding their preeminence in the field of projecting the news, from Barbara Frum and Gordon MacLean to Knowlton Nash and on down, they seem all to display a monumental ignorance of what the debate is really all about, and instead to concentrate on the gamesmanship, the number of yards made, the passes completed, or the points scored by either side.

Not understood, it seems, is the pre-eminent importance to the future lives of western agriculturists of the outcome of the amendments to the Crow bill. Conservatives, such as Arnold Malone and Don Mazankowski, have been fighting a continuing battle, not to utterly obstruct the Bill, but to persuade the Liberal government not to pass it heedlessly simply for the sake of passing it, but to include in it some changes which will be of lasting benefit to the West. Indeed, to the whole country. In exchange for the guarantees, however out-of-date, implicit in the Crow.

Far more time has been devoted to Royal Commissions, to study of the Royal Commissions, and to study of the study, on other subjects than has been spent on the Crow's Nest Pass bill. Can anyone consider it wise, prudent, or intelligent, to force through, in only a few days, a Bill with ramifications far more important, far more far-reaching, on the national, not just Western, economy?

Surely, only uninformed observers could brand (western) opposition members as obstructionist. Surely the Bill is being rushed through Parliament without pointing out to the public its deeper ramifications.

Patricia Young Says . . . . .

One of the most frequent complaints of parents is that their children do not do as they are told. When observed, this invariably means doing what they are told, when they are told and how they are told! In effect, all too many parents presume that their parental rights add up to a right to the time, dignity, sensitivity and responses of their offspring. To be sure, some parental rights are derived by way of legal ages and financial responsibilities. This does not automatically mean the right of arbitrary dictatorship — only by the rights of love and caring, of discipline that does not erode dignity.

Unfortunately, all too many parents erode their own genuine authority by turning it into a confrontation of wills. Insecure in their authority, they waiver between parental arrogance and bribery. Far better that adults examine their relationships with other adults. If a committee plans a project and delegates jobs, the Chairman is likely to run into trouble if she spends the next seven days checking up on how, when and where the task was carried out. In effect, we fail to give our children credit for even the intelligence demanded for the task itself. In demanding blind, instant obedience, we reduce the child or young adult to the mere role of robot or servant. Better by far that we delegate with reason, then wait for the task to be completed — not necessarily in our own time or way. The problem must be tackled separately, but with equal concern for the dignity of the individual.

To be sure, there are going to be instances of childish revolt and irrelevance. A heavy-handed wielding of parental authority might effect resentful obedience — but not cooperation. Far better that both participants, recognize the human worth of the other and cooperate with respect, dignity and tolerance. Needless to say, the onus of establishing this relationship rests predominantly in the hands of the adult — who teaches by way of example

Pensions our responsibility not the States

by Donald A. Bamford in Small Business

Pensions are not exactly a hot subject on the cocktail circuit but the approaching reassessment of Canada's entire pension system will affect all our lives in a fundamental way. The pension system is a touchstone that forces us to define ourselves as a nation. Also, the vast sums of money accumulated in pension funds have a significant influence on our capital markets, interest rates, savings patterns — in short, on our prospects for economic growth.

The assertion that we cannot let our senior citizens suffer financially has unanimous support in this country. Unfortunately, this is then given as the reason for a huge increase in state pensions so that everyone can be "guaranteed dignity" in his old age. However, it's one thing to provide a safety net for genuine hard-luck cases or people who've been deprived, through no fault of their own, of the opportunity to provide for their old age. It's quite another thing to construct a pension system that encourages people who can look after themselves to delegate to the state the responsibility for making their golden years comfortable.

For many owner/managers, retirement holds no promise of a dramatic change in lifestyle. Some will "retire" because they've made a bundle and don't need any more income but all will keep busy. They're the lucky ones. Many employees of large organizations are discarded at 65, cut off from the action and put in a holding pattern (how much mediocre golf can you play?) until their bodies degenerate enough to put them in old age homes. Are bigger state pensions for these people a reward or the bribe for the kiss of death?

A lot depends on the degree to which the pensions received by these people are a product of their own ingenuity or industry. The state pension system is a wonderful idea but without a significant admixture of personal savings, pensioners will slip into a lackluster routine, and workers will lose a crucial incentive to inject their own dynamism into the economy that will finance their security in retirement.

Our severely underfunded state pensions also force each generation to rely on its children to pay for its pensions. Unlike private plans which are required by law to build up adequate funds to pay for the promised pensions (thereby contributing vast sums to the personal savings that, in turn, finance the capital spending needed to expand our economy), state plans don't do anything for savings. In fact, the future obligations of the Canada/Quebec Pension Plan now stand at an astonishing $230 billion — or almost tim-Birds of the total value of all personal savings in the country. Since pensions are so important a contributor to savings, the expansion of the state plan would merely worsen an already substantial drain on personal savings.

It's a drain we cannot afford. For decades we have had to draw on foreign sources for about one-quarter of our capital needs. The accumulated debts are now running at $1 billion a month in net outflow of interest and dividend payments. The principal tool that can help us meet our voracious demand for capital is the pension system, and the fastest growing part of that system is the Registered Retirement Savings Plan — which the federal government proposes to scrap.

RRSPs are also the part of the system that suits the needs of small business best because they impose no rigid requirements on when and how contributions should be made. They also permit withdrawals in situations of dire necessity or unique opportunity — extend at an astonishing $230 billion — or almost tim-Birds of the total value of all personal savings in the country. Since pensions are so important a contributor to savings, the expansion of the state plan

The conclusion is clear. Our present system is working well. By all means take a good look at it but don't change it.

Change your clock

An extra hour of sleep!

That's what everyone can have this coming weekend.

Daylight Saving Time will come to an end as we revert back to Mountain Standard Time.

The switch back to MST actually occurs during the wee hours of Sunday morning.

However, most people should proceed to turn back their clocks by one hour when they retire on Saturday night.

The extra hour of sleep will make up for the hour that was lost in the spring when DST started.

TransAlta seeks rate hike

TransAlta Utilities Corporation has filed an application for an interim rate increase with the Alberta Public Utilities Board. (PUB).

The application, if approved, will result in an average net increase of approximately six per cent, effective November 1, 1983 for consumption from October 1, 1983.

The net increase is what the customer will pay once the Alberta Income Tax Rebate has been deducted. The net bill of an average residential customer in TransAlta's service area would increase by 3.6 per cent or about $1.35 a month.

In its application to the PUB, the company filed for a 14 per cent interim rate increase together with a revenue rider or two-month temporary charge of 4.5 per cent. However, a larger income tax rebate totally offsets the temporary charge and reduces the 14 per cent to approximately six per cent net.

The increase is required by TransAlta in an attempt to recover its allowed revenue requirement for 1983, as recently determined by the PUB. In early January 1983, TransAlta had filed and received approval for an interim net rate increase of 12 per cent effective January 1 to recover part of the revenue requirement which the company estimated it needed for 1983. At that time the company indicated a further, similar-sized rate increase would be required mid-year. TransAlta postponed applying for that second increase until the PUB made its final decision on the company's revenue requirement, announced September 30. TransAlta's current application is in accordance with PUB directives that new rates be filed by October 17.

County uses computer

by Len Kroetsch

Effective Oct. 1, all general ledger, accounts payable and payroll are being done through the new computer system recently purchased by the County of Beaver, said Ron Pepper, assistant secretary-treasurer.

The new system, a 9820 NCR computer, will replace the old system which had become outdated and hard to find parts for. It was also getting difficult to meet payroll deadlines with the old system, said Pepper.

The new system is designed to meet the needs of the County for a period of 15 years, before it too becomes outdated.

The computer was purchased in August, 1983 for the approximate cost of $53,000, with other related costs for software to be added as the system is expanded.

Computer programs are being implemented for use of all of the municipal and school needs in the County of Beaver in regards to accounts payable, taxes and payroll.

In the near future, the total basic system to be completed in early 1984, the fixed assets ledger will be added.

Other programs under consideration for the future include a census program so an accurate figure can be reached for the number of people in any age group within the County of Beaver, and a students information record system which would be used for such things as class scheduling, progress reporting, attendance, bus routing as well as work to keep up to date on Alberta Education Grant information.

The new system has 256K memory with an 81E hard disc drive for storage. There are three terminals off of the main computer. The new system can be added on, to a maximum of 512K, said Pepper.

The system also has a power back-up system so the system doesn't crash when there is either fluctuations in the power or power outage.

There is also a security system installed so that only certain people, with the use of security passwords, will have access to certain files.

The new system, said Pepper, will help speed things up and enable the staff to do other work.

Phone 663-3660
Dist. Agriculturist

BARBARA BENNETT

This spring our office of Alberta Agriculture and the Agricultural Service Board of the County of Beaver No. 9 jointly coordinated on-farm demonstrations with farmers in the County. The purpose of the program was to initiate and encourage the use of various agricultural technicques and methods that may be of benefit to the area.

The demonstrations were: seeding fall rye in the spring for forage purposes, liming acid soils and demonstrating the Alberta Certified Procedditioned Feeder Program. Interested farmers were asked to apply and cooperators were selected.

This program was not intialed as an annual event. The fall rye and liming demonstrations will be on-going for the next few years. The decision to develop new demonstrations in years to come will depend on circumstances at that time.

Today's article will give a run-down of the Liming Acid Soils project. Watch for the reports of the other demonstrations in future columns.

The land which was treated in this demonstration is Mr. Tom Mattinson's, four miles south of Viking on Highway 36 (NE 3-47-13-W4). A sign will be posted in the field this fall diagraming the plots and describing the treatments. Drop by and take a look when you get a chance.

Soil tests of the field were taken this summer and the plots were staked. The lab analysis of the soil provided the following information.

— The nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium and sulphur were normal for a summerfallow piece cropped the previous year. Fertilizer would be required for a crop.

— Samples were taken at various depths. As expected, the 0-6 inch depth of the most representative areas of the field averaged a pH of 5.6. The 6-12 inch depth averaged a pH of 6, the 12-24 inch depth averaged pH of 6.9. Leaching of nutrients to lower depths can contribute to the acidity of the topsoil.

— The soil salinity is measured by conductivity, sulphates and sodium. The conductivity and sulphate measurements were negligible. This indicated the soil did not have the familiar white saline problem which restricts crop growth in some areas of our county.

The sodium content, however, was medium to high in the 6-24 inch depths. Sodium in high concentrates can indicate a structure problem in the soil. The "hard-pan", as we know it, restricts water percolation through the soil and can interfere with root growth. This particular soil did not have the severe solonetzic structure, but an intermediate stage in its development known as a solod.

— The organic matter of the piece was low, and no free lime was present in the upper depths.

These results led to a further development in the demonstration. Soils with a pH as low as 5.6 have been shown to respond to an application of lime. The pH is brought up to between 6 and 6.5 at which most crops grow readily. The sodium content, however, indicated a structure problem as well. Therefore the technique of ripping was included in the demonstration. A heavy duty subsoiler was used to rip the compacted soil beneath the surface without actually plowing and mixing the soil. Breaking this layer should allow better water and root infiltration.

The treatments were as follows: approximately two acres were left untreated on either side of the test strips. Two strips, each 2.5 acres in size, were treated with lime on August 23, 1983. The rate was approximately 3 tonnes/acre to raise the pH to 6.5.

On September 22, 1983 one of the limed strips and another 2.5 acre strip were ripped to a depth of 17-20 inches. This will provide a limed treatment, limed and ripped, and a ripped treatment.

Data on soil pH and crop yield will be collected over the next four years. A change in pH is not usually seen until the second year after the treatment, in this case, 1985. Any information collected will be available.

If you have questions about the project or would like more information on acid and solonetzic soils, please call.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

John and Mary Greidler were honored on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary at a banquet and dance held in the Hay Lakes Recreation Center on Oct. 8. Their two sons Marvin of Hay Lakes, Leslie of Strathmore; three daughters, Bernice Leicht of Hay Lakes, Dorothy Branson of Edmonton and Gerty Combs of Surrey, B.C., all the grandchildren and their great-granddaughter were present for the occasion.

Seated at the head table with the honored couple was the original bridesmaid, Winnie Mohr. Also at the head table were Julia and John Soucek of Calgary (John's sister) and Rev. Pfohl and his wife Jean.

Following the banquet, a short program was held with Les Greidler as emcee. Ron Rosychuk brought greetings on behalf of the Village and presented John with an engraved brass gavel. John has retired from Village Council following eleven years of service to the public, the last nine years serving as mayor. M.L.A. Gordon Stromberg brought greetings on behalf of the province. Rev. Roellchen-Pfohl also spoke briefly. Lynn Leicht and Stacey Combs, granddaughters of the honored couple, recited a suitable poem. Dorothy Branson spoke on behalf of the family and proposed a toast to their parents. Both Mary and John responded graciously.

Scrolls of congratulations were received from prime Minister Pierre Trudeau; Premier Peter Lougheed; Governor General Ed Schryer; M.P. Stan Schellenberger; M.L.A. Gordon Stromberg; Lt. Governor of Alberta Frank Lynch-Staunton.

Following the program a dance was held with approximately 200 guests in attendance.

Shihinski resigns

by Ian Knudsen

A by-election is required in the Village of Holden after the resignation of councillor Nick Shihinski, which was tendered Friday.

Nick Shihinsku

Shihinski said in an interview he felt he couldn't give his best to the council and his supporters therefore he had tendered his resignation.

A special meeting of council was called on Monday evening to deal with Shihinski's resignation.

Nomination day has been set for Nov. 15 with the by-election set for Dec. 13.

The Department of Utilities and Environment, assigned to Shihinski, will be taken over by councillor Dennis Dunlist until after the by-election.

Since Shihinski is to serve on the Hospital Board until 1986, by an order of council by the Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta, council has made a motion to have Shihinski represent the Village of Holden until that time.

Shihinski will be requested to report back to council on a regular basis on the Hospital Board's activities.

Service to a tea

Approximately 100 people attended the annual Tea and Bazaar at the Tofield Lodge last Friday. There was for sale a number of quilts and craft items, as well as popcorn. There were two door prizes given out, one to Harold Shultz and one to Eric Rempel. For the children, as well as adults who felt young, there was the fish pond.

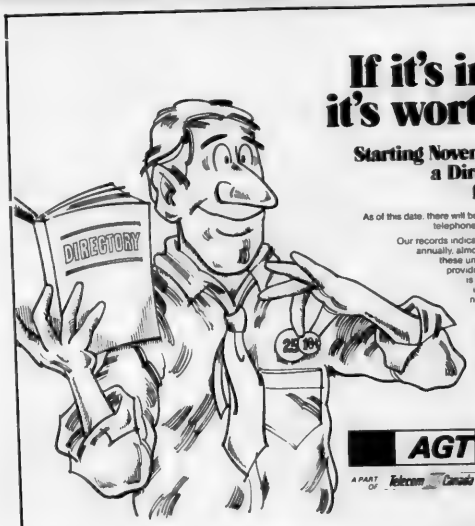
If it's in the book, it's worth the look.



Starting November 1, 1983 there will be a Directory Assistance charge for numbers in the book.

As of this date, there will be a 35¢ charge on all calls to 411 or 1 + 411 when the telephone number requested is in your telephone directory.*

Our records indicate that of the more than 25 million calls we receive annually, almost 65% are for numbers already listed. By reducing these unnecessary calls we hope to offset the rising cost of providing local Directory Assistance service and ensure it is available promptly — when really needed. Naturally if the number is new or the book listing is incorrect no charge will be applied. Nor will there be a charge for requesting AGT listings.

Because we recognize that in some instances Directory Assistance is an essential service, some calls will be automatically exempt from the 35¢ charge. These are calls from coin telephones, mobile phones, hotels-motels, registered federal and provincial hospitals and emergency calls.

The residence phones of handicapped and disabled individuals are also eligible for exemption. Application for this exemption can be made by filling out and returning the form provided with your billing statement.

If you require additional information please direct inquiries to your local AGT Business Office.

*AGT Directory Assistance charging circumstances do not apply to edmonton telephones customers in AGT territory.

The Environmental Council of Alberta is holding a series of public hearings throughout the province.

The hearing in Camrose will be held in the Camrose Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion one week from Thursday, on Nov. 3rd.

The session will commence at 9:30 a.m., resume again at 1:30 p.m. and there is an evening session which is slated to begin at 7:30 p.m.

The panel holding the hearings is to bring in recommendations on maintaining and expanding the agricultural land base in the province and will be presenting those recommendations to the Provincial Government.

The first public hearing was held in Calgary on Oct. 12th and following sessions in twelve other centres (including Camrose) will wind-up with a three-day session in Edmonton early in December.

Anyone may attend the public hearing and express their views, either by way of a written submission or, orally.

Drying fruits, vegetables

The preservation of food by drying has shown a considerable increase over the last decade, according to Cathy Sinnott, Alberta Agriculture's regional food and nutrition specialist for the northern part of the province.

She says fruit, vegetables, herbs and seeds can all be dried in a conventional oven, a convection oven or in the wide variety of food dehydrators that are on the market today. Sun drying is not recommended for most parts of Alberta because there are usually not enough consecutive hot, dry days to do a successful job of drying.

Ms. Sinnott suggests that anyone who has never dried food before start out by using a conventional oven. And she points out that an oven thermometer is essential when using a conventional oven because the temperature must be kept as close to 60°C (140°F) as possible. She also says that the oven door must be left ajar to allow the moist air to escape, and that a fan placed on a counter near the oven door will speed up the movement of moist air away from the products being dried.

Flat wicker baskets, wooden slats and stainless steel mesh can all be used as drying trays. While in the oven they should be rotated and turned frequently to facilitate even drying. Ms. Sinnott emphasizes that the successful drying of any type of food depends upon the ability of the air to circulate around the items.

She points out that the speed with which food dries will depend upon the air temperature and the relative humidity, the speed with which the air circulates around the items that are being dried and the speed with which the moisture in the products is drawn to the surface and evaporates.

Because so many factors are involved, it is impossible to specify the time required to dry a specific type of food. "Each type must be tested and its degree of dryness evaluated," says Ms. Sinnott.

"Properly dried fruits, for example, are usually leathery or 'suede-like'. This means that it should be impossible to squeeze any moisture out of the fruit and that a handful of pieces will not stick together when squeezed."

Further information on drying fruit and vegetables is contained in a leaflet entitled "Drying Fruits and Vegetables" (Homedex 1157) which can be obtained from district home economists or by writing to the Publication Office, Alberta Agriculture, 7000-113 Street, Edmonton, Alberta. T6H 5T6.

Students learn about rockets

by Ken Kroetsch

"Clear the launch area!"

"Tracking teams and recovery teams are in position, prepare for the countdown."

"5 — 4 — 3 — 2 — 1 — Blastoff!"

This isn't a U.S. Government rocket launch. It isn't even a Canadian Government rocket launch.

What it is, is the Holden Grade Seven science option class in rocketry, taught by Oleh Shykora, principal of Holden School.

Students are taught to build the rockets, and even the rocket launchers and then are shown the safe and proper way to use them.

"We are always trying to emphasize safety," said Shykora. Rockets are a safe hobby if done correctly, but can be dangerous if done incorrectly, said Shykora.

The objective of the course is to teach the students about the history of flight and rocketry, to understand the principles of rocketry, the parts of a rocket, how to follow safety procedures, how to build and launch a rocket and to learn about rocket competitions and possible rocket hobbies and clubs.

The proposal to teach the course came from Shykora's own interest in rocketry. He said he had the option of teaching anything for the Grade Seven option, so he made the course specific, developing a course that would be interesting and informative to the students.

As part of the training for the young rocketeers, Shykora assigns the students to various positions when the rockets are fired.

There is a safety officer and two assistants who are in charge of the launch area to make sure everything is done in a safe manner.

There are four people assigned to fire their rockets, which during the course everyone gets a chance to build one. Each of these rockets fired has a two-man tracking team and a two-man recovery team. Each student gets a chance to take part in each of these positions.

"There are kids that are so involved they even come in to work at noon hour," said Shykora.

Shykora said that while the course appeals to the students it isn't all play.

"There is lecturing and study on trajectories as well as simple wiring taught." Shykora said there is also tests throughout the course.

There is also oral reports, book reports and a chart that have to be completed for the course.

The final result Shykora said he would like to see is students to develop this into a hobby with an older brother or even their fathers.

Because there is a danger when using the rockets it is advised that students get their older brothers or fathers to help them.

Students like Jason Henderson and Andre Therriault plan to go on from the course to develop their hobby with their fathers. Jason Henderson said he would like to fly in his own rocket some day.

Diane Motkosky said she has learned about the various aspects of rockets, proving that even girls can enjoy this type of activity.

Motkosky said that while she found the course interesting she didn't think she would be developing it into a hobby.

County league changes

Back to the drawing board.

The County Senior Hockey League can't seem to stay the same from one week to the next.

More changes!

The league began its 1982/83 operation with six teams — Bashaw, Bawlf, Kingman, New Norway, Round Hill and Tofield.

Because of a player shortage, New Norway was unable to play its final few games in the regular schedule and it was obvious this spring that the team would not be back.

Bawlf decided to fold, leaving a four-team loop.

Then, after the league was organized and a schedule drafted, Bashaw withdrew because of a lack of players.

For a few hours, Edmonton Sport Chek was in when the former Bawlf players decided they wanted to play and organized a team that would operate out of Camrose.

Last week, Round Hill decided to pull out and were immediately replaced by a second team out of Tofield who will operate under the name County All Stars.

A new schedule has been drafted and is expected to receive approval at a special meeting of the league executive which is scheduled for this evening (Tuesday).

According to a spokesman, Round Hill will have a team during the coming winter but, will confine themselves to exhibition contests and playing in oldtimer hockey.

PUT PEP TO WORK FOR YOUR BUSINESS

If you have a business or farm operation in Alberta, you can help tackle unemployment this winter.

Alberta Manpower's Priority Employment Program (PEP) is designed to assist Alberta's private sector in creating jobs and training opportunities for new and existing employees through subsidization of wages.

Last year, about 3,000 employers created opportunities for more than 11,000 Albertans through PEP. This year's PEP subsidies are available from November 1, 1983 to April 30, 1984.

Employees eligible for PEP wage subsidies must be Alberta residents, at least 16 years of age, legally entitled to work in Canada and cannot be an immediate family member of the employer or supervisor.

Under PEP's Business and Farm Support element, the new job must be in addition to the regular number of full-time positions and cannot affect the hours or period of work of existing employees. Subsidies for jobs which provide work for a minimum 32 hours per week, and continuous employment for at least three months, will be on an equal-shared basis (50%) up to a maximum of $2.50 per hour.

Under PEP's Industrial Training element, financial support is available for
• on-the-job training of existing staff.
• apprenticeship work experience completion.
• hiring post-secondary graduates on research and development projects.

Employers will be reimbursed on an equal-shared basis (50%) up to a maximum of $250 per week. Some other related costs for each of these programs may also be recovered.

Brochures and application forms for PEP funding can be obtained from Alberta Manpower's Employment Development Offices in Calgary, Edmonton, Grande Prairie, Lethbridge, Red Deer and St. Paul.

Deadline for applications is January 10, 1984.

Additional information can be obtained by calling our Special Manpower Programs office – 427-4740 in Edmonton, or for those living outside the Edmonton dialing area, call our toll-free PEP line:

Dial 0, and ask the Operator for Zenith 22078.

HALLOWE'EN HINTS

Bright-eyed pumpkins, hobgoblins and ghosts, these all spell Hallowe'en! To make this a fun and safe day, here are a few hints.

When choosing your child's costume, keep in mind the following points:

– light and brightly colored outer garments are easier for car drivers to see.

– face masks should fit well, and not interfere with your child's vision or breathing; make the eye holes large.

– use homemade grease paint as an alternative to masks; it's much safer, and not as expensive. Here's an easy recipe. Blend, 15 ml white shortening, 25 ml cornstarch and 5 ml white flour. Form a smooth paste and add 3-4 drops of glycerine for a creamy consistency. To achieve eerie effects, use food coloring. Apply the mask with a soft paint brush, avoiding the eyes. The mask will wash off nicely using soap and water.

This year, try serving nutritious Hallowe'en treats. Apples or other fresh fruits are obvious choices. Other suggestions are individual packages of crackers and cheese, oatmeal or raisin cookies, or granola bars. All offer taste and food value to the young trick or treater.

Don't throw away your pumpkin seeds when carving your Jack-O-Lantern. Try roasting them! Wash seeds, removing the pulp. Allow to dry at room temperature overnight. Combine: 250 ml pumpkin seeds, 7 ml oil, 2 ml Worchestershire sauce, and 1 ml onion salt. Spread on a baking sheet and bake at 160°C (320°F) until seeds are golden brown and crunchy (about 1¼ hours). Stir occasionally. This recipe is also suitable for squash seeds.

The Jack-O-Lantern you create can be eaten too. Boil, steam or bake the pumpkin for use in your favorite recipe. If you want some pumpkin recipes, give me a call or drop by the office. Enjoy Hallowe'en this year!

BETWEEN THE COVERS

Want to try something just a little different? "Juggling for the Complete Klutz" may be just that, and it even comes complete with a set of small juggling beanbags for you to practice with.

On the young people's display shelf this week, look for a number of the exciting Choose Your Own Adventure books, numbers 20 to 24. A highly-acclaimed novel for young adults, by an Alberta author Jan Truss, is entitled "Jasmin". It is the story of a Grade Six girl in southern Alberta, who runs away to live in the wilderness to escape all the troubles and failures of her life.

On the adult shelf, a new book about the ability of human beings to survive against terrible odds, is called "Beyond Endurance", by Glin Bennet. A detailed study of stress situations it discusses how humans manage to cope or not.

"Hollywood In a Suitcase" by Sammy Davis Jr. is a continuation of his autobiography, and includes memoirs of his experiences with many other Hollywood personalities.

The librarian will be away for three days this week, at an Alberta Culture Library Services Workshop in Edmonton. Mrs. Joan Bell will be working in the library, as well as other volunteers, to maintain the regular library hours.

The library hours are: Tuesday 1-5; Thursday 3-5 and 6-8; Friday and Saturday 10-12 and 1-5.

Test results released

... from achievement program

Education Minister David King has released the results of the Grade 3 Science, Grade 6 Mathematics, and Grade 9 Social Studies Achievement Test, administered earlier this year as part of Alberta Education's Achievement Testing Program.

For the Grade 3 Science test, the provincial average score was 78 per cent for knowledge and application of scientific process skills and subject matter.

Students scored above the average in identifying and classifying objects, but below the average when asked to make predictions based on past experience. The knowledge level of students about the scientific process skills was higher than predicted, but in other areas of the cirriculum the knowledge level was as expected.

For the Grade 6 Mathematics test, the provincial average score was 61 per cent, excluding the section on basic facts. The average scores for the basic facts section were as follows: addition — 94 per cent; subtraction — 91 per cent; multiplication — 91 per cent; division — 86 per cent, and mixed operations — 88 per cent. Overall, student performance in mathematics is considered to be satisfactory.

The provincial average score in the Grade 9 Social Studies test was 58 per cent. Students achieved an average of 61 per cent on the multiple choice section. This section tested students' knowledge about the Industrial Revolution, economic systems, and the impact of technology on industry in Canada. It also tested students' ability to apply inquiry skills. On the written response section of the test, students achieved an average of 55 per cent. This section required students to write about an issue related to industry and technological change. Overall, student achievement was judged to be at an acceptable level.

The achievement testing program is designed to provide extensive and reliable indications of student achievement across the province by regularly testing students in Grades 3, 6 and 9 on the core subjects of mathematics, science, social studies, and language arts. The testing is done on a cyclical basis.

The series of tests was administered on June 14, 1983. Approximately 34,000 Grade 3 students wrote the science test and approximately 25,000 Grade 6 students wrote the mathematics test. Nearly 34,000 Grade 9 students wrote the social studies test.

Results for the individual school jurisdictions are being distributed to school boards by the Student Evaluation Branch.

Teachers reject offer

by Ken Brownlee

Ninety per cent of the Elk Island teachers voted not to accept the 1½ per cent increase offered at the bargaining table, said Winston Nettleton, teachers bargaining agent.

The teachers were to have met yesterday to take a strike vote but, because of the early publishing date of The Mercury, this information will not be in the paper until next week.

Just because the teachers will be taking a strike vote does not mean they will be going on strike, said Nettleton.

Nettleton said another meeting has been scheduled for Monday for further negotiations to give the newly formed Elk Island Regional School Authorities Association a chance to meet at the bargaining table.

The decision as to whether or not the teachers will strike, or whether they will continue to negotiate, will be made after that meeting.

The teachers are looking for a 5 per cent increase, to bring them within $50 of the provincial average of other teachers. The board to date has offered a 1½ per cent increase.

The teachers have been without a contract since Dec. 31, 1982.

The Counties of Beaver, Minburn, Lamont and Flagstaff and the School Divisions of Provost and Wainwright are part of the Elk Island Teacher's Association.

Taylors have 60th

The families of Mr and Mrs. George H. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Taylor and family of St. Albert, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taylor and family of Viking, hosted an open house at their parents home in Holden last Thursday to honor them on their 60th wedding anniversary

Many long-time friends and neighbours called on them during the afternoon and evening to congratulate them and help them celebrate the happy occasion.

A large anniversary cake was served to all attending.

Bouquets of flowers were received from the family, the congregation of Holden United Church, the Royal Purple and B.P.O. Elks Lodges and a plaque commemorating the day came from the Holden Legion and Ladies Auxiliary

They also received a phone call from their grandson, Ernest Taylor, who is at college in Grand Rapids, Mich., U.S.A

The Taylors are long-time residents of Holden

Many cards of congratulations were received and Mr and Mrs. Taylor thanked all for their kindness.

Peace merchant

Prime Minister Trudeau has been spending a good deal of time in recent weeks seeking to find ways in which he might establish his position among the world's major nations as a merchant of peace . . . bringing agreement between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. over the arms race problem, and helping to defuse one of the most worrying problems of the day.

It's probably not unfair to suggest that Mr. Trudeau has ample opportunity right at home to practice up for the role. Somehow, though, he seems to miss a number of opportunities, and instead stick his foot into it. Or rather, his finger. His middle finger.

There's an old philosophy which says that democratic government depends on the consent of the people being governed. This is something the Trudeau government doesn't have. Neither in the four western provinces, nor in the four in the Atlantic region, does he have that support . . . yet he pushes on, secure in the number that comes from that little triangle in Central Canada.

Peacemaker, indeed!

right now the Crows Nest Pass railway rate question. How many times has closure been used, rather than persuasion, forcing a measure through when it didn't have merit enough to gain general acceptance without such force.

What started off as fairly general agreement on the Crow amendments, and fairly general support, has turned into almost universal opposition. We don't know one single group which supports the much amended Bill today except the Liberals in Ottawa. The number of changes has lost support of even the western farm groups who thought it might eventually improve their world, people such as the livestock breeders.

There's an old philosophy which says that democratic government depends on the consent of the people being governed. This is something the Trudeau government doesn't have. Neither in the four western provinces, nor in the four in the Atlantic region, does he have that support . . . yet he pushes on, secure in the number that comes from that little triangle in Central Canada.

Sunday blues?

Alberta's legislature is in session these days, and by the end of last week a dozen bills had been introduced by various members, all from the government side.

Curiously, we did't notice where Neil Crawford has suggested a Sunday closing law, despite the matter having received warm endorsement when one of his backbenchers brought the matter up months ago. Nor has he made any move, at least in the early stages, to introduce Alberta's own breathalyzer regulations. Earlier it was suggested he was waiting for Ottawa (to take him off the hook) but the question is how long do we wait?

Sunday closing isn't really important to Albertans, of course, nor is the level of impairment found by the breathalyzer. Similarly, the age for legal possession of liquor doesn't rate much time on the schedule either. It's a blessing our attorney general isn't faced with some serious problems to be dealt with, things like fines for overparking, or for parking in restricted areas . . . things like that might have to be dealth with in one or possibly two sessions. But the other matters, being of much less importance, why, it's easy to put them off from session to session, for several whole years.

Mr. Crawford is lucky he doesn't have Connie Osterman's department . . . why, she has to come up this fall with a formula for spending all those millions of bucks for the lotteries. And she knows nobody will be happy.

But Mr. Crawford is lucky . . . there's no hurry in finding ways to cut down the slaughter on the highways, most people don't think of that as important. And let's face it, thousands of us don't go to church anymore, so obviously we can't really care whether stores open on Sundays or not.

But Mr. Crawford lucky to have such unimportant things to deal with?

"Loose Ends"

by Carol Livingstone

Hallowe'en was really something in [illegible] when I was a child. We wore simple costumes, not due to a lack of imagination but because it was cheaper to stuff a pillow down our front and blacken a few knolls with a wax crayon than to buy something in a store. Besides, the Force wasn't with us back then, so hobos and pirates were still in [illegible].

Each clutching an old pillowcase we would fill twice, my sister and I always went out together. We covered the whole town; the houses down the street from ours where the residents waited in the dark until we rang the bell and then charged out to chase us with a broom; the music teacher's, where she thought she could unmask us through our voices; and especially the house where we were trusted to take only our fair share of [illegible] left in a bin at the front door. For those too young to remember, those are like nice first bras [illegible] these days.

We then returned home, tired but greedy, to count each and every item to see who got more of what, while our mother shook her head in amazement and hoped we wouldn't keep her up all night with hellyaches.

Unfortunately, everything changes, and with it Hallowe'en. It wasn't long ago that the fun of being ghosts and goblins was marred by the suspicion that someone was out to harm children by putting foreign substances in their treats. For a number of years I was one of several mothers who traded off hosting block parties which our children said were more fun than going house to house. That was easy for them to say. They weren't in on the planning or the clean-up. (Ever tried to get candy kisses out of shag carpeting?) My kids still don't understand why people who don't want to give out treats just don't. Or why I'd prefer they were chased with a broom than harmed physically.

Hallowe'en just ain't what it used to be. But then, neither are the children. They don't seem to be making them as sturdy as they used to, or as greedy. (By rights the only tooth I should have left in my head is the sweet one.) The younger generation keeps telling me that nothing is like it was "in the olden days", and they are right. We can always hope though, can't we?

Should be parents' choice

Dear Sir

Something has been happening to this country for a number of years now that society has done nothing about. Let me start by reviewing the past briefly.

My parents moved to this country 30 years ago. I went to school in Montreal. There were several ethnic groups where I was living (Polish, German, Ukrainian, French, Italian, Irish . . .) in school we learned Canadian history in which the British defeated the French in 1759. Having 65,000 prisoners, the British were not sure what to do with them. Authorities in London wanted Canada to be governed like any other British colony and ideas of sending them back to France were discussed. The governor General James Murray, a friend of the French, wanted them to have a voice in government. The Quebec Act was passed in 1774, guaranteeing freedom of religion and making French civil law valid in British courts. I would think people were not as sympathetic in those days as they are today, therefore, the British were more than just fair.

Jumping ahead to 1982, it has been over 10 years that parents have lost their freedom of language education in Quebec. Street names that were once written in English have been changed to French (Mountain St., St. James St.) While American children are studying [illegible] are studying languages and spending time and money translating books (English elementary schools in Montreal spend 40 minutes on math and 40 minutes on French). A law was passed passed years ago banning all English signs on stores and the primary language of Quebec is French. I wonder [illegible] needed for.

I am leaving Quebec to go out west. Nothing was done in Quebec and I fear nothing will be done once this, showing French down our throats, spreads beyond the Quebec border. It's already happening. A fraction of our population speak French and children from British Columbia to Newfoundland are taught French. A fraction of this population speak Ukrainian, Italian, Polish, German, Chinese; does that mean these languages must be taught in schools too? People tell me nothing is wrong with speaking two languages and I totally agree. It's when they tell me what second language my children will be taught that violates my right. I have heard some parents say they do have the choice of French immersion or not. But when asked which one they would choose and why, the ever increasing response is French immersion because more jobs and promotions require French, not Polish or German or Chinese but French. Therefore, there is really no choice The point is parents should decide what secondary language, if any, their children will be taught.

Are we going to let this continue or are we going to have, as a people, the strength to stop it?

Joseph Marello

FOCK ON HOWEVER FOR

Free offices lock has been changed when one of three free services are available. Canada Post Corporation says a lock box is regarded as a supplementary rather than a basic service for customers whose residence or place of business is located such that it is eligible to receive door delivery service. Free delivery includes letter carrier service, general delivery service and rural route delivery.

Patricia Young Says . . . . . .

Former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker one time commented on the fact that he was the only Canadian ex-prime minister alive – adding with typical Diefenbaker wit that he was likely to soon have company!

The comment brought to mind the fate of many leaders who manage to get to the top in a dictatorship — and who [illegible] and shot either by a Party elite rather than the democratic process. We could start with the Russian Revolution, where a successful Kerensky was quickly deposed by Lenin's Bolsheviks. And while Lenin managed to hang on to his power and position, his successor, Stalin suffered disgrace and the obliteration of his name from records and tearing down of his statue when Krushchev took over 1956. In turn, Krushchev was downgrated in 1982 as Kosygin and Brezhnev came to power.

The picture has not been too different in Red China where The Cultural Revolution was used to purge the nation of its enemies without benefit of trial, lawyers or free speech. There was the disgracing of Lin Pao and more recently of Mao Tse Tung and his wife Chaing Chin. This came to the surface in February of 1977 when an official document was presented to the Central Committee of The Chinese Communist Party and Chairman Kua Kuo-feng by the Canton Military Party and the Hunan Military Region. Leading off the signatures were those of two highly placed military leaders, Shih-yu and Wei Kuo-ching. The document was reproduced in full in The Central Daily News of Taipei on February 2nd, 1977. Along with attacks upon Mao Tse Tung for launching the Great Leap Forward and the Cultural Revolution, it attempts to vindicate Lin Pao, former defense minister and Liu Shao-chi, a former head of State. Other powerful Red Chinese leaders who received the "stalin" treatment include vice premier Wang Hon-Wen, Yao-Wen Yuang of the propaganda department and Chang Thuan Chiao and hundreds of other armed officials. Unlike Canadian and U.S.A. former leaders who are eventually voted out of office by the public and retire on healthy pensions and privileges, the "deposed" in Red China or any communist satellite are lucky if they survive with their lives. All of which points up just one of the many advantages of the democratic system — to the politican at least! But don't look for this information in too many of our "leading" news medias. Too many writers still think that The Cultural Revolution was an attempt to bring back the ancient art of jade cutting!

As I See It

by Dr. Walt Buck, M.L.A. Clover Bar

Imposition of a 13 percent income tax increase by the Premier and the Provincial Treasurer is, in my opinion, an extremely unwise and untimely move.

What is particularly upsetting is that they could not even wait until the opening of the fall sitting of the Legislature to make the announcement. This government has not demonstrated any ability what so ever to manage its fiscal affairs in a reasonable manner. It has $13 billion in the Heritage Savings Trust Fund but still feels it has to impose a punitive tax load on its citizens. I can't think of a more harmful or destructive [illegible] measures to kill our economic recovery!

The provincial government has wasted a great deal of money on the $360 million Kananaskis Country development; $60 million on Legislature Grounds [illegible], $3-4 [illegible] transportation for Cabinet Ministers; spending tax-payers money for swearing-in lunches for Tory M.L.A.s at the rate of $65 hundred, plus other questionable expenditures.

I have been assured by calls to my Legislature office that citizens are becoming increasingly concerned about this situation. I will continue to press for responsible fiscal restraint by this government.

Last week in the Legislature, I questioned Solicitor General Graham Harle about the future of the Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Centre. Although Mr. Harle was not definite in his answers about the future of the institute, he did indicate his department is looking at the situation with a view to seeing what it might cost to maintain the present facility for a further extended period. During a time of restraint, I recommend that a very clear study should be made to keep the facility where it is!

If you have any questions or comments, please contact my office at 214 Legislature Building in Edmonton, or telephone 427-2391.

Palmer-Earling

PALMER-EARLING — Known as The Good News Singers of St. Albert, 12 male voices (one of which was the storekeepers and mailman of Onoton, Arnold Knutson) held the large audience spell-bound Sunday evening at Skudesnes Lutheran Church when they took over all the singing at the Thanksgiving Festival.

The Chapel looked cosy and inviting with fruit of the soil displayed around the altar with a lighted coal-oil lamp to remind us of earlier years and to be thankful for the conveniences we now have.

Scripture reading and prayer was by Mrs. Dianne Olson and Rev. Lee Wellery brought a challenging message. Rev. and Mrs. Raymond Olson, Camrose, were present to enjoy it. Rev. Olson was instrumental in organizing this male chorus some years ago when he was a [illegible] at St. Albert and is happy they are faithfully carrying on — practicing every Monday night.

The offering was given to the men's chorus, who in turn give it to the Canadian [illegible] Relief.

In closing, the traditional pie and coffee and fellowship were enjoyed in the basement.

The Skudesnes L.C.W. met Wednesday at the Church when 13 ladies were present. The Bible lesson was lead by Marlene Seney. The vice-president, Diane Bruce presided in the absence of Helen Vassberg, the president.

The business part was finished before the correspondence was read — a letter read from Missionary Brenda Mellon of Pakistan, a letter from Lamp in the North Country. The card reporter Edna Aker had mailed out 12 cards. The Janitors for Nov. are the Akers.

Next meeting at church basement Nov. 16.

Mrs. Lawrie Farness presented a picture in memory of her husband, the late Robert Farness, which will be hung up in the church.

Darryl and Carla Marsh motored down from Grande Prairie and spent a few days with his sister Mrs. Lawrie Farness and baby son.

Beaverhill starts

The Beaverhill Hockey League will get a new season of operation underway this coming weekend.

The BHL will operate with five teams this winter.

Returning for a new season are Holden, Lamont, Mundare and the Tofield Bantams.

After only one year in the league, last winter's cellar dwelling team from Viking did not return to the fold.

When the league held its organizational meeting recently, Ryley was granted a one-year leave of absence and expects to return next winter.

The new entry this winter will be the Vegreville Rangers who expect to ice a strong team.

The executive is unchanged over last year.

Pete Buchinski has been returned as president and league commissioner while Joe Komarnisky is back as secretary-treasurer and Lloyd Masiak will again be the statistician.

For the most part, games will be played each Tuesday, Friday and Saturday with some games going on Wednesdays.

Regular league play opens this Saturday with Tofield at home to Mundare while Holden plays in Lamont.

Games on Tuesday will see Tofield hosting Holden while Vegreville makes its debut in Mundare.

TOY BUYING

Anyone who watches television knows that Christmas is drawing near. Every toy or game advertised looks to be sturdy, fun and the perfect gift. Don't we all know better.

Help is not far off. Once again the Canadian Toy Testing Council has published the Toy Report. Basically it is a consumers report, rating toys as to their play value, durability and age appropriateness. Toys are rated as Recommended, Good or Not Recommended. It's a great way to make up your Christmas shopping list.

I have copies of the Toy Report in my office and copies are available in some local libraries. They can also be purchased from the Consumers Association of Canada in Edmonton for $4.00.

The CAC is also sponsoring a toy buying display at Heritage Mall in Edmonton, November 2-5. They will have toys for you to examine, as well as their comments on pricing, play value and durability. Be sure to take the time to find out about your purchases before you buy.

I plan to attend the mall display to watch for my report in a future column.

Support sought for cable tv

by Ken Hoeksma

Rural Satellite Television (RSTV) representatives are looking for 40-50 per cent of the households in Tofield to sign up for cable as an indicator of support for the project before going ahead with it.

At a public meeting held last week, Dana Quigley, marketing manager for RSTV, said with a capital investment of $120,000 on the part of RSTV, they needed an indicator of support from the community before proceeding.

"We just can't put a system into a community and hope there will be support," said Quigley.

RSTV has proposed that as an indicator of support that one month rent be paid in advance, with the installation fee to be paid upon hook-up to the system.

It was also proposed that a service club from the community collect this deposit and hold it in a trust fund, not to be given to RSTV until after the system was in operation and all the bugs had been worked out, said Quigley.

This proposal came in response to concerns over Delta Cable who had taken funds for service, but had never provided the service.

"It's too bad this man besmirched the good name of cable," said Bill Dragan, manager of RSTV.

Dragan said he would like to see the community group take this responsibility on and put the money in an account which can't be touched by SRTV until after the system is in place.

"We want it so you're satisfied the money cannot leave town," said Dragan. "We don't want money out of the community until the system is in operation."

One thing that both Dragan and Quigley emphasized is that if there is no indicator of support there will be no cable.

"We don't want to gamble $130,000 without an indicator of support," said Dragan.

RSTV is presently looking for a community group to do the canvassing from door to door for the system. Dragan said they would like it done by a group so that money paid for this service would stay in the community.

RSTV Cable would like to start putting the system in by the first week in December. Within five weeks the system would be completely hooked up.

After the system is on line, said Quigley, there will be a short period before billing will commence to work any bugs out of the new system.

Hook up for the system would cost $50 for the initial hook-up and $18 a month for one outlet. Additional outlets would be available at an additional charge.

The four programs currently being offered are NBC, CBS, PBS and ABC out of Seattle. This program package is part of CanCom Systems.

Along with these stations there would be the regular stations, now being viewed in the area, over the cable line.

Dragan said the local stations would be picked up on special attenae to give the clearest picture possible.

Future services could include a movie channel, a community channel or cable FM services.

These extra services would be available in customers at an additional cost.

RSTV, a division of Saskatoon Telecable Ltd., has been licensed by the CRTC to put this service into several communities throughout the province. As part of their commitment to the project RSTV has indicated to the CRTC they will have all communities involved on line in one year.

PUT SOME PEP IN YOUR COMMUNITY

Community associations and other non-profit organizations in Alberta can take advantage of a funding program to initiate, or complete projects this winter.

Alberta Manpower's Priority Employment Program (PEP) can help non-profit community organizations create job opportunities through subsidization of wages.

If your organization has a project that will provide full-time employment for at least three months, it may qualify for PEP funding. Financial assistance will cover the minimum wage for each project employee, plus an additional 10% to cover benefit costs.

PEP funding is available from November 1, 1983 to April 30, 1984. Deadline for applications is January 10, 1984.

Funding may be available to your organization if jobs can be provided for Albertans currently unemployed. Project employers must be Alberta residents, at least 16 years of age and legally entitled to work in Canada.

Additional information can be obtained by calling our Special Manpower Programs office — 427-4740 in Edmonton or for those living outside the Edmonton dialing area, call our toll-free PEP line Dial 0, and ask the Operator for Zenith 22078.

Ladies — 1st — Truus Vanderwemer; 2nd — Myrtle Nerland; consolation — Gladys Gill.

Lunch was served by the ladies and another drive announced for Nov. 18th.

John and Truus Vanderwemer left on Monday for a vacation in the Niagara Falls area. They will attend the wedding of a nephew on Saturday and will visit friends and relatives in the area for a while before returning home.

Theresa Regier and a friend left to spend the winter months in Mesa, Arizona.

Katherine and Andy Spohn of Bonner's Ferry, Idaho were recent visitors with Jean and George Kleinschroth.

The Ladies Club are busy these days with last minute plans for their annual fall bazaar which is on Friday at 8 p.m. Lunch will be served.

Doris Davenport has been a patient in Tofield Hospital since Thursday.

Rita Lach and family have had Rita's sister, Avis visiting for the last while, from Toronto.

Edna and Glenn Ferguson and Richard Heitzman from Tofield were recent Saturday evening visitors with Gloria and Jacquelynn Pearice of Edmonton.

The October meeting of the Crafts Centre was held on Monday evening. A good financial report was given by Treasurer Jean Dunham. A set of steps has been built on the north entrance of the centre by Glenn Ferguson, with a ramp to come later in the event wheel chairs are used.

The games afternoon which takes place in December was discussed briefly. Lil Leach was lunch hostess. The centre now has a new mascot to replace "Duke" who was Mrs. Pearice's hog. He answers to "Bingo" and is owned by David and Penny Green who live nearby.

Ryley forms teams

by Ken Kroetsch

There will definitely be two minor hockey teams in Ryley, with possibly a third team if enough boys can be found to play, said Minor Sports President, Doug Capogreco.

There will be an eight and under hockey team, a 10 and under hockey team and possibly a 12 and under or a 15 and under hockey team, said Capogreco.

There is also a possibility that a girls' hockey team will be organized if enough interest is shown.

Registration will start when enough parents have contacted Minor Sports with interest in the program.

There is approximately 12 boys per team at the present time.

"We would like to have about 15 players on a team," said Capogreco.

Although the teams won't be part of a league, they will have an opportunity to play league teams. The objective of minor sports in Ryley is to give the boys fundamental hockey skills and to encourage them to play.

"Each boy gets the opportunity to play whether they can skate or not."

One of the reasons that Ryley won't be joining the Highway 14 League is because there is no arena.

"It's difficult for other teams to come out and play on an outdoor arena when they're used to an indoor arena," said Capogreco. Games will be scheduled with Highway 14 teams giving the boys a chance to play with the league without being totally involved.

Capogreco said minor hockey enthusiasm has increased in the last two years. He said this is due to good coaching and the support of parents.

Equipment is supplied for the players, with enough sweaters for two teams. The sweaters were purchased by local merchants.

Parents interested in their children playing minor hockey are asked to contact Doug or Gail Capogreco.

Society sets meeting

By Ken Kroetsch

The Tofield Child Development Society will be meeting next Monday evening at 7:30 p.m. to accept new memberships and to elect new directors for the society, said society president May Korobko

Korobko said they will also be discussing the family day home proposal and will be discussing the guidelines for the proposal prior to sending them for approval to the provincial government.

Korobko said that before they send the forms in the society needs to have the signatures of parents who are interested in this type of a program. She said it was important that parents as well as people who wish to become daycare providers attend this meeting.

Korobko said that after the forms are filled in and sent away they will be scrutinized by the Provincial Government and then the Tofield program will be registered as a Satellite Day Home Program. She said after this is done, the government will help with the administration costs of the program.

Regarding funds, the TCDS will be discussing new ways to raise funds for the program. At present $400 has been raised to date.

Anyone interested in putting their children in the day care program, or is interested in becoming a day care provider are urged to attend the meeting, said Korobko

PRIORITY EMPLOYMENT PROGRAM – FARM SUPPORT ELEMENT

This PEP program is a Special Manpower Program which has been operated by the Province since 1971/72. It is just recently that a farm and small business element has been added to provide work experience and career development opportunities within the private sector for unemployed Albertans. The program provides support through the subsidization of employee wages. Project proposals must be submitted before January 10, 1984. Some of the project eligibility criteria are:

1) The proposed employment position must provide full time employment of at least 32 hours per week.

2) Projects may start (upon approval) on November 1, 1983 and no later than February 1, 1984. All projects terminate on April 30, 1984. A project can consist of no less than three months of employment.

3) Project activity shall not contribute to the enhancement or maintenance of personal property or residence [illegible]

4) A project position must not eliminate or otherwise affect the job security of anyone employed or who might have been employed if the PEP program did not exist.

5) Proposed employees shall not be full-time students or members of the employer's immediate family.

The wage subsidization amounts to 50 per cent of the wages paid out to a maximum of $2.50 per hour. The employer is responsible for the preparation and issuance of Records of [illegible] and T-4 slips. Workers Compensation coverage will be provided by Alberta Manpower for all project employees.

Guidelines outlining all the conditions and restrictions of the Farm Support Element for the PEP program are available at our office for anyone interested.

County set for strike

by Ken Rowbotham

In view of a possible strike in the County of Beaver by teachers, and a possibility of strikes in other counties, the school board has implemented a policy concerning non-resident students to shut the exodus of non-resident students into County of Beaver schools.

Don Kondrat, acting superintendent, told school trustees at a meeting last week that a gentleman's agreement has been reached with surrounding counties to implement similar policies.

The new policy would require non-resident students to notify the superintendent of schools from their home school district of their intention to register their child in the County of Beaver, and they would have to obtain a transfer letter from their jurisdiction, and upon receiving this would be able to register the child, being subject to there being sufficient space in the programs.

The purpose of the policy, said Kondrat is to stall transfer as long as possible to slow the exodus of students into the school system.

School Trustee for Viking, Rod Krips, asked if this policy wasn't using the children as pawns in teacher negotiations.

Kondrat said that the policy was only designed to stop non-resident students from coming into our school system on a short term basis.

He went on to say that if this were the case, that a great number of students all of a sudden came into the County of Beaver schools, possible staff increases would have to be looked at. This would create problems after the students were to re-attend their own school division.

Kondrat said that legally they cannot stop a parent from registering their children in the county schools, but they can stall them as long as they can.

Kondrat said this may be viewed as strike breaking by teachers, but that this was not the intent of the new policy. It was merely meant to stop a great influx of students into the school system for only a short period of time.

Kondrat informed council that there was a possibility that county teachers could go on strike sometime in the near future. A strike vote was to have taken place yesterday (Tuesday).

In other business regarding a possible strike, Kondrat asked the board to consider making a strike policy to be in place before the teachers actually go on strike. The policy would make it mandatory for teachers to return keys, registers, school equipment and other school property before going on strike.

The policy will be discussed and set at the next regular meeting of the board in November.

Home & School meet planned for Holden

by Ken Rowbotham

The direction and future of a Home and School Committee for the Village of Holden will be decided at an organizational meeting to be held this Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Holden School Gym.

The meeting is being sponsored by the Future of Holden School Committee to decide whether or not parents want a home and school committee or not, said Bobbie Schweitzer, committee spokesperson.

"If they do, we will be electing executive officers and setting dates for membership," said Schweitzer.

It is expected there will be a good turnout of parents to the meeting to join the home and school committee.

"Preliminary interest indicates that a majority of families would be interested in forming a home and school," said Schweitzer.

If the Holden Home and School Committee is organized then it will replace the Future of Holden School Committee, a committee set up for only a short duration.

The Home and School Committee will also be a member of the Alberta Federation of Home and School Associations, a province-wide organization.

The home and school program gives parents and teachers an opportunity to work together to foster a more co-operative atmosphere. It also helps parents to understand the philosophy, procedures and objectives of the school system.

There is also opportunities for the local groups to form and submit resolutions aimed at improving educational opportunities for all children.

After the resolutions are formed, they can be forwarded to the provincial organization to be submitted to the provincial government for consideration.

Car winner named

Richard Surry, of Edmonton, was sitting around playing Trivial Pursuit last Saturday night when a phone call disrupted his concentration.

"It was a shock. We were sitting around playing Trivial Pursuit when I got the call. 'Hi, this is the Tofield Lions calling. You have just won a car.'"

Surry had been the lucky winner of a 1982 Duchess Replica car, estimated at $20,000, raffled off by the Tofield Lion's Club.

Surry's tickets was one of approximately 12,000 tickets sold by the Tofield Lion's Club. As a grande finale to the raffle a dance was held in the Community Hall. Ticket price for the dance also included a raffle ticket on the car.

The money from the dance and from the raffle will be given to community projects, said Lion's president, John Hunka.

Cadets' parents organize

The Holden Navy League Parents Committee held their reorganizational meeting on October 20th.

The parents met to elect a new executive for 1983-84 and discuss fund-raising projects.

Elected as president for another year was Ed Golumbuski. Mrs. Mary Gara was again voted in as vice-president, and Mrs. Henri Zowtuk was elected to the position of secretary-treasurer.

Captain Cooper gave a talk which outlined the aims, and how they might be achieved of the various parts of the Sea Cadet program — particularly that of RCSCC Nootka.

There were a number of ideas brought forth for consideration to raise funds for expenses and activities. The first undertaking will be the collection of newspapers in Ryley and Holden. Residents of those villages could assist by collecting their newspapers and holding them until the collection dates.

Parents and Cadets will conduct their paper drive on Saturday and December 3rd (the first Saturday of each month), beginning at 1 p.m.

The next meeting of the Parent Committee is scheduled for Nov. 17th in the Community Hall, when the Cadets are requested to attend, and interested persons in the community are also welcome.

The group also advised that the Royal Canadian Legion in Ryley would continue as sponsors of the Sea Cadet Corps.

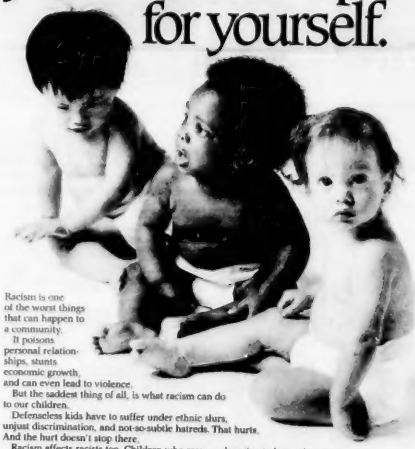
Racism means you're judged before you can stand up for yourself.



Racism is one of the worst things that can happen to a community.

It poisons personal relationships, stunts economic growth, and can even lead to violence.

But the saddest thing of all, is what racism can do to our children.

Defenseless kids have to suffer under ethnic slurs, unjust discrimination, and not-so-subtle hatreds. That hurts. And the hurt doesn't stop there.

Racism affects racists too. Children who grow up learning to hate others just because they are different, lock themselves away from a richer, fuller life. Not to mention how a reputation for racist behaviour can get in the way of a person's future career prospects.

So please be aware of what your children are learning. You could save them from the evils and hurt of racism.

Until they can stand up for themselves.

Tough Shoes Filled by Some Very Special Young Albertans

As adults, we sometimes take it for granted that the young will follow in our footsteps, filling our well-worn shoes. When this expectation is exceeded, it should not go unrewarded.

The Junior Citizen of the Year Awards are one way we show our respect and appreciation. More than 200 young Albertans and 25 groups have been honoured for leadership, outstanding achievement or overcoming special challenges.

Now twelve more young Albertans and another group join their ranks. We know they are worthy of this honour. Congratulations!

TransAlta Utilities and Alberta Power, in co-operation with the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association, have co-sponsored the Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year Awards for 22 years.

Power spike

This Ryley player is up in the air ready for a powerful spike into the opposition's court, but this wasn't enough to beat Tofield in the finals. Ryley lost out in the finals to Tofield two games to one. The Tofield girls also ended up in the finals, but lost to Devon. photo by Kroetsch

League opens Friday after 'more' changes

Chapter 41 in the on-going saga of the County Senior Hockey League or as the new league president refers to it, "Colin Christenson's Folly".

The league opens a new season of play this weekend with three games being scheduled.

And the league line-up has undergone another change in the past week.

The County All Stars, based in Tofield, couldn't get properly organized in time to compete and were forced to withdraw.

Quick action from a number of players at the local college resulted in a team being organized at CLC and although there are a few details to be ironed out at a meeting tonight (Tuesday), apparently the college squad is set to go.

The other three teams still in the league are Camrose (formerly operated as a Bawlf team), Kingman and the Tofield Toros.

The regular schedule will open on Friday evening with Kingman going against CLC (in Cadreca) while Camrose plays in Tofield.

Saturday's lone contest will see Tofield going against CLC in the Wildrose Arena.

The regular schedule will be concluded about the middle of February and will be followed by playoffs with all four teams involved.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

The Tofield Library Board would like to extend its thanks to two retiring trustees, Mr. Ron Taylor and the Rev. Dan Newell. Mr. Taylor has served on the library board for a total of nearly ten years, many of those as Chairman. During those years, Mr. Taylor has seen many changes effected in library service in Tofield. We thank him for his contribution of time and energy devoted to the library. Mr. Newell has served as a library trustee for a shorter period, two years, but his assistance is no less appreciated.

At the same time, we would like to welcome three new members effective immediately. Joining the Board are Mrs. Peggy Smith, Mrs. Helen Gray and Mr. Cliff Sommer, all of Tofield.

Mark your calendars now, with this important date: Tuesday afternoon of November 15! A well-known author, Mrs. June Bhatia, better known by her pen name of Helen Forrester, will be present at the Tofield Library for a public reading and presentation. This program is part of our celebration of National Children's Book Festival week. Although the books written by Mrs. Forrester about her childhood in Liverpool are not young children's books (Tuppence to Cross the Mersey, Liverpool Miss) students in junior high or older would enjoy them as much as adults have. There will be no charge for admission, and I'm sure that there will be time for a question session. Aspiring authors, book lovers and readers take note!

The Public Library Workshops I attended last week in Edmonton were both informative and interesting. Lectures on topics such as special grants, library displays, reference services, classification etc. were presented. As usual at such conferences, the most valuable time of all was that shared with other people from all over the province in similar situations. In comparison to many other communities of this size, Tofield ranks very well in its provision of library service. Many other towns have much poorer facilities and fewer books for example.

Do let your Town Council know how much you appreciate their support of the library. If you are a County resident, do let your councillor know that you would like the County Council to do likewise.

Library hours are: Tuesday 1-5; Thursday 3-5 and 6-9; Friday and Saturday 10-12 and 1-5.

Report from Parliament Hill

By Don Mazankowski
P.C., M.P.

P.C.'S CONTINUE CROW FIGHT

Bill C-155, the government's proposal to change the historic Crow's Nest Pass freight rate, has now entered the final stages of debate. This debate has been raging in the House of Commons since it was first introduced on May 10th.

There can be no doubt that this issue is highly contentious, complex and very emotional.

For the West, the Crow rate is tantamount to a constitutional pillar. Without question, C-155, is one of the most important pieces of legislation to come before Parliament.

Throughout the legislative process our party has had a number of reservations with respect to the Bill, including the producers' ability to pay higher freight rates; the method of payment of the Crow benefit; the level of the safety net; the railway costing process; the railway performance and investment guarantees; the open-ended escalation of the new freight rate and the volume cap.

While the Transport Committee adopted 89 amendments to the legislation, 42 of which were proposed by the Progressive Conservative Party, our major concerns have still not been removed. At present, we believe the Bill, although improved, represents a poor deal for the western grain farmer and thus we cannot support it.

The main issue remains the producers' ability to pay.

In that context, our party advanced a proposal that the producer freight rates be frozen at their existing level until the end of the 1985/86 crop year. The freeze would serve to protect producers while allowing the other important elements of the Bill to proceed. The necessary rail system upgrading would begin and jobs would be created.

Another major bone of contention that remains unsettled is the method of payment of the government's financial contribution.

The Bill sets out that the entire $658 million Crow benefit be paid directly to the railways. We have serious reservations with this approach for a number of reasons.

First, it is very generous to the railways; some experts have put the annual overpayment as high as $50 million. Second, it perpetuates a cost-plus regime in which the railways have no incentive to control costs. Third, it does not encourage system efficiency but reinforces the status quo.

Finally, payment to the railways does not remove the economic distortions created by the Crow which particularly effect the livestock industry and the secondary processing sector.

As a result of the government's refusal to budget on these two issues, the legislation is no longer supported by any prairie farm organization and is stalemated in the Commons.

If the government is serious about passing a Bill with some degree of support in western Canada, it should seriously consider the amendments we have put forth.

The NDP has vowed to kill Bill C-155 but, in fact, this promise has become more rhetoric than substance. Their track record shows they are more interested in fighting the Progressive Conservative Party in order to sustain some life in the West, than in fighting for the Crow.

The bottom line for the Progressive Conservative Party has always been that if the Crow is to be changed, it must be replaced by something better than that which is presently in place.

In that context, we have led the fight to strike a better deal for the producers and as the debate on C-155 comes to a head, we will put every last effort forth to achieve that objective.

A proper notice of appeal must be filed with both the Alberta Planning Board and the applicant within fourteen (14) days of the date of this publication. Such notice shall contain:

1. the legal description and municipal location of lands being subdivided,
2. the name and address of applicant,
3. the name and address of the appellant,
4. the reasons for appeal, and
5. the name and date of this publication.
